FREE FOOD? — Although breakfast wasn't free, the 25th annual Nurses May Day Breakfast drew a crowd Wednesday morning which might make passers-by come to that conclusion. Actually it was the next best thing — the food was excellent, very reasonable at $1.25, and the proceeds will be used for nursing scholarships and hospital equipment. A steady flow of area residents kept the lines stretching well outside the Mahan Building from 6 until 10 a.m.

Protecting friends . . . destroying enemies

Transcripts disclose Nixon muscle-flexing

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and his closest advisers were flustered, confused, tormented, sometimes angry and sometimes bemused by the growth and persistence of the Watergate scandals.

They spent hours agonizing over their troubles, trying to decide on a course of action that would neutralize the Watergate mess. Considerations ranged from getting the whole truth out to paying hush money to cover up the truth.

They talked of protecting their friends and destroying their enemies. Their conversations were informal, free-wheeling, wide-ranging and frequently profane.

On several occasions Nixon expressed exasperation that his administration was under fire for political activities he considered common occurrences in political life and ordered that federal muscle be used to hurt anyone who tried to hurt him. Nixon also believed that the scandal wouldn't last long.

"This is a war," Nixon said in a Sept. 15, 1972, conversation with his chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman and his counsel, John W. Dean III. "We take a few shots and it will be over. We will give them a few shots and it will be over.

"I want the most comprehensive notes on all those who tried to do us in. They didn't have to do it .... They were doing this quite deliberately and they are asking for it and they are going to get it ....

"We have not used the Bureau (FBI) and we have not used the Justice Department but things are going to change now."

The most intense discussions occurred in two meetings March 21, 1973, during which Nixon, Dean and Haldeman debated whether to cover up high administration involvement in the Watergate scandal or "let it all hang out."

Nixon: How much money do you need?

Dean: I would say these people are going to cost a million dollars over the next two years.

Nixon: We could get that. On the money, if you need the money you could get that. You could get a million dollars. You could get it in cash. I know where it could be gotten. It is not easy, but it could be done. But the question is who the hell would handle it. Any ideas on that?

Dean: That's right. Well, I think that is something that (John) Mitchell ought to be charged with.

Nixon: I would think so too.

At another point, Dean told Nixon he wasn't at all confident of being able to maintain silence among the people involved at the various stages of the scandal. And Nixon proposed that full disclosure might be the only solution.

Zebra case arrests made

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Six black men were arrested today in the Zebra street shootings in which 12 whites have been murdered and six others wounded in random attacks over a six-month period, police said.

Chief of Inspectors Charles Barca identified the men as J.C. Simon, 29; Larry Green, 22; Dwight Stallings, Thomas Manney, Manuel Moore and Edgar Burton, all of San Francisco.

He said Simon and Green were arrested first, in a 5 a.m. raid at an apartment. They were booked on charges of murder, conspiracy to commit murder and charges of assault with a deadly weapon, Barca said.

He gave no details on the other arrests, all made here, but said the other four men would be booked on conspiracy to commit murder.

Police said a kidnaping charge also was involved but did not explain.

Police did not indicate whether they anticipated further arrests in the case.

Wilmington officer indicted for murder

WILMINGTON — A special Clinton County grand jury summoned to consider evidence surrounding the April 22 ambush slaying of a Martinsville man returned an indictment Tuesday afternoon charging Wilmington police officer Dale A. Powell, 26, with aggravated murder.

The five-woman, four-man special grand jury finished its second day of deliberations in the shooting case shortly after lunch and reported the indictment against Powell to Common Pleas Court Judge Howard D. Barns just before 2 p.m.

Powell, a two-year veteran of the Wilmington Police Department, is charged with the shotgun slaying of Randall B. Goldie, 22, of Martinsville, who was found shot to death in his car about 11 p.m. in the parking lot of a Wilmington restaurant.

Assistant Prosecutor William McCracken, who presented the case because of the illness of Prosecutor Ronald Carey, said there would be an arraignment Wednesday, but was unable to schedule a specific time before conferring with Charles Kirk, who is Powell's attorney.

POWELL has been suspended from the police department pending final disposition of the murder charge. Two other city police officers, seven-year veteran Ursell Webb, 37, and three-year veteran Paul Dischner, 32, also have been suspended from the force by Police Chief Thomas E. White for allegedly withholding information about the shooting.

Chief White said Tuesday that additional announcements concerning administrative actions against Webb and Dischner could come late Wednesday or Thursday.

The special grand jury examined a total of 19 witnesses Monday and Tuesday, including a 17-year-old Wilmington girl who has been held in protective custody at an undisclosed location since the slaying. The girl, identified only as a Wilmington High School student, was believed to be a key witness in the case.

McCracken said there were no cases ignored by the special grand jury, the Powell case being the only one under consideration. He refused to comment, however, on rumors that there had been efforts to obtain more indictments, possibly against area drug pushers.

There has been widespread speculation that Goldie's shooting was linked to related illegal drug activities in the area, but no one close to the investigation, including Chief White, would confirm it.

GOLDIE was the owner of a novelty import shop in Wilmington. He was found shot several times in the head and shoulders at close range with a .12-gauge shotgun as he sat in his late model sports car behind Scottie's Restaurant, 1032 Wayne Rd. Police found four empty shotgun shells at the scene.

Powell was charged last Wednesday with aggravated murder in connection

Coffee Break . .

RUMORS can be annoying — and sometimes frightening. . .

Edgy residents of neighboring Xenia, lashed by a killer tornado April 3, deluged the Xenia Daily Gazette office with phone calls after a report was circulated that Jeane Dixon, psychic-clairvoyant of national prominence, had predicted the Xenia twister earlier in the month and that she was forecasting another series of tornadoes on May 3 which would result in heavy damage in South Central Ohio. . . Some of the Xenia calls came from Washington C.H. where the rumor gained some currency among those who fail to realize that Mrs. Dixon neither is, nor pretends to be, a weather prophet. . .

The Record-Herald received a call or two but did not mention the rumor because it felt there was no validity to it. . .yet the story pops up again, and Coffee Break feels that the matter should be put at rest. . .

As the Daily Gazette points out, Jeane Dixon DID NOT predict the April 3 tornado, NOR has she made any tornado forecasts whatsoever either for this month or for the remainder of the year. . . Joe Havley, of Washington, D.C., Mrs. Dixon's personal assistant, made this perfectly clear, as did the syndicate which distributes her columns. . .

This has been one of many rumors following the Xenia tragedy. . . There are other stories about the number of unidentified dead in morgues (the actual toll was 33 with no unclaimed bodies), the number still missing (there is no one unaccounted for) and fantastic accounts of people being carried for miles by the wind, or locomotives blown off tracks and never found. . . It's all balderdash. . .

The Xenia Gazette, in an editorial, put it this way:

"As the bumper stickers proclaim, 'Xenia Lives!' But the spirit of a living, vibrant city can only be tarnished by ever-spreading grandiose (and often gruesome) tales. Let's stick to the truth.

"And while we're at it, how about banishing from our listening range as well, those reports from so-called psychics who allegedly predicted the Xenia tornado and talk of more to come.

"People in Kansas and other mid-western states have occupied the "tornado belt" for many years and have learned to live with the threat. The blow Xenia took was wider and stronger than any of those, but can't we, too, convince ourselves that it was a once-in-a-lifetime tragedy."

ARE YOU CONFUSED about the three "state issues" which will appear on ballots next week?. . .

Fairfield fire fatal to 4

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP) — Fire swept through a home in rural Fairfield County early today, killing a father and three children.

Firemen from Berne Township, who battled the blaze for more than four hours, identified the victims as Hilbert Robertson, 38, daughter Carrie Sue, 13, and sons Andy, 11, and Martin, 1.

Robertson's widow, Flora, 32, was in fair condition at a hospital here with first and second degree burns, officials said.

Firemen said the blaze broke out as the woman started a fire in a kitchen stove shortly after midnight to heat the home. Flames ignited nearby curtains, they said, and the stove exploded as the woman tried to pull them from the house.

Firemen said Robertson, the daughter and the youngest child apparently died of smoke inhalation and intense heat.

Demo committees can sue Brown

COLUMBUS, Ohio(AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court today said two county Democratic executive committees have a cause of action against Secretary of State Ted W. Brown for refusing to reappoint two boards of election members— but the persons themselves do not.

It allowed the Lucas County Executive Committee to proceed with its case on behalf of William F. Boyle and the Columbiana County Executive Committee to continue with its arguments for Don R. Gosney.

But the court dismissed individual suits brought against Brown by both Boyle and Gosney.

Brown said Boyle, the Lucas County Democratic chairman was a disruptive influence on the Lucas County Board of Elections and that it would be a conflict of interest for Gosney an aide to U.S. Rep. Wayne Hays, R-Ohio, to serve on the board.

Big wage, price increases battled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will demand new price controls if the country's high inflation rate isn't held in check, President Nixon has warned business leaders.

He said the ending of his widely discredited controls program Tuesday creates a "great responsibility" for both business and labor leaders to use restraint in setting future wages and prices.

"If the fires of inflation continue burning too strongly, the demand for controls will come up again," Nixon told 3,200 businessmen and their wives at a U.S. Chamber of Commerce banquet Tuesday night.

The White House was scheduled to release a new statement on the economy today.

The President, who did not mention Watergate in his 25-minute speech, was applauded warmly and enthusiastically. His wife, Pat, was by his side.

Nixon revealed he will announce next week new measures intended to help the slumping housing industry, which he said is one of the few areas of the economy where "the government can play a significant role."

But he said he preferred that government policies to control inflation be confined to responsible fiscal and monetary policies.

"The major answer to inflation is more production," he added.

But even as the President was urging restraint in future price increases, the nation's largest steel company, U.S. Steel Corp., said it will have to increase prices despite an 80 per cent increase in profits in the first quarter of 1974.

Edgar B. Speer, U.S. Steel chairman, said the increases will be necessary to finance future expansion. He cited pressures from rising costs of raw materials and the cost of the new wage agreement.

Wage and price controls expired at midnight Tuesday for all except the oil industry.

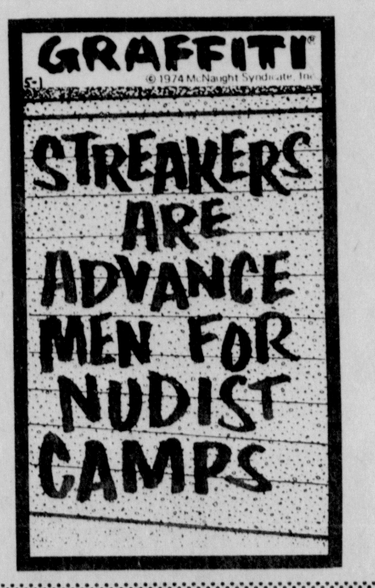
Meanwhile, about 4.2 million workers are due for immediate pay hikes of up to $16 a week under the new minimum wage law that takes effect today, moving the hourly rate to $2.30 over the next two years.

Glenn joins impeachment backers

By The Associated Press

Democratic U.S. Senate candidate John Glenn Tuesday for the first time called for impeachment of President Nixon. He said Nixon's refual to comply with a congressional subpoena was sufficient grounds for such action.

Glenn told newsmen in Cincinnati that if he were a member of the House Judiciary Committee he would "vote impeachment on this basis" because of Nixon's "sheer arrogance" in providing partial transcripts instead of the subpoenaed tapes.



Accompanied by former professional football star Rosey Grier during his campaign stop in the Queen City, the former astronaut suggested the committee give Nixon 10 days to "produce the evidence or be impeached."

Glenn previously had said he would not take a stand on impeachment until all the evidence was in on the matter.

Glenn said Tuesday he did not agree with suggestions by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, his opponent for the Senate nomination, that Nixon resign.

"I'm afraid that with resignation much surrounding Watergate would continue to be covered up," Glenn said. "Resignation might be used as a cover-up itself."

Metzenbaum, campaigning in Columbus Tuesday night, repeated the suggestion, saying "Nixon should resign and get it over with."

Metzenbaum attended a rally in a predominantly black section of the city and told the gathering, "You were with me when things weren't going so well. They've been picking up lately."

He referred to a statewide poll conducted by a newspaper that indicated he was leading Glenn by 44 per cent to 38 per cent.

Metzenbaum also repeated his charge that the former Marine Corps colonel didn't vote until he was 37 years old.

Asked later by a newsman about the charge, Metzenbaum cited news reports in the past about Glenn's voting record, but admitted there was no evidence to prove or disprove the claim.

Glenn's campaign people have denied the charge and pointed out that there was no voter registration in Muskingum County, where Glenn maintained a voting residence, until 1958.

Also asked about his position on the abortion issue, Metzenbaum said, "If the matter comes up before the legislature I will decide on it."

Pressed for his personal views on the controversial issue, Metzenbaum told the reporter, "You can ask me anything you want, but it doesn't mean you'll get an answer.

Earlier Tuesday, Metzenbaum toured Dayton's black wards escorted by the city's most powerful black vote-getter, state Rep. C. J. McLin Jr.

He said his heavy activity in black areas of Akron, Cleveland, Columbus and Dayton was basic in his push to get out what he believes is the critical black vote.

Agnes Moorehead dies

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Agnes Moorehead, 67, a character actress for half a century, died Tuesday. Miss Moorehead, who won five Oscar nominations, is best remembered by many Americans for her role as Endora in the television series "Bewitched."

Impeachment probers to chart next move

Frustration, confusion show in tape transcripts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is looking to the American people for vindication in Watergate, while House impeachment investigators meet tonight to decide their next move in the quest for White House evidence.

A majority of the House Judiciary Committee evidently was dissatisfied with the edited White House transcripts the President delivered Tuesday in lieu of tapes of 42 presidential conversations the committee had subpoenaed.

The panel's Democratic majority planned to stop short of a demand for enforcement of the subpoena in favor of seeking bipartisan support for a statement declaring Nixon had failed to comply with it.

It was clear from the time Nixon disclosed his transcript plan Monday night that the support he sought was beyond the Capitol; that his goal was to persuade the American public that he had no advance knowledge of the Watergate break-in or the cover-up and that he was providing investigators with the full story of his role.

But, even as the transcripts were delivered to the committee, the President's lawyers were making plans to go to court Thursday to seek to quash a subpoena issued at the request of special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Jaworski is seeking tapes and documents relating to 64 presidential conversations he says are needed as evidence for prosecution and defense in the forthcoming Watergate coverup trial.

In addition, the Judiciary Committee has requested, by letter, still other tapes covering the Watergate cover-up, the ITT antitrust settlement and Nixon campaign contributions from the dairy industry.

For all the 1,308 blue-bound pages of presidential transcripts, uncertainties remained about what the President knew, and when, and what he intended to be done. It was, as Nixon's lawyers and the President himself had said, a document marked by ambiguities.

The words that were spoken created a picture of a President feeling increasingly embattled and frustrated by a scandal, the disclosure of which he considered inevitable but which he hoped to control.

The transcripts covered conversations between Sept. 15, 1972, and April 27, 1973.

But the critical meetings were these:

—Sept. 15, 1972, the day indictments were returned in the Watergate break-in case. Nixon met with White House counsel John W. Dean III, later to become the President's chief accuser before the Senate Watergate committee.

—March 17, 1973, the day the President learned that members of the White House plumbers unit, set up to trace leaks of classified information, had engineered the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

—March 21, 1973, the day the President said Dean first told him about the Watergate coverup. Numerous alternatives including meeting demands for hush money were considered by the President, Dean and White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

—April 14, 1973, the day of a rambling discussion of Watergate by the President, Haldeman and Ehrlichman during which they talked about the need to fire Dean and to convince former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell to appear before the prosecutor and a grand jury.

So far as is known only Nixon and Haldeman, among those quoted in the transcripts, knew that the con-

Outlook uncertain in Syrian talks on disengagement

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's negotiations to separate Israeli and Syrian troops are likely to take longer than his successful Egyptian-Israeli shuttle diplomacy and the outlook is "very uncertain," says a senior aide.

There will be no disengagement agreement for the Golan Heights unless both Syria and Israel make concessions, the American official said. He said Israel will have to make the first compromise move because it is Israel's army that is on the other country's territory and must withdraw.

But he added that Syria will have to modify its initial proposals submitted to Kissinger in Washington on April 13.

Kissinger arrived in Alexandria Tuesday night to discuss the situation with his most enthusiastic supporter in the Arab world, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt. He gets down to the hard bargaining on Thursday, when he flies to Israel and Syria.

The secretary's hopes "were slightly raised" by his talks Monday and Tuesday in Algiers with President Houari Boumedienne and with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Geneva, the senior American source reported. But Kissinger will not begin to be able to gauge his chances of success until he reaches Israel, the aide added.

The source said an Israeli withdrawal on the Syrian front would be "riskier" for Israel than was its withdrawal from the Suez Canal. But a deadlock would be even riskier, he asserted.

Unofficial reports have said that Israel is prepared to return the 300-square-mile bulge of Syrian territory which it captured in the October war. But the Israelis have said repeatedly that they would never give back the bulk of the Golan Heights territory captured in the 1967 war because from there Syrian artillery repeatedly shelled Israeli fishermen on the Sea of Galilee and Israeli settlements in Northern Galilee.

Syria has been reported prepared to accept Israeli withdrawal from the bulge as an initial disengagement. But unofficial reports say the Syrians also are insisting that Israel pledge to give up all the Golan Heights and also return the city of Kuneitra, a mile west of the 1967 cease-fire line, as part of the initial withdrawal.

3 nations hold May Day rites

By The Associated Press

May Day demonstrations planned in Lisbon and Buenos Aires today overshadowed Moscow's annual Red Square parade on the international holiday honoring the working man.

Portugal's new military junta, in a move to contain and channel burgeoning leftism, approved the country's first legal May Day observance in half a century "as a tribute to the Portuguese workers."

Lisbon braced for wild demonstrations by unionists, Socialists and Communists celebrating the overthrow of dictator Antonio de Oliveira Salazar's heirs last week and the promise of political freedom.

The new Portuguese strongman, Gen. Antonio de Spinola, actively encouraged the leftist demonstrations—which the old regime had banned.

Ultra-leftists organized a "Red May Day." Legal labor unions set up a separate rally at which Spinola was expected to appear. It had the blessing of the Democratic Movement, the ineffectual legal opposition movement under the old regime.

In Buenos Aires, President Juan D. Peron and right-wing labor leaders who are the chief bulwark of his government sought to use the holiday to rally support against young leftist in the Peronist movement.

The General Confederation of Workers, or CGT, scheduled a four-hour rally in the palmlined Plaza de Mayo, in front of the presidential palace, and called on the nation's 9 million workers to unite in a "Fiesta of Work and National Unity."

With the 78-year-old president scheduled to address the crowd from a balcony of the palace, the heaviest security precautions in memory were in effect to prevent violence from the Peronist Youth and their guerrilla wing, the Montoneros.

Elsewhere:

French unions called off their usual march through the streets of Paris to keep things cool and not endanger Socialist Francois Mitterrand's chances in the first round of the presidential election Sunday. An outdoor meeting and festival in a Paris suburb was planned instead.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat interrupted talks on Israeli-Syrian troop disengagement with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to make a May Day speech at an industrial center south of Cairo. Kissinger and his wife were to go sightseeing in Alexandria, then take a Mediterranean boat ride.

In Uruguay, a powerful bomb exploded in front of a newspaper office on the eve of the first May Day in many years without an official labor celebration. The newspaper sides with military-backed President Juan M. Bordaberry, who outlawed labor union activities.

Muscle-flexing

is getting their own counsel. More counsel are getting involved. How do I protect my ass?

Nixon: They are scared.

Dean: That is bad. We were able to hold it for a long time ....

Nixon: Your cover is broken?

Dean: That's right and it's ....

Nixon: ... Complete disclosure, isn't that the best way to do it? .... That would be my view.

But shortly thereafter they are back to discussing a coverup.

Dean: Well, I have been a conduit for information on taking care of people out there who are guilty of crimes.

Dean: The blackmailers. Right.

Nixon: Well, I wonder if that part of it can't be—I wonder if that doesn't—let me put it frankly: I wonder if that doesn't have to be continued? Let me put it this way: Let us suppose that you get the million bucks, and you get the proper way to handle it. You could hold that side?

Dean: Un, huh.

Nixon: It would seem to me that would be worthwhile.

At a later point, with Haldeman in on the conversation, Nixon appeared ready to smooth over the reasons for the break-in at the Los Angeles office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Nixon: National security. We had to get information for national security grounds.

Dean: Then the question is, why didn't the CIA do it or why didn't the FBI do it?

Nixon: Because we had to do it on a confidential basis.

Haldeman: Because we were checking them.

Nixon: Neither could be trusted.

The text of the tape recordings is littered with secretarial notations of deleted expletives and character descriptions, apparently in an effort to clean up some White House language for public consumption. Most of the deletions are from Nixon's dialogue, but his aides apparently were casual about using profanity in his presence.

Informality appeared to be the norm in conversations among Nixon and his close aides. Rarely did anyone address him as "Sir" or "Mr. President."

Early in the history of the scandal, Nixon and his aides appear confused by the enormity of the outcry over the bugging of the Democratic National Committee. From the Sept. 15, 1972 tape:

Haldeman: Isn't that ridiculous—this silly thing.

Nixon: Yes (Expletive deleted). (Sen. Barry) Goldwater put it in context when he said "(expletive deleted) everybody bugs everybody else. You know that."

Dean: That was priceless.

Nixon: It happens to be totally true.

On the other hand, Nixon was dismayed at some of the political dirty tricks played by Donald Segretti on Democratic presidential candidates. Segretti later was convicted in connection with those dirty tricks.

Library Association seeks impounded cash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Library Association called today on Gov. John J. Gilligan to release impounded federal funds for libraries in the state.

The $3.9 million intended by Congress for library development must be approved by the Governor's Office of Budget and Management before use by libraries, the association said.

Trio plans journey West on horseback to Colorado

NORTHVILLE, Mich. (AP) — "Looking for anyone interested in going out west on horseback," read Tom Larsen's newspaper ad. "My freaky unorthodox friends are not up to it."

Larsen didn't get many replies to the recent ad, but Dennis and Linda Perlman of nearby Farmington Hills jumped at the chance.

The three plan to begin their journey from Hannibal, Mo., and head for Colorado. From there, they say they'll play it by ear.

"We're going to be free spirits," the 23-year-old Larsen said Tuesday, sitting atop his quarterhorse at a riding stable in this Detroit suburb. "And we're looking for a new life style."

A self-employed mover from Livonia, Mich., Larsen said he decided to make the trek after taking a critical look at his life a few months ago.

"I felt it was slipping away and I was getting nowhere," he said. "I had thought about riding west before, but it seemed like an impossible dream. Then I just decided to do it."

The Perlmans already have sold their house, furniture, car and motorcycle—and Friday they will quit their jobs, he as an upholsterer and she as a kennel helper.

Mrs. Perlman, 19, said her parents thought she was "nuts."

Larsen said he hadn't even told his. The group plans to pack its few remaining belongings into saddlebags Friday, load into a horse transporter with their three horses, a cat and a pregnant dog and head for Hannibal.

"We picked that place because it was Mark Twain's old stomping ground and it seemed like a good place to start," Larsen said.

They expect to leave Hannibal next Wednesday to begin their journey across northern Missouri, northern Kansas and into Colorado.

"We'll be taking an isolated route," Larsen said. "We want to take the back trails and stay away from all urban centers. That's what it's all about."

They said they would buy food along the way, cooking over campfires.

"I'll be taking my fishing rod and shotgun so we can scare up some food along the way," said Perlman, 21.

The three said they have enough money to stay on the go for about a year.

However, Mrs. Perlman said, "We may stay out there and work on farms or even buy some land."

Officer indicted

with the shooting case. He was released from custody in Greene County jail in Xenia after posting $25,000 bond.

Police have not disclosed what led them to suspect Powell in the slaying, nor have they indicated a motive for the killing.

Officials said Powell was not on duty the night of the murder and was not on duty when arrested in City Hall two days after Goldie was shot.

Chief White said after the special grand jury session that he was grateful the two officers accused of covering up information were not indicted. He has maintained that Webb and Dischner had nothing to do with the shooting.

Right of arrest upheld by court

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A township police officer or a private citizen have authority to file affidavits charging an offense, the Ohio Supreme Court held today.

The court affirmed two traffic violations against William Holbert of Alliance, stopped in that city and cited by a police officer from a nearby township.

Holbert claimed the township officer had no authority on the state highway in Alliance, where he was cited for speeding and passing in a no-passing zone.

Holbert did not have any arrest power within Alliance, the court said, but like any other citizen he had the right to file charges, which he did.

Traffic deaths decline again from last year

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council says lower speed limits figured significantly in a continuing decline in traffic deaths on the nation's highways during March.

Traffic deaths dropped 25 per cent in March, as they did in January and February after highway speed limits were lowered to 55 miles per hour to conserve gasoline because of the energy crisis, Council President Vincent Tofany said Tuesday.

About 3,200 persons died in March, compared with 4,320 in March 1973, he said. In the first three months of 1974 there were 8,920 fatalities, down from 11,880 last year, he added.

"We think that lower driving speeds have been an important factor in this reduction," Tofany said. "We hope that government authorities will examine these factors carefully before any moves are made to raise the speed limits."

Tofany said that if the trend keeps up for the rest of the year, traffic deaths would be reduced by 14,000 persons from last year's toll of 55,600. Such a reduction would place the fatality toll at the 1963 level.

Disabling injuries and traffic accident costs also declined sharply during the first three months of 1974, he said.

Tofany said there were about 320,000 disabling injuries in the first three months of 1974, compared with 420,000 in the same period last year. The cost of traffic deaths and injuries declined from $3.3 billion to $2.9 billion, he added.

Tofany said he fears that as the gasoline shortage eases, public pressure might bring back higher speed limits.

"Your chances of dying in a crash increase dramatically over 50 miles per hour," he said, adding that the chance of survival is four times as great at 50 as at 70.

Heavy rain hits wide area of U.S.

By The Associated Press

Heavy thunderstorms pelted areas from Texas to West Virginia today, dumping up to 7 inches of rain during the night at one spot in Texas and prompting flash-flood watches in that state.

The watches were in effect for most of northeast Texas and parts of the southwestern and northwestern portions of the state.

The thunderstorm activity extended into New Mexico and through Louisiana and West Virginia. Scattered showers and thundershowers spread into Ohio and parts of Pennsylvania, New York and New England.

Scattered showers also sprinkled the Rockies, Colorado, Minnesota and Oregon.

Skies were clear over the south Atlantic Coast states, the mid-Mississippi Valley, the Central Plains and the desert Southwest, but clouded elsewhere.

Ohio Power Co. raps standards

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Officers of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. Tuesday joined other state utilities in complaining they cannot meet approaching antipollution law compliance deadlines.

The company, as have most of Ohio's major utilities during the past six weeks, told examiners of the state Environmental Protection Agency that they cannot meet sulfur emission standards by July 1, 1975.

The federal EPA has given business and industrial polluters until 1977 to meet antipollution requirements, but have held steadfast in the cases of power generating firms.

The EPA has been holding adjudication hearings for the utilities since March 18 when it issued tough, new, sulfur emission limits for plant stacks.

Included on the upcoming agenda are Ohio Edison Co. of Akron and the Ohio Valley Electric Corp.

EPA spokeswoman Barbara Kaufmann said the hearings should be completed within the month. Examiners then will write a report and submit it for final consideration by state EPA Director Dr. Ira Whitman.

Ohio Power Co., one of the largest utilities in the state, brought in officers of its parent company this week to speak in its behalf.

Ohio Power is seeking a two-year extention of the deadline.

Paul D. Marinka, vice president of the American Electric Power Co., has claimed Ohio's strict sulfur emission regulations has caused his firm to cancel plans for at least six underground mines in southeastern counties.

At the same time, however, AEP attorney Joseph Dowd acknowledged the company still is going ahead with an $80 million rail and barge project to import about 600 million tons of low-sulfur Western coal into the Midwest.

Six per cent of all housing in Ohio is overcrowded, according to the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

Stock prices hold steady

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices held steady today in the face of rising interest rates and the end of price controls.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down fractionally in early trading, stood at 838.70 up 1.95 at noon, and advances held a small lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said investors were encouraged that a price bulge had not materialized immediately after the end of price controls—only copper prices seemed to rise substantially.

But trading remained light as most investors decided to sit out another period of change rather than commit themselves.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index posted a gain of .25 to 89.96 at noon.

Tennis session reset Thursday

Washington C.H. weather struck again, this time cancelling the first session of the community education tennis program.

The first evening of classes was to be conducted Tuesday, but rain forced a postponement, disappointing nearly 100 tennis enthusiasts.

Hank Shaffer, community education director, has announced that the initial session for the adult group which was scheduled for 7 p.m. will meet at the same time Thursday at Eyman Park.

The two youth groups and the adult class scheduled for 6 p.m. will meet next Tuesday. A time to make up the missed session for these groups will be announced at that time.

The five-session program in the fundamentals of tennis is being offered under the direction of Maurice Pfeifer and Lewis Elliott.

A thousand dead in Ulster

The continuing agony of Northern Ireland is dramatized by the passing of the 1,000 mark in the province's official toll of violent death since the present wave of killing began. There is little cause for hope that the murderous and pointless violence will soon end.

The Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army laid claim to the dubious honor of having brought the number of dead to 1,000. It said its operatives were the ones who took 20-year-old James Corbett from his Belfast home, shot him twice in the back of the head, and dumped his body near a reform school.

By the time this appears in print, retaliation from the other side may very well have occurred. As in the Middle East, one act of violence leads to another; many see no way to interrupt the grim cycle.

There is a way. The Archbishop of Canterbury is the latest, and one of the most influential, to bespeak it in public. The primate of the Anglican Church, Dr. Michael Ramsey, spoke out in a sermon at St. Anne's Cathedral in Belfast. For a time he was shouted down by demonstrators from supporters of the militant Rev. Ian Paisley of the Free Presbyterian church of Ulster, but in the end he did speak. What the archbishop had to say is well worth repeating.

"There are in this province," he told the congregation, "thousands of Christians - Roman Catholics and Protestants - who are ready to pray together to seek reconciliation. The future lies with those who have such thoughts in their hearts."

On might go further and say that unless such thoughts come to the fore and bear the fruit of reconciliation, the killing will go on and on.

With more than a thousand in their graves now, victims of senseless violence which achieves nothing, surely the time has come for all men and women of good will in Northern Ireland to cry in Christian conscience: Enough!

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Toward the Wheelchair Society

If I remember my history, the Presbyterian church was the lengthened shadow of John Calvin of Geneva. Calvin believed in the doctrine of the elect. People who were up and doing were considered by Calvin to be the chosen of God.

Other Protestant churches subscribed to the Calvinist ideal. The "elect" crossed the sea to America, spreading the idea of "justification by works" from one coast to the other. John D. Rockefeller, for one example, made a mint and subsidized the University of Chicago ("praise John from whom oil blessings flow").

Other great movers and shakers gave us libraries, medical establishments, and foundations for the promotion of international peace.

Well, that was yesterday. We now have a new order in the United Presbyterian Church, and that heavy buzzing sound you hear does not come from any collective failure of our automobile drivers to fasten their compulsory seat belts; it comes from John Calvin turning at breakneck pace in his grave.

In an "Energy Ethics" issue of "Trends," a publication of the United Presbyterians that is billed as a resource for study by older youths and adults, the church has apparently declared unlimited war not only on technology but on the very concept of up-and-doing Western man.

THE NEW CALVINISTS no longer seem to believe in the elect or in justification by works. "Ought we," so they ask, "to employ the ingenuity and power of our technology to ensure the survival of our wasteful and privileged way of life?. . .when the church looks at transportation and energy, it should be willing to explore the wider philosophical, theological and ethical issues . . . it should be willing to investigate the ethic of mobility itself."

The new Calvinist have a particular scunner against the automobile. "A transportation system," they write, "should equalize the access to mobility for all. Automobiles, however, discriminate between the poor, the young and the elderly who have little access to them."

What the "energy ethic" of the latter-day Calvinists amounts to is an endorsement of all those Oriental cults that praise Nirvana, exalt a regimen of navel-gazing, and preach the anti-Promethean way of life. The new Calvinists want no part of any elect, either individual or national. We must all be ground down to a poorhouse level.

Asking a leading question, "Is there a technical fix?", the new Calvinists lash out at those who hold that our energy crisis can be mastered by will-managed technology. Technology by itself, they say, cannot solve the crisis — "a purely technical solution ought not to be tried."

IF IT CAN'T EVEN be tried, then we are in for trouble. No use for General Electric to continue research into the Lungi process, a system for coal gasification and gas cleanup. No use for General Motors to go on building nonpolluting foundries. No use for testing ways of turning coal into a clean gas in the ground.

No use of trying to make a vegetation-derived substitute for gasoline. No use in developing "skimming" or boom containment techniques for controlling oil spills.

Just go home and sit under that tree. But, come to think of it, we are not all wealthy enough to have a tree to sit under.The ethic of immobility can be just as discriminatory as its opposite.

If I were to make a case against the automobile, it would be on precisely opposite grounds from anything the new Calvinists have mentioned. The trouble with the automobile is that it is used by practically everybody with no discrimination whatsoever.

The use of the back seat by the young — many of them poor — is what caused the sexual revolution in American. Drag racing is one penalty of automotive nondiscrimination.

The elderly don't use cars when their reflexes go back on them. But by the same token the elderly wouldn't be able to use horses or bicycles. Must we all use wheelchairs just to eliminate the difference between youth and old age?

Maybe that's it. There is another name for the Utopia of the new Calvinists. It is the Wheelchair Society.

You have a gift for words and a sense of rhythm that practically guarantees success should you turn to writing or music as a career. However, should you take up business instead, you may well turn to either of the aforementioned arts as an avocation. Either would be a splendid outlet for your emotions and for the idealism which is basic in your nature. Your love and sympathy for your fellowman makes you a "natural" for medicine or nursing, and your affinity for the outdoors may lead you to horticulture, agriculture or botany with great success. On the minus side, your innate stubbornness and tendency to be dogmatic with associates can lead to enmity. So-o-o. . . Curb!

State solons seek more space

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio lawmakers anticipate the day they can spread out a bit in the Capitol, making use of the space left behind by agencies moving into the new State Office Tower.

The Legislative Service Commission, made up of senators and representatives who oversee the General Assembly's research staff, is in no great hurry.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus, suggested at a recent meeting that a committee should be named to study available facilities and recommend new space assignments. The commission agreed.

Biggest problem — or, at least, the one complained about the most — is lack of private office space for the 99 members of the House and the 33 senators.

Leaders generally have adequate quarters, but most members have only a desk in a small hole of a room, more often than not shared with another member or two.

"We shouldn't just start adding on rooms," Gray told the commission. "There should be adequate planning to make sure the space is used efficiently and to the best advantage."

Every non-legislative office except the offices of the governor and lieutenant governor leaves the Capitol. These include the secretary of state, who occupies four large rooms on the first floor and some basement space; the treasurer and the auditor, both with suites on the first floor and a series of scattered rooms in the basement.

Plans call for demolition of the Statehouse Annex, which currently houses the Attorney General and the Ohio Supreme Court. Both are moving into the $60 million, 41-floor tower.

The huge limestone blocks of the annex are being saved for repairs on the Capitol, built of matching blocks of Franklin County stone back in the Civil War era.

Members of the legislature are hopeful that each can have a private office and more secretarial help. They complain of the large volume of mail received at the Capitol instead of at home. Each House member has more than 100,000 constituents, each senator has three times that many.

The legislators say they need facilities to answer mail, receive telephone calls and meet with constituents—as well as a place to study legislation away from the confusion of public chambers where they often feel overly accessible to perennially talkative lobbyists and other favor seekers.

David Johnston, commission director, indicated he would name a committee of eight members to study Statehouse space utilization and facilities, Gray said.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Two divorces catch her in the middle

DEAR ABBY: My brother left his wife and five children and got a divorce. My close friend subsequently divorced her husband. It soon came out that my brother and my friend had been seeing each other for a few years before their divorces. They are presently living together and plan to be married soon. I hope they will find the happiness together they lacked in their former marriages, but there is a problem:

I have always been very close to my brother's wife, and I adore the children. My brother says that his ex-wife is no longer a part of the family, and that if I want to see the children I should do so when he has them for visitation. Brother says that if his ex-wife is invited to any family gatherings, he and his wife-to-be will not come.

I don't want to have to choose whom to invite to my home for a family affair, but I am told that since my brother is closer to me than his ex-wife, he should not have to stay away. During the holidays, I invited everyone and left the decision up to those who wanted to come, but there was side-choosing and ill feelings so I cancelled the party. My own children are being denied associating with their cousins, and remaining neutral is not easy. Please help.

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Your brother divorced his wife, you didn't, so don't let him dictate who you shall have in your home. Ask everyone you want, and if Brother doesn't want to come, let him stay away.

DEAR ABBY: Several of us have a question to ask to which we have been unable to find an answer.

When a married man is invited to be a guest speaker for a women's club (business or social), what about his wife?

The affair is usually held in the evening at a motel or hotel beginning with a dinner. What is the speaker's wife supposed to do while her husband is being fussed over by a bunch of women?

I feel that if a club can't afford two meals, they should get speakers from their membership.

Also, what if the meeting is out of town over a weekend? Don't you think the speaker's wife should be invited too? Please straighten us out on this. A

CLUB DIVIDED

DEAR CLUB: It is customary when inviting a speaker to let him know that his wife is welcome, too. If this courtesy is omitted and the speaker wants his wife to be included, he should say so. Weekends? Absolutely -if the budget permits.

DEAR ABBY: To the lady who was 30 and recently divorced and wanted to know where to go to meet men. Here's what I did at age 36 and newly divorced:

I called around to all the churches (all denominations) and got information on all the religious and social gatherings in churches sponsored for singles in my age group. Then I made a list and took turns visiting all the churches. It took alot of courage to go to so many strange groups alone, but it paid off because at the Unitarian church I met just the man for me. We have been happily married for 15 years.

HAPPY IN HOUSTON

DEAR HAPPY: Some people go to church to pray. Others go to pray they meet someone. To each his own.

Quality of loans worrisome

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As consumers find themselves caught in the pincers of rising prices and shrinking buying power, credit officers are growing a bit apprehensive about the quality of their loans.

Similar conditions in the past almost always have caused the number of "slow pay" accounts to rise automatically, and almost nobody expects this year to be an exception. Evidence of deterioration already is clear.

What makes this year's situation potentially critical is the likelihood that inflation will continue unabated or at a high level for many months more, possibly accompanied by a deteriorating economy.

The worst situation seems to exist in mobile home loans, where delinquencies for the January-February period rose sharply to 4.34 per cent, and repossessions averaged 7.21 per 1,000 loans.

The American Bankers Association, which made the report, considers a loan delinquent when a payment is more than 30 days overdue. However, some merchants and lenders also report deterioration of nondelinquent accounts.

William Ford, ABA chief economist, said the delinquency ratio for all installment loans rose to a record high of 2.69 per cent, breaking the previous high of 2.53 per cent set in the final two months of 1973.

The situation in the home mortgage area is less clear. While the Mortgage Bankers Association reported delinquencies for the final quarter of 1973 at a 20-year high, savings and loan associations found little or no increase.

The mortgage bankers said 4.7 per cent of its loans were a month or more past due in the final three months of the year, topping the previous high of 4.65 per cent in the comparable period of 1972.

The U.S. League of Savings Associations reported, however, that "The recent runaway inflation appears to have had no appreciable effect on the regularity with which the American family pays its mortgage payments."

It reported that loan delinquency for the first quarter of 1974 was only .82 per cent, or less than 1 per cent of all its loans outstanding. A year ago the rate was almost identical.

The savings associations use a much more liberal measure of what constitutes a delinquency, at least from the borrower's point of view. In its compilations a loan isn't delinquent until it is 60 days overdue.

These are the delinquency ratios compiled by the ABA for various types of installment loans:

Personal, 3.24 per cent of outstanding loans, up 6 per cent from the previous two-month period; mobile homes, 4.34 per cent, up 23 per cent; property improvement, 2.20 per cent, up 20 per cent; direct automobile loans, 1.66 per cent, no change; indirect auto loans (through auto dealer), 2.55 per cent, up 8 per cent.

During the past two decades, deaths from accidents among preschool children in the United States decreased only half as rapidly as deaths from disease.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's rare for a major company to invite viewer comments on a show it sponsors. It's even rarer for the company's board chairman to go on TV to help out with the corporate invitations.

But in the case of E.M. deWindt and his firm, the Eaton Corp., it's resulted in what the company says is more than 10,000 viewer letters on just two hour-long programs.

The shows were the opening salvos in CBS' "The American Parade," a 13-part series of historical programs the network will air through 1976 to help celebrate the American bicentennial.

The first show, "We, the Women," narrated by Mary Tyler Moore, aired March 17. The second, "Power and the Presidency," narrated by George C. Scott, was broadcast last Wednesday.

At the end of each, deWindt appeared on camera, made a brief speech about the show and asked viewers to share their thoughts about the show with the series' sponsor, Eaton Corp.

Then an off-camera announcer gave the address of the Cleveland-based company, which manufactures truck, auto and industrial vehicle components.

The mail response to "We, the Women" was nearly 10,000 letters, according to an Eaton spokesman who said the second show drew more than 500 letters over the weekend "and the mail is still coming in."

DeWindt, who estimated that 50 per cent of the mail was addressed to him personally, said the idea of going on camera initially surprised him when it was brought up.

"I don't think I'd thought very much about it because this whole package was really tied to the bicentennial celebration," he said.

He got in the act, he added, because "I think we were trying to personalize it and get people involved in the spirit of the bicentennial. And I think we were particularly anxious to find out if we were hitting the mark."

Does he feel more top business executives should appear on television as spokesmen for shows their companies are sponsoring?

"Well, I don't advocate it but I'm not against it," deWindt said. "It depends on what the company may be trying to accomplish."

Mysterious 'red box' mentioned

"Have they found the box yet?" the President asked, according to his Watergate tapes transcripts.

Dean: "(Then Acting FBI Director L. Patrick) Gray has never had access to the box. He is now going to pursue the box ....

Haldeman: "The latest public story was that she handed it over to Edward Bennett Williams."

Dean: "That is right."

Haldeman: "The Bureau ought to go into Edward Bennett Williams and start questioning him and have him tied up for a couple of days."

Nixon: "Yeah, I hope they do. The Bureau better get over pretty quick and get that little red box. We want it cleared up. We want to get to the bottom of it. If anybody is guilty over here we want to know."

Haldeman: "It will probably be in the news."

Edward Bennett Williams is the well-known attorney, but there is no hint to the identity of the woman involved—or as to what the "little red box" was all about.

Mrs. Parsley attends AAUW meet

Mrs. Edith Parsley, president of the local American Association of University Women, attended many of the sessions of the 23rd biennial conference of the northeast central region Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Indianapolis, Ind. The conference took place in the Indianapolis Hilton Hotel.

The region is composed of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. The keynote address was given by Mrs. Mary S. Coleman, the first women to be a Supreme Court Justice in Michigan. A former Miss Maryland, she spoke to over 400 women on "Are You a Sleeping Beauty?" She challenged all to influence the difficult choices facing a changing world in 'Shaping Tomorrow-Today.' She stressed the need for study of current problems in the areas of environment, consumer needs, family life, the court system (especially juvenile courts), education, and the rules and rights of men and women. She quoted Justice Holmes "It is not enough to know where you stand, you must know where you are going."

The northeast central region of AAUW has been very interested in the Great Lakes Basin Commission since 1972, and represents the only organized public view point. At the conference, it was voted to continue this pilot project - the Great Lakes Task Force.

Strawberry Shortcakes

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES—They're served the old-time way, with "pour" cream.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Nowadays cooks are likely to make individual biscuits for strawberry shortcake rather than to bake the biscuit dough the old-fashioned way, in one large round pan. This new custom evolved because only the number of biscuits to be served at a particular meal need be filled and topped with the berries whereas the big strawberry-doused shortcake doesn't hold over. Because in the following recipe the biscuits are made with solid white vegetable shortening, we've added grated orange rind for flavor; they're medium-rich with soft thick insides. In some families the traditional New England way of serving strawberry shortcake with "pour" cream still prevails, as called for in this rule.

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES

2 pints strawberries
Honey
1¾ cups unsifted flour, stir to aerate before measuring
3 teaspoons baking powder
¾ to 1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
Grated rind of medium orange, about 2 teaspoons
1-3rd cup shortening
¾ cup (about) milk
Butter, soft
8-ounce container heavy cream

Rinse strawberries in cold water; drain, hull and slice; mix in ¼ cup honey; let stand at room temperature or refrigerate. In a large mixing bowl thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, salt, sugar and orange rind; with a pastry blender cut in shortening until particles are tiny. With a fork, stir in enough of the milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on a floured pastry cloth and knead 6 times. Roll or pat dough to ½-inch thickness; using a 3-inch round cookie cutter, cut into 8 biscuits. Place well apart on ungreased cookie sheet; bake in a preheated 450-degree oven until golden brown —12 to 15 minutes. At once split hot biscuits; spread inner surfaces with soft butter and honey; place cut sides up on dessert plates; fill with some of the sliced strawberries and replace biscuit tops. Spoon remaining berries over top of shortcakes. Spoon 2 tablespoons cream around each biscuit. Serve at once. Makes 8 servings.

Celery pleases dieters

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Over the past half-dozen years increasing numbers of calorie-watchers have been made aware that celery is a low-calorie vegetable worth having in the refrigerator. The raw vegetable, nibbled out of hand, can stave off an appetite for richer food. But celery is also excellent cooked, and recently we came upon an interesting new recipe for doing just that.

In this preparation the French seasoning combination called mirepoix is used with wedges of celery and ovenbraised. Mirepoix is a mixture of carrot, onion and celery (and sometimes ham) seasoned with thyme and bay leaf and cookied until tender in a little butter. Its classic use is in meat, poultry, fish and shellfish dishes, as well as in certain sauces, to enhance flavor. When we tried it with the braised celery wedges, we thought it made a pleasing partner.

CELERY MIREPOIX

1 stalk celery
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup diced pared carrots
¾ cup minced onion
1 chicken bouillon cube
½ cup boiling water
½ teaspoon dried thyme
1 bay leaf

Trim tops from celery so that stalk is about 6 inches long. Run a swivel-blade vegetable peeler down the outside ribs to remove any coarse strings; pare the root end. Cut stalk into 6 lengthwise wedges. Rinse the wedges under cold running water, gently holding the ribs apart to wash but not detach them from the root end.

Remove leaves from tops; dice enough of the tops to make 1 cup. Refrigerate leaves and any remaining tops and use in some other dish.

In an 8-inch skillet over low heat melt the butter. Add diced celery, carrot and onion; cover and simmer, stirring often, until tender. Spread over bottom of an 11¾ by 7½ by 1¾ inch glass baking dish or similar utensil; top with celery wedges.

Dissolve the bouillon cube in the boiling water; add thyme and bay leaf; pour over celery wedges. Cover tightly with foil and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until celery wedges are soft — about 55 minutes. Serve hot.

Makes 6 servings.

Hearty and nutritious breakfast food: oatmeal pancakes (made from scratch) with sliced ripe bananas added to the batter. Serve with butter or margarine and maple syrup.

The commonest illness in the world is coryza or the common cold.

The American flag, which is to be presented at the Bloomingburg Cemetery by the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, will be presented on Thursday, May 9. GAR members are urged to be present.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Bertha Wilburn, 1029 N. North St., has returned from Arlington, Tex., where she visited with her son-in-law and daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Grooms and daughter, Kelli. While in Texas, Mrs. Wilburn and her family traveled to southern Texas and on to Mexico. They visited the Market Place in Nuevo Laredo, Mex., the Mission of San Jose, Alamo, Lone Star Brewery, and the River Walk in San Antonio. On the return trip, they saw the LBJ Library in Austin. In San Antonio they met and talked with famed country singer and western guitarist Chet Atkins.

Recipes sometimes call for "greasing and flouring" a pan. To do this, use a piece of paper toweling and rub solid white shortening over the entire inside surface of the pan; then sprinkle the greased surface with flour, shaking the pan back and forth to coat evenly. Finally, invert the pan and gently knock the bottom to remove excess flour.

A pound of apples (three to four medium) will yield about 1½ cups of applesauce.

Rotarians hear review of district conference

A report on the Rotary District No. 667 conference, held last weekend, was heard by members of the Washington Rotary Club during their regular weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Country Club.

More than 450 Rotarians, their wives and foreign exchange students attended the conference, hosted by the Washington C.H. club Saturday and Sunday at Kings Island Inn, north of Cincinnati.

Phil Grover, club president, said the event was one of the most outstanding district conferences held in a number of years.

District Gov. Robert Haigler, of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club who presided over the conference, said he wasn't at all surprised with the success since the club here is the best one in the district.

DISTRICT 667 includes 46 clubs and more than 3,000 members in the southwestern quarter of Ohio. The district includes clubs in Cincinnati, Dayton and Springfield, stretching as far north as Piqua.

Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, who served as the conference chairman, singled out various committee chairmen during the meeting who assisted in making the conference such a success.

It was announced during the business meeting that Bruce Galloway, who was recently elected as a new member of the club's board of directors, has resigned from the position. The board announced that it has appointed James Hanawalt to fill the vacancy created by Galloway's resignation. Hanawalt will become the club's sergeant-at-arms in July.

KEITH M. BREWSTER, administrator of the Ohio Masonic Home in Springfield, was the guest speaker for Tuesday's meeting.

Brewster said there are 40 Masonic homes in the country, and the facility at Springfield has about 500 Masons as patients.

He noted that the average length of stay is five years and that 82 is the average age of the patients. Residents of the facility pay what they can afford, and care is provided by the home's staff.

The guest spaker also spoke about the drastic change in medical care over the last 20 years. He said nothing has been able to fill the need, although there are bills presently before Congress proposing a National Health Care program.

Glenn Hemsworth arranged the program.

Student guests were Don Wheat, of WSHS, and Steve Tarbutton, of MTHS. Visiting Rotarians were Merrill Kaufman, of Delaware, Darrell French, of Wilmington, and Jerry Ardrey, of London. Guests were Bill Mathison with Bill Williams, Richard Kern with Don Pierce and David Six with Hemsworth.

Nixon was against Ervin panel probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate hearings brought full public attention to the scandal, but only a month before they began, President Nixon told aides privately: "I don't think the committee hearings will ever go forward."

Later the same day, April 17, 1973, he said: "I don't want the damn Ervin committee to go forward."

Nixon believed Agnew liked Presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frustrated by the Watergate affair and angry over press reports concerning it, President Nixon once said "I sometimes feel like resigning" and letting Vice President Spiro T. Agnew "be president for a while."

"He'd love it," Nixon said.

According to transcripts of taped conversations released by the White House, the remarks were made on April 27, 1973, in Nixon's Oval Office, with Deputy Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen and White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler present.

Agnew had not yet been implicated publicly in the Maryland graft investigation that eventually would lead to his own resignation 5½ months later.

Cincy vice mayor quits in vice probe

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Vice Mayor Gerald Springer, whose sudden resignation sent shock waves through local political circles, said Tuesday he was stepping down because "the public has a right to expect very high standards of its officials and I feel I have violated that standard."

Springer was to become the youngest mayor in Cincinnati history in December. He is a Democrat.

The 30-year-old attorney has been linked to a vice investigation involving his visits to a northern Kentucky health club which allegedly fronted as a prostitution operation.

Springer admitted at a Tuesday news conference that he had made two visits to a Ft. Wright, Ky., motel where the health club was located.

Both visits were paid by check, he said.

He said he engaged in activities "which, at least to me, are questionable."

Springer said the actions "weighed heavily on my conscience" and prompted him to contact the FBI. He said he "voluntarily answered all inquiries of what I had done and of what I had knowledge."

He said he will be better able to confront "this situation as a private citizen."

The prostitution trial is under way in Covington, Ky., federal court.

He said he went to the FBI when he heard of the investigation into the health club.

Springer, a New York native who entered politics four years ago, was one of the top vote getters in the past two city council campaigns.

Cincinnati council selects the mayor from its ranks. The city also has a city manager and the mayor's position is largely ceremonial.

Springer rose rapidly after an unsuccessful but surprisingly strong showing against U.S. Rep. Donald Clancy in 1970. Springer was in his second two-year term.

He said he had visited several health clubs in Cincinnati "on a number of occasions. These were solely for legitimate purposes. To the best of my knowledge, no club in Cincinnati which I visited was engaged in any improper or illegal activities."

"I believe the interest of the public is best served by my resignation until such times as the air has been cleared," he said.

He added that he hoped to someday "return to public life."

Negotiations slated in Ohio U walkout

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Negotiations are scheduled to resume Thursday between student employes and administrators at Ohio University on selection of bargaining agents for student workers.

School officials prefer one union organization to represent the estimated 2,000 student workers, while Student Workers Union leaders wanted to divide employes into five bargaining units.

About 250 members of the SWU struck last week. When they ended the strike, OU President Claude Sowle agreed to an immediate five cent salary hike, a similar hike next year, and an election to determine a contract bargaining agent.

In a case reported in 1888, a 15-year-old female patient yawned continuously for a period of five weeks.

Paint Creek Lake manager selected

GREENFIELD — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has named a new manager for Paint Creek Lake, just south of Greenfield. He is John W. Lovell, who comes here from the John W. Hannagan Dam at Haysi, Va.

Lovell's actual title is resource manager, since the job covers not only flood control operations for which the lake was built, but also management of the lake, the acreage around it, wildlife management and other chores.

He will operate the recreation part of the management area until the state of Ohio takes over and then will continue to supervise the recreation since the Corps will still own the lake and land area.

The manager, a 20-year veteran, was formerly at Derven Lake, Ky., Greenup (Ky.) Lock and Dam on the Ohio River and Lock No. 30 on the Ohio River. He is residing in Greenfield.

IT NOW APPEARS that Paint Creek Lake will be stocked with fish next year following a meeting held in Greenfield with State Sen. Harry Armstrong, of Logan, and three representatives of the Ohio Division of Wildlife.

It was explained that stocking programs in Ohio in past years have not been successful, and the no-stocking plan at paint Creek Lake is an experiment to assist in reaching decisions on stocking other Ohio lakes.

Paint Creek Lake will be allowed to stock itself with fish which presently are in feeder streams. According to a recent survey, there are a number of breeder bass in the waters and because of the fertility of the creeks and lake the fish should stock the lake rapidly.

After the lake is stabilized, a decision will be made about whether to stock the lake, and if so, with what type of fish.

Certain bugging remains mystery

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon feared in April 1973 that his counsel, John W. Dean III, might reveal a certain bugging.

Nixon said "I feel uneasy" that Dean might "go popping off about everything else that is done in the government, you know, the bugging of the ...."

But the transcript of a meeting among Nixon, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman doesn't identify the site of the eavesdropping effort.

Town meeting set Thursday

The first in a possible series of old-fashioned town meetings will be held for residents of the city's Third Ward at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Belle Aire Elementary School.

The town meeting session has been planned by the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce's public relations task force in an attempt to better inform area residents of items of local interest and also to provide an opportunity for business and related groups to show their respect of the populous.

City Manager Dan Wolford, representatives of the Washington C.H. police and fire departments, Darrell Clark, owner of Clark's Cardinal Store, Paul Johnson, of Armco Steel Corp.'s Metal Products Division plant in Washington C.H., Edwin M. Nestor, superintendent of Washington C.H. city schools, and Robert S. Rochester, editor of The Record-Herald will serve as panelists.

Chamber President Fred Domenico will serve as the panel moderator and will field questions from the audience. An opportunity for those in attendance to submit written questions also will be provided.

New minimum wage bill effective today

For all employes covered prior to 1966 (present rate $1.60), May 1, $2; Jan. 1, 1975, $2.10 and Jan. 1, 1976, $2.30.

For employes first covered in 1966 or 1974 (present rate $1.60), May 1, $1.90; Jan. 1, 1975, $2; Jan. 1, 1976, $2.10 and Jan. 1, 1977, $2.30.

For agricultural employes (present rate $1.30), May 1, $1.60; Jan. 1, 1975, $1.80; Jan. 1, 1976, $2; Jan. 1, 1977, $2.20 and Jan. 1, 1978, $2.30.

There will be a phaseout of the minimum wage and overtime exemption for small retail and service establishments (those with annual sales of under $250,000) which are part of a larger enterprise, such as a chain, which grosses in excess of $250,000 annually. The test for coverage of such a small retail or service establishment will drop to $225,000 on Jan. 1, 1975, to $200,000 on Jan. 1, 1976 and will be eliminated on Jan. 1, 1977.

Mitchell study brought quote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Observing that a trial of John N. Mitchell would take a long time but that the former attorney general would never plead guilty in the Watergate affair, President Nixon asked on April 17, 1973, "What would you do if you were Mitchell?"

"I think I would probably go to Saudi Arabia to tell you the truth," replied Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen.

"Poison," mused Nixon.

Cash for rail service study eyed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— State Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese says his special rail transit committee will probably request funds from the Ohio General Assembly in a couple of weeks for detailed studies of a proposed rail passenger link between Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati.

Calabrese said Tuesday that although the energy crisis appears to have lessened, "it is still crucial that we establish mass transit programs."

The committee heard several rough cost estimates on the proposed three-city rail link from Amtrak and Penn Central Transportation Co. officials during a hearing here Tuesday.

Bruce Miller, a Penn Central engineering executive, said it would cost $22 million to upgrade present tracks on the Cleveland-Cincinnati route to handle 60-mile-per-hour traffic.

He said to make the track usable at 79 m.p.h. would cost $37 million, and to boost the speed to 100 m.p.h. would cost $60 million.

Amtrak officials appearing at the hearing concurred with Miller's estimates and said purchases of rolling stock and maintenance would boost costs much higher.

David Watts, director of state and local affairs for Amtrak, said that for rehabilitation of passenger lines and equipment in the "northeast corridor" from Boston to Washington, "they're talking about an overall total of $500 million, and they think that may not be enough.

"So you see you're looking at big money," Watts added.

He said that before Amtrak would take over operation of the Ohio run the national rail passenger service would require a contract from the state guaranteeing a subsidy to cover operating losses.

Calabrese, D-Cleveland, questioned the figures and said that if other committee members agree he will ask the Legislature for $100,000 to hire a "qualified consultant."

"We'll have to go it ourselves," he said. "You can't get the answers from these people."

He said he hopes a solid proposal can be developed for state and federal funding to reestablish passenger rail service between the cities.

Questioned about a timetable for getting high-speed passenger service in operation, Watts said "if they started work immediately, operations might begin by the end of 1976 or the end of '77."

Miller said it would be possible "to start passenger service tomorrow, if you don't mind taking eight or nine hours to get to Cincinnati."

He said there are many stretches on the line at present where speed limits are 10, 20 or 30 miles per hour because of the track conditions.

Bad news bared for U.S. farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) —The government had mixed news for the consumer on Tuesday as it documented some bad news many farmers already realized.

The Agriculture Department's monthly report on prices farmers receive for their raw products showed a decline of 6 per cent by April 15. It came on the heels of a 4 per cent fall from mid-February to mid-March after three months of winter recovery.

The mid-April price index's decline was the worst since last autumn. The highest food prices since the end of World War II were recorded in August, but in the next three months farm prices fell 8 per cent, 4 per cent and 1.5 per cent.

But the expenses farmers incur for operations, living expenses and taxes have risen 16 per cent in the same period, the report showed, eating up any improvement in their financial status to the point where another index showed they are at the same income-versus-costs point as they were this time a year ago.

For consumers — including farmers who purchase groceries, clothing, and feed — the report's significance was not so immediately clear.

On the one hand, a drop in the price of raw farm products should bring a drop in both wholesale and retail food prices. But those decisions are up to the middlemen who buy the goods at the farm level, process, package, deliver and sell them on the grocery shelves. Price changes have a traditional lead time of about three weeks.

Although the Tuesday reports show a five-tenths of one per cent decline in the prices farm families paid for food in mid-April, the latest USDA statistics show a continuing upward swing since October in the margins middlemen are taking from the retail prices of food.

The report showed price increases among the major crops for only potatoes and cotton, which went up 5 per cent from mid-March to record level 116 per cent above a year ago.

Oil pipeline closing down

OIL CITY, Pa. (AP)—An oil pipeline company here, once part of John D. Rockefeller's mighty Standard Oil Trust, is permanently closing its main lines. The firm blames an expensive state antipollution order.

The shutdown of National Transit Company's two main lines will take six weeks, said Thomas L. O'Shea, a one-time company ditch digger who worked his way up to vice president for operations.

The two lines, which have carried crude oil from Ohio and West Virginia to northwestern Pennsylvania, have been polluting state waterways, according to state charges.

National Transit, owned by Pennzoil Co., will remain in business, operating about 2,000 small lines transporting oil from private wells to truck tanks; and an oil distribution center in Bradford.

Both O'Shea, in a telephone interview, and the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources agree the pipelines leak. In 1971, the department ordered the company to pay $2,500 annually for five years to cover prospective damages from leaks. This eliminated the need for assessments after each new leak.

Man fined, jailed following ruckus

A Bloomingburg man who had been arrested by city police was found guilty of disorderly conduct in Municipal Court Tuesday. He had pleaded no contest.

Acting Judge John P. Case sentenced Dewey T. Keaton, 29, to 10 days in jail and fined him $100.

According to the police report, Keaton was involved in a domestic quarrel when officers arrived. Persisting after the officers' arrival, he was placed under arrest and fled. He then struggled with the officers as they attempted to handcuff him and had to be forced into the patrol car.

Governor's Conference on Aging May 22-23

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Statewide nutrition programs and other senior citizens programs will be discussed at the 1974 Governor's Conference on Aging May 22-23, Gov. John J. Gilligan announced Tuesday.

The governor also proclaimed May Older Americans Month in Ohio during a visit to the Linton Gardens Senior Center.

Traffic Court

Acting Municipal Court Judge John P. Case ordered that a Lancaster man's operator's license be suspended for six months Tuesday after the defendant was found guilty of driving while intoxicated.

Donald W. Morris, 34, also was fined $200 and sentenced to 30 days in jail, 27 of which were suspended. He had been arrested by city police for driving while intoxicated and then refused to take a breathalyzer test to determine his blood alcohol level.

Under the law, Morris is subject to a six-month suspension of his license for refusing the test, even if he is not found guilty of the charge.

Ninteen other persons were scheduled to appear on traffic charges.

ALBERS FOOD STORES

OUR NEW MEAT LABELS HELP YOU BE A BETTER SHOPPER (AND SPEND LESS)

The food industry, in response to requests from the government and consumer groups, has adopted a standard program of meat identification. Albers supermarkets are among the first in this area to institute the program.

By reducing the number of cuts and eliminating many confusing and fanciful names, food shoppers will be able to make more valid comparisons . . . to select meats more wisely . . . to be sure of getting their money's worth . . . to prepare meats in the most economical and most appetizing manner

By referring to the Primal cut, homemakers can easily determine the best way of cooking any particular portion. Most standard cookbooks recommend preparation methods according to the primary cut.

Of course, meat grades are not changed. Albers continues to sell USDA Choice Beef and USDA Inspected Pork, Lamb and Poultry.

Words on the labels have changed but you can still be confident that Albers meats are second to none.

THE KIND OF MEAT (beef, veal, pork or lamb) IS LISTED FIRST.

THE PRIMARY CUT, or primal cut, such as loin, rib, chuck or round--indicating what part of the animal it comes from.

THE SPECIFIC PORTION ...roast, steak, chops for instance. Sometimes referred to as retail cut.

PAPER SMASHER — The upstroke baler at Cartwright Salvage can eat a truckload of paper before coughing up a 800 to 1,500-pound bale. Don Queen is shown here feeding the machine's giant jaws with cardboard cartons. The bales of waste paper are then shipped to mills in Southern Ohio to be reprocessed for commercial use.

WCH scrap paper helps feed mills

By GEORGE MALEK

Recycling of waste material has blossomed as a major aspect, especially in industrial areas, of the current movement to conserve national resources.

Yet, Washington C.H. has had a recycling operation since 1962 — before the trend became popular nationwide.

Cartwright Salvage, the Robinson Road trash collection center managed by Loren Cartwright, sends three truckloads of discarded paper products to mills throughout Southern Ohio each week.

Mills located in Lancaster, Circleville, Portsmouth, Cincinnati and Baltimore regularly receive bales of waste paper from Washington C.H.

"Most of what we are able to recycle comes from the downtown area, from paper drives and from newspaper collection points," Cartwright said.

HE EXPLAINED that the paper must be separated by grades. It is divided into such groups of newspapers, corrugated boxes and gloss finish paper, including magazines, cartoons and waxed papers. Paper sacks from feed, minerals and fertilizer also can be recycled.

It would be almost impossible, and certainly unprofitable, to shuffle through the coffee grounds, garbage, bottles and cans discarded by the average homeowner just to retrieve a few scraps of paper, he points out.

Downtown business places, however, discard almost entirely paper products. It is worthwhile to salvage and sort what is collected from them.

"Profitable", he observed, is a misleading word. Although paper is in brisk demand right now, most of the time he loses money on the recycling operation but not as much as in disposing of it by other means.

Cartwright explained that while the money received for the paper does not usually cover the cost of sorting, baling and shipping the material, the loss is not as great as the expense of hauling it 16 miles to the county landfill and paying the dumping fees. Thus, while not generating a profit, it is a means of reducing disposal costs.

THE PAPER is compressed into bales which range in weight from 800 to 1,500 pounds each. The finished bale is approximately six by three by four feet, or 72 cubic feet of paper. An average of 10 bales are turned out each day by the local firm.

Because the paper must be sorted it is never collected by the hopper-type trucks. These trucks crush their contents, making it very difficult to sort. The trash for recycling is collected in covered flatbed trucks.

Each bale contains approximately a fully loaded truck of waste paper. The bales are then sold through a broker to respective mills. The type of paper product processed by the mill determines which types of scrap it can accept.

Corrugated boxes can be remade into more boxes, and newspapers, can be recycled, but magazines and waxed cartoons usually are used in only the lowest grades of paper. Most of this type is sent to a Cincinnati mill which manufactures roofing materials. Only recently has this type of waste paper been useable at all.

ASKED about the function of the broker, Cartwright explained that it is actually the broker who sells the paper to the mill. "He consigns the paper from us and then delivers it to the mill in his own trucks", he stated.

"If I, or some other citizen, sent a truckload of paper to the mill, it wouldn't be accepted. They buy only from the brokers," he said. "You just can't get around the middle man". Metal has been recycled almost everywhere for years, Cartwright said, mainly because it has enough value to make it worthwhile. Even glass is now being recycled in some isolated instances.

However, since glass is difficult to retrieve and the quantity available in Washington C.H. is so small, recycling of the material in this area is not likely in the foreseeable future, he said.

As increasingly sophisticated techniques are developed more and more materials will become subject to recycling, and the chances to conserve resources as well as alleviate the burden on landfill operations will increase proportionately.

JUVENILE TRAFFIC

Lana Jo Michener, 17, daughter of Mrs. Phyllis Thomas, of Sabina, was adjudged to be a juvenile traffic offender following a hearing before Judge Rollo M. Marchant in Probate-Juvenile Court. Judge Marchant approved discipline imposed by her mother and no further disposition was made. The youth was arrested April 16 by city police for operating a vehicle with an unsafe bumper height.

John W. Anders, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Anders, 1123 S. Main St., was adjudged to be a juvenile traffic offender by Judge Marchant. The youth was arrested April 16 by city police for operating a vehicle with an unsafe bumper height and the court approved disclipline imposed by the youth's parents.

Robin C. Henize, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henize, Post Rd., was adjudged to be a juvenile traffic offender and Judge Marchant suspended the youth's operator's license for a period of 30 days. The youth was arrested April 12 by city police on a charge of speeding.

DIVORCE SUIT FILED

George H. Johnson, 716 S. Elm St., has filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court against Shirley J. Johnson, of New Holland, on grounds of neglect of duty and cruelty. The parties were married Feb. 24, 1962, in Chillicothe, divorced in Pickaway County in 1971 and remarried Nov. 26, 1972 in Washington C.H., according to the petition. The parties have no children. The plaintiff asks that a property settlement be determined by the court.

6 Demos vie for secretary of state's job

By HENRY HEILBRUNN
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Six Democrats, all but one of whom has worked in government before, seek the nomination for secretary of state in the May 7 primary.

On the Republican side, 67-year-old Ted W. Brown, the incumbent for the past 23 years, is unopposed.

William K. Brown is the sixth candidate. He is virtually unknown and is not campaigning actively, apparently relying on his "Brown" name for votes. The 53-year-old self-employed businessman claims he is a "conservative Democrat."

Kennedy, 36, won the nomination in 1970 with almost 60 per cent of the vote, but lost in the general election by 300,000 votes.

"We ought to do a better job trying to stimulate voting turnout through educational means," Kennedy said, who gave up his state liquor auditing job to run. "We have to put some kind of program together through voter education."

He has campaigned hard in Cleveland where he repeats his 1970 issues: mobile registration, door-to-door registration, reduction of residency requirement, mandatory voter registration and extention of polling hours.

Kennedy, who acknowledges he has a popular name, fought hard for a state party endorsement. Instead, Hall received the backing of the Democratic party, and substantial financial and strategic support.

But Hall, 32, is fighting an uphill battle for name recognition.

He never has run in a statewide campaign and until recently was unknown outside Montgomery County, where he was elected twice to the Ohio House and once to the Senate. His father was a former Dayton mayor.

"The current secretary of state has done nothing to bring Ohio election procedures into the 20th century," Hall tells voters.

"While other states have been modernizing election processes. . . Ohio has continued to plod along with outdated practices which have been perpetuated by the state's chief election officer," he said.

Hall campaigns to make uniform election laws throughout Ohio's 88 counties and standardize voting procedures.

"The corruption of Watergate has already infected the office of Ohio's secretary of state," said R. Kent Bell, 25, another candidate. "Ted Brown is a partisan Republican and should be defeated for the office."

Bell is chief deputy auditor for his father, Columbiana County Auditor Kenneth Bell. He is the youngest statewide candidate and is making his first try for elective office.

He said registration should remain in effect despite housing moves, biographical information should be distributed about all statewide candidates by the state and the legislature should review the secretary's decisions more carefully.

Miss Bingle, a former research director for the governor's office, tries to campaign in two counties a day on a $3,000 budget.

She pledged a comprehensive list of election reforms, including permanent registration and door-to-door registration. Miss Bingle, 30, packages her recommendations as a "right to vote" proposal.

"Ohio citizens lose their right to vote under the present haphazard administration and the lack of uniform and rational procedures from county to county and within counties," she said.

Thompson, 39, has held jobs with the Democratic administrations in both Columbus city government and state government.

A former examiner in the state auditor's office, Thompson was a candidate for treasurer in 1970. He placed third in a field of three.

"As secretary of state, I believe one of the most important functions should be to encourage people to vote and take a personal interest as well as his duty to head registration drives in our state," Thompson said.

If elected, he said he would extend voting until 9 p.m. "for all working people to have an opportunity to vote."

Polls now close at 6:30 p.m.

Youngsters salute May Day

With the help of an elementary art instructor and some young city students, the community education program has generated some interest in May Day.

Under Miss Shirley Carmichael, students in kindergarten through the third grade have been making cards to take or send to senior citizens and shut-ins in Washington C.H.

A list of more 400 names of senior citizens was compiled with the help of nursing home officials and seniors organizations.

More than 700 students have participated in making the cards during their art periods in school. Although it was not mandatory that the students mail the cards to the senior citizen whose name was given to them, many expressed a desire to do so.

"If just a little happiness can be brought into the lives of citizens who receive a card or a letter on May Day, the program will have been a success," said Hank Shaffer, program coordinator.

Twins upset scheduling

ELKHART, Ind. (AP) — Kindergarten teacher Mrs. Janice Horan received school board approval for maternity leave beginning Dec. 21. Then the doctor changed his mind and Mrs. Horan got the board to approve leave beginning Jan. 25.

The identical twins Jennifer and Colleen changed their minds and emergency board approval was given for maternity leave effective Dec. 29, the day the two girls arrived.

Gilligan aims campaign at November election

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John G. Gilligan, by his own admission, is "campaigning around the fringes" for a second term as Ohio's chief executive. The approach is deceptive.

For one, Gilligan is throwing his weight around in other races. And, for another, the calculated politics of office, he contends will pay off.

"My own campaigning has been minimal," Gilligan said "what time I've spent I've spent trying to help the rest of the ticket — Celeste, Hall, Metzenbaum."

Gilligan, in fact, arranged to stump the north the week before the with state Rep. Richard Celeste, D-5 Cleveland, the Democratic party's chosen candidate for lieutenant governor, and state Sen. Tony Hall, D-6 Dayton, its pick for secretary of state.

"According to the polls, I have a 98 per cent recognition factor in Ohio," Gilligan said. "Obviously, Celeste and Hall don't have anything approaching that.

"It's for them, though I don't know how much I could do," he added.

Then there's the sheer power of an incumbent. "He does enjoy access to the media," the governor acknowledged. "He has the ability to keep people aware he's around."

Take the report from the Governor's Task Force on Health Care in Ohio. It's on Gilligan's desk now, for public release just before the election.

"It was timed to come just before the election," Gilligan said.

Gilligan, 53, had by many standards a full political career behind him when he was swept into office in 1970. He won the 1969 election by about 350,000 votes.

The Cincinnati native taught literature at Xavier University for five years before being elected to the City Council in 1953. He served seven two-year terms.

In 1964, Gilligan was elected to Congress from Ohio's 1st District, but was defeated in a bid for re-election the next term.

He lost a race for the U.S. Senate in 1968 to William B. Saxbe, President Nixon's attorney general.

Gilligan acknowledges he's looking past the May 7 primary to the general election campaign, where he'll probably face either former Gov. James A. Rhodes or state Rep. Charles Fry, R-75 Springfield, candidates for Republican nomination.

"I think Rhodes is the most formidable candidate the Republicans could put up," Gilligan observed. "I think he's the one I'd like to run against."

In that case — and to a lesser extent against Fry—political records would be the important issue, Gilligan said.

"It's fairly easy to compare the performance of various programs," he said. "We'd look to his approaches to such things as mental health, environmental protection, education, taxation, ethics..."

And about Fry? "He was in office when Rhodes was governor, and he didn't say much then," said Gilligan.

Either way, said the governor, "it will be a contrast with the old and the new, a real chance for the people of Ohio to make a meaningful decision, to look at factual material not buried under campaign rhetoric."

Money, obviously, will be of little concern. Gilligan's campaign chairman, Peter O'Grady, told reporters weeks ago the governor would spend $1.5 million to get re-elected.

O'Grady last month reported receipts of $267,785 and expenditures of $148,420 for the period Oct. 1, 1973-April 8, 1974.

"I've long been a firm believer in the value of citizen involvement in political activities and campaigns," Gilligan said. "It's my conviction that given Watergate and given the now legal and self-imposed limits on campaign financing, the use of citizen volunteers will be even more important than ever.

"I'm spending the time I have to campaign attracting and activating and energizing volunteers."

Gilligan came in for some sharp criticism for his support of the Democratic party's candidate endorsement program — the same one that gave Hall, Celeste and U.S. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, party backing.

One of the key complainants was John Glenn, former astronaut and Metzenbaum's opponent May 7.

"I think that any party worth its salt should endorse candidates in a political campaign. Given the wide open primaries in Ohio, if a party does not get in and sift and recommend the most highly qualified, then we get into this silly name game."

A Glenn victory in May wouldn't mean that much to the process, Gilligan said. "But I think if both Celeste and Hall are beaten, or either one of them lose, it would seriously weaken the attraction of the endorsement procedure," he said.

"Of course, if both win, I think we've opened a new era of politics in Ohio," he added.

Nolan struggles against Gilligan

By CHARLES R. HORNICK
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — James D. Nolan is a politician who uses phrases that a mechanic might employ in expressing himself.

He isn't bothered by the fact that most people feel he has little chance of defeating incumbent John J. Gilligan in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor in the May 7 primary.

"I understand the nuts and bolts of government and how to make the gears mesh," said Nolan, a Cleveland nursing home operator.

He said his biggest problem is "getting people to realize that I'm running, that Gilligan has an opponent. But I think I'm starting to overcome that."

Another of his problems is that Gilligan has ignored him in the campaign, although the governor's aides occasionally have denied Nolan's charges.

"I'd like to debate Gilligan, but he won't debate," Nolan said. "It's tough to debate an empty chair."

He said his first priority if elected governor would be to reduce government spending.

"The present administration has gone off on adventurous frolics in spending that has proved very unsuccessful," he said. "It has not concerned itself with the serious problems of Ohio education, medical care for the aged and housing.

"We have to get back to what I call the bare bones of government. We have to redirect our priorities so there will be enough money for education and the other essential programs."

Nolan, the self-styled "poor man's candidate," celebrated his 52nd birthday April 18 at a 99-cent corned beef and cabbage dinner in Cleveland for Democratic senatorial candidate John Glenn. He brought along a busload of friends for the affair.

His chief weapon in the campaign is his mimeograph machine. For $300 a week he has bombarded Ohio newspapers and wire services with daily releases attacking the Gilligan administration on a variety of subjects, including government waste and high taxes. He also accused the administration of maintaining its own propaganda machine to enhance Gilligan's image.

"You can't buy the kind of publicity I've been getting for $300 a week," Nolan said. "How much would it cost to run advertisements in papers all over the state? Thousands of dollars."

Nolan, who is bald and short of stature, always wears a bow tie, explaining "I tie them myself."

He was born in Cleveland but grew up in Lorain and was once a steelworker. He served in the European Theater during World War II. He and his wife, Lillian, have three children.

Nolan was the Democratic party's nominee for secretary of state in 1966 but lost to Ted Brown, a long-time holder of the office. He ran unsuccessfully for lieutenant governor in 1970.

However, he probably is best known for his lawsuit that knocked out the Hanna Amendment which guaranteed every county in Ohio one seat in the General Assembly regardless of population.

The suit led to the "one man, one vote" ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, which required reapportionment of state legislatures on a population basis.

"The guy's wasting his time," a man said at a Parma Heights meeting where Nolan spoke in his campaign.

But Nolan is convinced he will beat the odds and win the gubernatorial nomination.

"Everywhere I go there is disenchantment with Gilligan," Nolan said.

See phase-out of LSH operations

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Dr. Kenneth D. Gaver, Ohio's outgoing director of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, believes there will be a phase-out of many of Lima State Hospital's operation in the next two years.

"I think that is quite clearly in the picture . . . ," he said. "It's clearly in the cards," he said, noting he didn't expect much of a change in the institution's role immediately.

Lima State Hospital is the holding facility for those judged criminally insane or mentally incompetent to stand trial at the time. Gaver would like to see the later go to other institutions.

Gaver is leaving his $35,000 post sometime in August to become commissioner of the Texas Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Sept. 1.

Although it is not a cabinet position as he had in Ohio, the post will pay around $50,000 a year in salary and other benefits, including a house, maid and utilities.

Gaver, at a news conference Monday, said Ohio had turned around its mental care operations since Gov. John J. Gilligan was elected three years ago.

The system, he said, has become oriented toward care of the mentally ill. He said most mental hospitals in Ohio were "a disaster" when he took over.

"While Ohio has come a long way, it still has a long way to go," he said. He said he will put his concept of smaller, community-oriented facilities into practice in Texas.

He said although Texas was ahead of Ohio in having fully accredited hospital type facilities, it was behind in the small hospital concept.

In the past three years, he said Ohio has improved not only patient care and overcrowding but has provided for an attendant on duty at all hospital wards at all times.

At Lima, he said, the population was down from 1,200 in 1971 to 750. He said the ideal population should be around 350 to 400.

Two charged by police in city crash

Three accidents were investigated by city police in the past 24 hours one of which involved two people who were both charged with traffic offenses.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported two accidents Tuesday.

A collision at 3:55 p.m. Tuesday in front of the Dairy Queen, 902 Columbus Ave., involved cars driven by Hershel S. Snyder Jr., 18, New Holland, and Dorothy Jean Foster, 52, of 528 Campbell St.

Snyder was charged with driving while under license restriction and Ms. Foster was charged by police with backing without safety.

Damage was minor.

A Fayette County man was charged by police with a traffic light violation at 1:24 p.m. Tuesday.

Ernest M. Wilson, 33, of 3249 Ford Rd., the man charged, was involved in an accident at the intersection of Market and North streets involving a car driven by Roger E. Kirkpatrick, 25, of 554 Washington Ave.

Police reported both Wilson's truck and Kirkpatrick's car severely damaged. Kirkpatrick claimed injury from the mishap but was not treated.

A PARKED CAR owned by Dorothy P. Schnell, 641 S. Fayette St., was moderately damaged when struck by an automobile driven by Pearl P. Melvin, 74, of 639 S. Fayette St.

Ms. Melvin explained to police she had dodged an oncoming auto while traveling on Oak Street, near the Fayette Street intersection, and collided with the Schnell car.

A rear-end collision at 4:50 p.m. Tuesday, involved a car driven by John W. Marcum, 27, Greenfield, and a truck driven by Lester L. Seymour, 42, Greenfield, on Ohio Rt. 753, near the Miami Trace Road intersection.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported minor damage to both vehicles.

Sheriff's deputies are investigating.

Public to judge campaign ethics

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The Fair Campaign Practices Committee is leaving judgement to the voters on the charges of unethical conduct being traded by U.S. Senator Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and his primary opponent, John H. Glenn Jr.

"As far as the committee is concerned, the case is closed," said Samuel J. Archibald, executive director of the committee. "I'm going to turn over the complaints with full details to the press and let the voters make up their minds as to who is right."

April stormy but still dry, records show

It was a stormy April but still a dry one, according to the monthly report prepared by Coyt A. Stookey, official weather observer for Washington C.H.

The precipitation total for the 30-day period at Stookey's recording station, 134 E. Ohio Ave., was only 2.91 inches — 1.08 inch below the over-the-years April average of 3.99 inches. (rainfall Tuesday afternoon and night will be reflected in the May figure.)

April rainfall brought the total precipitation for the first third of the year to 11.15 inches, a 1974 deficiency of 2.65 inches when compared with an average of 13.80 inches for the first four months of the year.

The April precipitation total last year was a soaking 6.34 inches, Stookey's records show.

Minimum daily temperatures for the past month ranged from a low of 30 on the 10th to a high of 62 on the 29th. Maximum daily temperatures ranged from a low of 42 on the 9th to a high of 83 on the 29th.

There was precipitation on 12 of April's 30 days, ranging from a trace on the 13th and 24th to .87 inch on the 2nd. Damaging winds were reported on both the first and 14th days of the month.

Here are the actual Washington C.H. precipitation figures for the year to date as compared with the established averages:

	Act.	Avg.
January	2.94	3.38
February	1.99	2.44
March	3.31	3.99
April	2.91	3.99
Totals	11.15	13.80

Local issues face many Ohio voters

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Along with three statewide constitutional amendments, a host of local issues will face Ohioans in Tuesday's election.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown's office said 60 bond issues, 71 miscelleanous questions and 366 tax levies would be on ballots somewhere in the state.

Local issues include 197 levy and bond issue requests from about one-fifth of the state's school districts. Last November there were 312 such issues on the ballot.

The Ohio Education Association said 119 of next week's requests are for additional operating millage.

The OEA said this was somewhat above average for a May primary and reflected the runaway inflation that has hit school districts.

The OEA also listed 28 renewal levies, nine permanent improvement levies and 41 school construction bond issues. Six of the bond issues are for new joint vocational school facilities.

Fifty-one of the additional money issues are for five mills or more, the OEA said. Eight are for eight mills or more.

Detention Center contracts OKd

CHILLICOTHE — Contracts have been awarded for the six-county South Central Ohio Juvenile Detention Center after receipt of an additional $65,000 in state and federal funds.

The six counties have agreed to make additional appropriations totaling $15,000 to complete funding for the $672,000 facility to be constructed northwest of Chillicothe.

Bids opened earlier this month were $80,000 greater than the construction money available for the project. These bids totaled $470,514.

The six counties will pay a total of $49,000 of the cost. The individual payments, based on tax valuation of each county, are Ross, $15,925; Pickaway, $14,259; Highland, $16,811; Jackson, $5,978; Pike, $3,871 and Vinton, $2,156.

In addition to the construction cost, the juvenile center district faces expenditures of $25,000 for equipment, $32,935 for architectural fees and $6,385 for contingencies.

Gas price boosts set

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Motorists througout Ohio will find gasoline prices six-cents-a-gallon higher at Sohio stations this morning, some dealers said Tuesday.

A Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) spokesman maintained that a price increase still was in the study stage, but some dealers said they had been told that gasoline delivered today would cost six cents a gallon more.

"It's likely that we'll make an announcment Wednesday, but I can't give you an exact figure," the Sohio spokesman said. But he conceded that the six-cents-a-gallon figure was "in the ballpark based on what I know about crude oil costs."

Marathon Oil Co. in Findlay said it was studying a price hike, but would wait to see what Sohio did.

"We've been a few cents under our major competitor (Sohio), and we'd like to stay under," a Marathon spokesman said.

Ashland Oil Inc. announced a five cents a gallon drop in gasoline prices. The company said the reduction was due to the end of the Mideast oil embargo and a lowering of foreign prices for crude oil.

Shell Oil Co. has announced a 4.8 cents a gallon increase.

AMC shines brightly on birthday

DETROIT (AP) — The candles on American Motors 20th birthday cake will be glowing doubly strong Wednesday as the auto midget celebrates with the only bright sales picture in the industry this year.

Auto industry sales are down more than 25 per cent and profits are way off — General Motors has reported an 85 per cent drop in first-quarter profits, Chrysler earnings are off 98 per cent, and Ford is down 66 per cent.

Meanwhile, AMC's sales are up five per cent, and the firm sees further improvement down the road. The company plans to release its first-quarter earnings report Wednesday.

With AMC's recent sales gains — largely because of its ability to meet the shift to smaller cars — the firm has increased its market share to 5.6 per cent on an annual sales rate of more than 400,000.

That's a big change since AMC was formed May 1, 1954, in a merger of Nash-Kelvinator Corp. and Hudson Motor Car Co.

"I think it's a matter of our being in the right place and the right time with the right product," says Roy D. Chapin, AMC chairman.

"One thing we've learned, we should specialize in the area where we do best," he adds. "It's being a company that really has a mission in life."

That mission is giving the public all the small-and intermediate-size cars it wants. As Chapin sees it, that means more happy brithdays for the company in the near future.

"I think we obviously will have a lot of competition, but I see no reason why we won't continue to move up, although not as dramatically as this year," he says. "The trend to smaller vehicles was tremendously accelerated by the energy crisis. That is not going to recur."

Chapin also attributes AMC's recent success to a "culmination of preparatory work during the preceding years" and its strongest dealership organization ever.

The little firm sold 118,000 autos for a 2 per cent share of the market in its first year two decades ago. AMC lost $11 million that year on sales of $416 million.

In 1973, AMC earned $44 million on revenues of $1.7 billion.

The firm's reliance on small cars goes back to its origins. In 1954 it was the compact Rambler, and now it's the hot-selling Hornet and subcompact Gremlin.

Company spokesmen say 93 per cent of the 6.7 million cars built by AMC in two decades have been small autos. And the firm announced Monday that it had acquired a million-squarefoot plant in South Charleston, W.Va. to increase small-car production.

AMC acquired the Jeep Corp. from Kaiser Industries in 1970 and formed AM General Corp. in 1971 to build buses and governmental vehicles. In the process its employment roles have swelled to 32,000 people in Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Ontario.

Even with its recent expansion into other vehicle lines, the small car clearly will remain the firm's forte.

"We think we do better with small cars than our competitors," Chapin says. "That's where we will continue to concentrate. It's our entire philosophy."

Automakers see better sales ahead

DETROIT (AP) — The Big Three auto makers, coming off sharp first-quarter profit declines, are forecasting an improved market for the remainder of 1974. But sales apparently won't bounce back to 1973 levels.

Ford became the industry's third loser Tuesday when it reported January-March earnings fell 66 per cent to $123.6 million from a record $361 million for the first quarter of 1973.

Worldwide sales of $5.5 billion were off 11 per cent from the same period in 1973, Ford said.

However, Ford's top officers predicted the second quarter would mark an improvement in the industry's sales picture.

Without citing specific sales figures, Ford Chairman Henry Ford II and President Lee Iacocca said, "We are encouraged by indications the U.S. auto market is beginning to turn upward."

Their forecast echoed predictions made by General Motors and Chrysler executives after those firms reported steep profit drops of 85 and 98 per cent, respectively.

Ford's earnings decline was less severe than its competitors' because of its penetration of the small car market, recently boosted by a sagging economy and consumer fears of gasoline shortages.

The most recent auto sales figures indicate the market is leveling off at sales about 26 per cent below 1973 figures, a slight improvement over the January-March period.

As of Oct. 31, 1972, there were 20,828 officers and 1,984 civilians in the police roster in New York. Chicago was next with 13,125 officers and 1,286 civilians.

Family grocery bills dip

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The family grocery bill dropped slightly during April, the second straight month of decline, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The pattern was the same as the one in March: Sales on meat and eggs offset steadily rising prices on items like sugar and milk.

The AP checked the price of 15 food and nonfood items in 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked at the beginning of each succeeding month, using standard brands and sizes or their nearest equivalents. Items not available on one of the check dates were not included in the marketbasket total.

The latest check showed the marketbasket total declined in eight cities during April, down an average of 3 per cent. It went up in the remaining five cities, generally about 1 per cent. The marketbasket total went down in nine cities during March.

Even with the decreases, grocery bills remained well above the levels of March 1973. The marketbasket bill was higher in every one of the cities on May 1, 1974, than it was 14 months earlier. The average increase was 13 per cent.

Sugar, which has been rising since late last year because of increased world demand and lower supplies, went up again. The price jumped in nine cities, was unchanged in three and down in one.

The average price of a fivepound sack of sugar at the start of May was $1.23, up 5 per cent from the $1.17 price last month and up 81 per cent from the 68-cent price on March 1, 1973.

Eggs were down and in seven cities a dozen medium eggs cost less than they did on March 1, 1973. The price declined during April in every city but Philadelphia, with an average drop of 18 per cent. Pork chops also declined in seven cities, down an average of 17 per cent.

Car fire smothered

A car fire in front of 1151 Columbus Ave. at 7:10 p.m. Tuesday brought Washington C.H. firemen who found the blaze had been extinguished by Horace Jacobs who threw a carpet mat over the motor.

Investigation disclosed that the fire had started from a backfire in the carburetor which had no air cleaner. There was no loss. The car, owned by Marsha Eggleton, was being driven by Kathy Gardner at the time of the incident.

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A patching material that can be applied like a piece of tape.

Manufacturers claim — That the material is a piece of fiberglass cloth impregnated with polyester resin that hardens into a waterproof, rigid, reinforced repair when explosed to sunlight or a sunlamp . . . that the damaged surface is first cleaned, after which a green liner is peeled from the 4 by 6-inch repair material . . . that the patch is then pressed against the wood, metal or fiber-glass surface, adhering on contact . . . that, once the patch has hardened, a clear top liner is peeled away, after which the patch can be sanded and painted to match the color and finish of the repaired surface . . . and that the patch may be used on many types of damage, including cracked fiber-glass shower stalls, gutters, downspouts and screens or any metal, wood or fiber-glass surface.

Manufacturer's claim — That the 16-inch by 10-foot plank is one-quarter-inch thick so that it can be installed over old walls or new framing . . . that, although it is two feet longer than most paneling, it is only one-third the width, making it possible for a home handyman to handle it without a helper . . . that tongue-and-groove edges simplify fitting . . . that concealed metal clips and wall-board adhesive assure a strong bond . . . and that the only maintenance required is an occasional damp wiping.

THE PRODUCT — A multi-purpose tool.

Manufacturer's claim — That the unit, with attachments, is designed to cultivate and pulverize soil, edge along sidewalks and gardens, rough sand metal and wood, scrape paint and rust, and wirebrush especially difficult projects . . . that the tool weighs only 4½ pounds, has a 2.4 amp motor and reciprocates attachments at 1,750 strokes per minute . . . that is double insulated, has a plastic housing with forward and rear handles for easy and safe control and features a new detachable cord concept which provides direct secure connection of the extension cord to the unit.

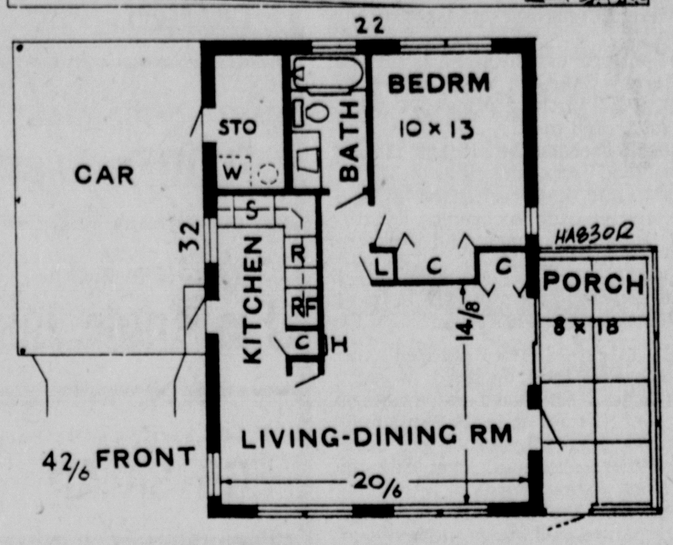
Manufacturer's claim — That the unit is for installation in standard, residential circuit breaker panels . . . that it is designed to provide protection against overload and short circuits . . . that it conforms to the recent updating on Jan. 1 of the National Electrical Code which says that all new 15-amp and 20-amp outdoor residential receptacles must have circuit interrupters, as well as those located near swimming pools and equipment used with storable pools.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS



A ONE-WAY SLOPE roof allows for a 10-foot-high ceiling along the street side of plan HA830R and a regular eight-foot-high ceiling along the garden side for the bedroom. The cross-ventilated living-dining area is entered through the 8 by 18 foot screened porch which acts as an extension of the living area as well as entrance. The L-shape kitchen counter is hidden from view in the living area. It has direct access to the carport. A separate storage area also is accessible from the carport. There are 704 square feet in the home, which was designed by Jan Reiner, 1000 52nd Street North, St. Petersburg, Fla. 33710. Anyone wishing to learn the cost of the blueprint can write to the architect, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — The paint on the outside of our wooden house is chalking in spots. Is it all right to apply latex paint over it?

A. — Generally, latex paint does not always bond well to chalking surfaces. When repainting with exterior latex, remove the chalk by scrubbing, sanding or steel wooling.

However, latex paint formulations have been improved so much recently, it is as well to read the label to see what it says about chalking. Or, if you wish, you can apply an oil-base paint over the old paint.

Q. — Why is heavy building paper put over a subfloor before the finish floor is installed?

A. — It prevents dust from working up through the finish floor, reduces air filtration from crawl spaces in basementless houses, retards moisture from rising through the floor from damp basements or from the soil in basementless houses.

Sound engineers say it also has some value as a sound deadener.

Q. — I'd like to apply a water stain to a wood floor to darken the color, but have been told that nothing with water in it should be put on a wood floor. Is that correct?

A. — Generally, yes. What you should use is an oil stain or a nongrain-raising stain.

Q. — I recently replaced the washer in the cold water faucet in our bathroom sink. It stopped the leak from the mouth of the faucet all right but now, every time the faucet is turned on, a few drops of water comes out from under the big nut on the stem under the handle. How can I stop this leak?

A. — Shut off the water at the valve under the sink or, if there isn't one, at the main shutoff valve. Remove the faucet handle. Loosen the nut by turning counterclockwise, If you put adhesive tape on the jaws of the wrench, there is less chance of damaginz the fixture's finish.

After the nut is loose, slide it up the stem and remove it. Inside it you will find packing (a stringlike material), which should be removed with an awl or other pointed tool. Put in new packing, then replace the nut and faucet handle. Turn on the water.

Q. — Aside from the fact that ball pein hammers have no claws on them to withdraw nails, how do they differ from ordinary hammers?

A. — A ball pein hammer is used principally for hitting cold chisels and for shaping metal. It has a slightly curved face with bevelled edges to facilitate its uses.

Dayco sues big firms

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Contending the two big firms drove it out of the tire business, the Dayco Corp. of Dayton filed antitrust actions Tuesday against the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. and the Firestone Rubber Co.

The complaint in U.S. District Court here seeks $30 million in damages from each company.

Dayco's allegations are similar to those made by the U.S. Department of Justice in antitrust actions filed last August against Goodyear and Firestone.

Dayco accused the companies of attempting to monopolize the manufacture and sale of replacement tires in violation of the Sherman Act. It contended those actions forced Dayco to sell its tire division in 1961.

Dayco manufacturers a variety of rubber and plastic-based component parts, primarily for industrial use.

Toll-free bridge set

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A ribbon-cutting ceremony was scheduled this afternoon at the Grant Bridge on the Ohio River — marking the removal of tolls on the span connecting South Portsmouth, Ky. and Portsmouth, Ohio.

Kentucky Gov. Wendell Ford and Transportation Secretary James Gray were to join in the ceremonies.

Ford and Ohio Gov. John Gilligan arranged the agreement, in response to recommendations from citizen groups and leaders in the two states who stressed that a free bridge would establish stronger ties between Portsmouth and nearby Kentucky communities.

Under the original bond payment schedule, the debt would have been paid off and the bridge made toll free late in 1975.

The ceremony was to take place in late afternoon after a parade from Kentucky to the Ohio side of the river.

Ohio gas allocation 452,364,780 gallons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio reported Tuesday that Ohio has been allocated 452,364,780 gallons of gasoline for May, or 91 per cent of the expected demand for the month.

An additional 14,237,580 gallons have been set aside for emergency use, the PUCO said.

Indictment returned against Circleville man

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— John W. King, 31, of Circleville, has been indicted by the Franklin County Grand Jury on six counts of larceny by trick in connection with an alleged beef investment fraud.

Franklin County Prosecutor George C. Smith said King is accused of getting $88,475 from six county residents for an investment program in which feeder cattle were to be bought, fattened and resold. Investigators determined the cattle were never purchased.

Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures
By SYD KRONISH

The accent is on youth as the Federal Republic of Germany and Berlin issue matching sets of four stamps each in tribute to the young people in front of the Iron Curtain.

The youth stamps have a theme based on "Youth Getting Together," according to the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The West German designs feature the following: Youth Building — 25-pfennig plus 10 brown, Youth Folklore — 30-pf plus 15 green, Youth Learns — 40-pf plus 20 red, Youth Explores — 70-pf plus 35 blue. The West Berlin adhesives portray: Youth and Photography — 20-pf plus 10 brown,

Youth and Sports — 30-pf plus 15 green, Youth and Music — 40-pf plus 20 red, Youth Helps — 70-pf plus 35 blue.

Also issued by West Germany is a single stamp honoring the 250th anniversary of the birth of philosopher Immanuel Kant as well as a pair hailing Europa.

All these stamps are available at your local dealer or stamp department.

THE U.S. Postal Service in conjunction with the U.S. Air Force Academy has issued a special postal cachet marking the 20th anniversary of the academy.

Those wishing to purchase the 20th anniversary cachet should send 35 cents in money order with their request on a piece of paper containing their name and address to: Postmaster, USAF Academy, Colorado 80840. All the cachets will be specially cancelled at the Academy Post Office.

The stamp to be used on the envelope is the 10-cent Crossed United States Flags.

FROM Western pop music to primitive African dances, the second Hong Kong Arts Festival will explore the world of music, art and theater. To honor this occasion, Hong Kong has issued three few stamps depicting Chinese masks. The values are 10 cents, $1 (HK) and $2.

Heading the impressive list of leading musicians is Andre Previn and the London Symphony Orchestra. East meets West as the Sydney (Australia) Symphony Orchestra performs under the batons of Japanese conductor John Hopkins and Israeli conductor Sergiu Commissiona. In addition to music there are dance groups, drama presentations and an art exhibit.

SPEAKING of art and culture highlighted on stamps, Italy will produce two beautiful stamp sets with an art theme later this year.

One set of five stamps will reproduce portraits of Italian painters Botticelli, Piranesi, Tiepolo, Veronese and Verrochio taken from self-portraits or paintings in Italian galleries.

Another set of three will show Italian fountains. They will be Immocalatella in Naples, Piazza Pretoria in Palermo and the Trevi in Rome.

ARE YOU GOOD at guessing? Well, here's your chance to guess with the stamp experts.

It's the fourth annual "Guessing Contest" sponsored by the American First Day Cover Society and you are asked to guess on the number of first day covers issued by the U.S. Postal Service for the block of four Continental Congress bicentennial stamps on July 4.

The prize, donated by the USPS, will be an official presentation album identical to those given to participants in the first-day ceremony in Philadelphia that day.

To enter, send your estimate, name and address on a postal card to: AFDCS Contest, 12 School St., Plymouth, N.H. 03264. Entries must be postmarked no later than July 4, 1974.

The person with the closest estimate to the official figures of the Postal Service will be the winner.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

There is no such thing as instant grass but there is a quick grass and that is what thousands will walk on when they attend Expo '74 at Spokane, Wash. The grass selected for the expected heavy tramp of feet starting May 4 when the fair opens is Fylking Kentucky bluegrass (Brand 0217).

While trucks, graders, cranes and workers are virtually crawling on the World's Fair site, the bluegrass is awakening where it was planted last summer in giant turf plots away from the construction.

As projects are completed on the 100-acre site, turf specialists move in and lay the Fylking turf and plant trees and flowers.

The architects, in evaluating turfgrasses for the fair, said they selected Fylking because "it is one of the most energetic oxygen producers available, requiring little care and having a greater disease and drought resistance. It flourishes with little or no weed disease control chemicals, and this adds up to the ideal grass seed to fit in with the basic theme of the fair, 'Celebrating Tomorrow's Fresh New Environment.' "

Expo '74 is on two islands and the north and south banks of the Spokane River. The architects want the site to reflect man's concern with the environment and to set an example to visitors from all over the world.

Heavy Maple Seeding

If your maple trees produce a large crop of seeds it may be a sign of weakness. Silver maples drop their seeds in spring and Norway maples near midsummer.

A tree expends great energy when it produces excessive seeds. This saps a tree's vitality. Feeding then becomes very important to pep up the tree's vigor.

Iron Deficiency

If your trees look pale and anemic, they may suffer from iron deficiency chlorosis, also known as trace element deficiency. Hold a leaf up to the light. If it is quite yellow yet has green veins, it is likely the tree has iron deficiency. The presence of an alkaline soil is another indication.

For plant growth, iron in small amounts is a necessary element, particularly in the properfunctioning of chlorophyll (the green coloring).

Absence of green coloring is called chlorosis. Iron chelate, a preparation of iron sulphate, has helped correct chlorosis. Be careful, however, because improper use may harm trees, shrubs and plants.

Tree Color Check

Foliage that doesn't look right is a tree warning. One trouble you can spot yourself is wetwood, or slime flux. An unsightly ooze is caused by gases from sap fermentation that builds up pressure in trees. A drain tube installation will usually relieve the pressure. The entire crown may die back if you ignore wetwood.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Photogenic Puppy

Irene was so captivated by her new puppy that she took him to a neighborhood photographer for a sitting. The pictures were knockouts. In fact, the photographer decided to sell copies to an advertising agency.

Learning of his intentions, Irene hastened into court for a stop order. And the court granted her request. The judge said that when a customer hires a photographer to take pictures, the pictures become the exclusive property of the customer.

This is the usual rule. While the photographer may retain possession of the negatives, he ordinarily has no right to sell copies without the customer's consent.

It is a different story, however, if the photographer, instead of being hired for the job, takes the picture on his own initiative. Consider this case:

Under these circumstances, a court held that the businessman — even though he bought several prints for himself — had no right to pass them along for use in a magazine.

A borderline case arose when a photographer was asked to take pictures of a high school graduating class. Was he entitled to the copyright?

Admittedly, the initiative for the picture had come from the students. Still, they had not promised him any payment at all. He could cash in only if the students should decide, afterwards, to order prints.

A court ruled that in all fairness, the copyright did belong to the photographer. Since he was taking that much risk, reasoned the court, he was entitled to that much reward.

Tiger hurler now 1-4

Lolich wins first against Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The hard-hitting Kansas City Royals normally would look forward to facing a pitcher who's winless in four decisions and has allowed 5½ runs a game. But not when his name is Mickey Lolich.

"I hate to catch a guy who is 0-4 like Lolich was," said Kansas City Manager Jack McKeon. "You know that a good pitcher's going to win sooner or later. You just know it ...."

If McKeon was worried before the game, he was convinced afterwards. Lolich, working mostly with off-speed pitches, scattered eight hits as Detroit dumped the Royals 7-2. Aurelio Rodriguez keyed the Tiger attack with two singles, a double and two runs batted in.

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels blasted the Boston Red Sox 16-6; the Cleveland Indians downed the Minnesota Twins 8-3; the Texas Rangers outlasted the Milwaukee Brewers 12-10; the New York Yankees edged the Oakland Athletics 4-3, and the Chicago White Sox shaded the Baltimore Orioles 2-1.

Lolich, a portly left-hander, has lost a little something off his fastball of late and has changed his style of pitching.

"I'm 33 so I throw a lot of sliders and a lot of knuckleballs. I had a good curve ball tonight but the velocity wasn't good," he said.

Angels 16, Red Sox 6

Indians 8, Twins 3

Charlie Spikes stroked a two-run single to extend his hitting streak to 19 games as Cleveland won its fifth straight. Fritz Peterson and Fred Beene, both acquired from the Yankees last week, combined on an eight-hitter. Bobby Darwin homered twice for Minnesota.

Rangers 12, Brewers 10

Jeff Burroughs, Jim Spencer and Cesar Tovar hit home runs for Texas. Burroughs and Spencer hit theirs consecutively in the eighth inning to put the Rangers ahead for good. Johnny Briggs drove in three runs for Milwaukee.

Yankees 4, Athletics 3

White Sox 2, Orioles 1

Ron Santo's first American League homer, a two-run shot, accounted for Chicago's victory. Stan Bahnsen tossed a seven-hitter for the White Sox, besting Jim Palmer. Bobby Grich singled home the lone Baltimore run.

Panthers fall to Chillicothe in sectional tourney opener

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

In the midst of a torrential downpour at Chillicothe's Yoctangee Park, the Miami Trace Panthers were sent home wet and empty-handed, as their opponents, the Cavaliers of Chillicothe, set them down on five hits and won the game 6-1. The loss opened Class AAA play in the sectional tournament.

Cavalier hurler Jon Foster stymied the Panther hitters on just five widely scattered hits, six strikeouts and only three walks. Foster worked all of his seven innings with ease and made just one mistake, a home run ball to opposing pitcher Tom Riley.

Riley, who also went the distance, gave up nine hits, six runs of which just four were earned, struck out four and walked only two. Aside from one inning, Riley and Foster threw almost the same type of game.

The Cavaliers got out of the blocks early in the first inning when leadoff batter Rex Blake reached first on an error. Center fielder Kirk Hitchens then proceeded to smash a long blast into left-center for a triple, scoring Blake. Cleanup hitter Mike Ratzlaff then hit a sacrifice fly to drive in Hitchens for the early 2-0 lead.

The third inning brought cloudbursts of two varieties; from the weather and from the bats of the Cavaliers. Right fielder Mark Shoemaker led off with a triple and Ratzlaff reached on a walk. After a groundout found Ratzlaff and Shoemaker on second and third respectively, shortstop Jeff Hall singled in both runners. Hall then tried to steal second and the ball was thrown into center field, enabling Hall to coast into third where he was driven home on a single by catcher John Street.

The rains came along with the fourth inning. It started in a light mist but changed to a steady downpour. By the time the game was over, the field had become a sloppy mess.

Chillicothe scored its sixth and final run of the game in the fourth when Blake singled, advanced to second on Hitchens' fly out and scored on Ratzlaff's double, giving him two runs batted in for the day.

The absence of run scoring beyond the fourth inning was due strictly to the rain, as it made the bats and balls slippery as well as the infield and outfield.

Chillicothe was also benefited by the doubleplay ball. The Panthers hit into three doubleplays, including one with two runners on base in the sixth inning, during the game.

Aaron homers in Braves' loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vic Raschi and Lynn McGlothen are from two different baseball eras, but Hank Aaron bridged their generation gap Tuesday night.

Babe Ruth was a seemingly unreachable 713 homers away on April 23, 1954, when Aaron started his homer brigade in St. Louis, belting No. 1 off Raschi.

Twenty years, 719 home runs and 1,399 extra base hits later, St. Louis was the site of another Aaron home run, this one served up by McGlothen.

"Why should I worry about his 720th," said McGlothen, who helped pitch the Cardinals to a 7-2 victory over the Braves. "He'd hit 719 of them before."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Houston Astros downed the Chicago Cubs 4-2; the San Diego Padres shaded the Montreal Expos 2-1; the New York Mets edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-7; the Philadelphia Phillies nipped the San Francisco Giants 6-5, and the Cincinnati Reds-Pittsburgh Pirates game was rained out.

Red Schoendienst has had to play and manage against Aaron. He has seen many of the 45 homers Aaron has hit off St. Louis pitching.

Astros 4, Cubs 2

The Astros scored 14 less runs than they did Monday night but still had enough to win the game.

Johnny Edwards' single knocked in Lee May with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning, sending the Cubs to their seventh loss in eight games.

Mets 8, Dodgers 7

The Mets frittered away a 6-0 lead, then held on to snap the Dodgers' seven-game winning streak.

Phils 6, Giants 5

Padres 2, Expos 1

Derrel Thomas doubled home the tie-breaking run in the sixth and Bill Greif teamed with Vincente Romo on an eight-hitter, pacing San Diego the victory.

Greif, 2-4, pitched into the ninth and Romo got the final two outs with the bases loaded, striking out Jim Lyttle and inducing Ron Hunt to ground out.

Warner's heroics give Bucks overtime win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Boston Celtics' pressure defense was all but impregnable for almost 52 minutes Tuesday night, but when a crack finally appeared Cornell Warner was ready.

Warner drove the lane for a pair of dunk shots, adding a free throw after the first one, in the last 34 seconds of overtime. His second basket gave the Milwaukee Bucks a 103-96 lead en route to a 105-96 victory, squaring their National Basketball Association championship playoff series at 1-1.

The Celtics battled from a 16-point deficit early in the third quarter to tie at 90-90 on two free throws by John Havlicek with 58 seconds left in regulation, the final points until the five minute extra period.

The Celtics had two more chances to win in regulation and thus take a 2-0 lead in the best of seven series back to Boston. However, Milwaukee's 7-foot-2 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar blocked a shot by Dave Cowens with 10 seconds left, and a jump shot by Havlicek rolled off the rim as regulation time expired.

The next two games will be in Boston, starting with game three Friday night.

The Bucks, leading 98-96, called time with 39 seconds left in overtime. Oscar Robertson passed inbounds to Warner near midcourt when play resumed. Warner wheeled past Paul Silas, drove the lane and stuffed in the game's biggest basket. Cowens, who scored 17 points and grabbed 11 rebounds, fouled out on the play and Warner converted the free throw.

"It was the biggest dunk of the year. Baby, what a play," Bucks' Coach Larry Costello shouted.

"It was a beautiful move, a move a player should react to instinctively," Costello said. "He's supposed to forget the play we called when that happens and take the basket. He had the basket."

The 6-foot-9 Warner, who scored only 11 points but contributed 13 rebounds—eight more than in the Bucks' 98-83 defeat Sunday—said he knew he could beat Silas as soon as he took Robertson's pass.

"I was supposed to give it back to Oscar, but he was covered," Warner said. "I saw the layup and just decided to take it."

Coach Tom Heinsohn said he was proud of his Celtics.

"We didn't play our best game and it still took an overtime to beat us," Heinsohn said. "In two games, we won one big and lost the second in an overtime."

Toledo press box damaged by squatters

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—University of Toledo maintenance men found they had some unanticipated repair work to do in the Glass Bowl press box when they opened it for spring cleaning.

They discovered a family of raccoons had taken up residence during the winter and had destroyed just about everything their teeth could chew.

Maintenance foreman Ron Beczynski said the mother and father raccoons had made a cozy nest for themselves and their five kits from cotton stuffing of folding leather chairs.

Bruins take playoffs from Black Hawks 4-2

By The Associated Press

And then there were three.

The Boston Bruins, behind a tie-breaking, third-period goal by young Gregg Sheppard in the final two minutes, defeated the Chicago Black Hawks 4-2 Tuesday night, won their Stanley Cup semifinal series four games to two and advanced to the National Hockey League championships.

Meanwhile, the Philadelphia Flyers moved a giant step closer to filling the other berth in the championship set by beating the New York Rangers 4-1 and taking a 3-2 lead in their semifinal.

Bruins Coach Bep Guidolin says he has no preference who makes the finals against Boston.

"I don't care who we go up against," said Guidolin. "Whoever you are going to meet is going to be good."

Sheppard broke a 2-2 tie with just 1:49 left in the game with his ninth playoff goal, taking a pass from Dallas Smith and beating Hawks goalie Tony Esposito. Phil Esposito wrapped it up with an empty net tally 33 seconds later.

The Rangers dominated the first period and the start of the second, but then Philadelphia took charge.

Flyers Coach Fred Shero said Terry Crisp, the Flyers' hustling center, was screaming on the bench during the second period about going all out.

Shero sent Crisp into the game, and the Flyers dominated the remainder of the action with their finest display of skating since the opening game of the series.

New York Coach Emile Francis said his team let the game slip away when it had a chance to break it open in the first period.

Pete Stemkowski scored the only goal of the first period at 6:16 to give New York a 1-0 lead. Bladon tied it at 6:39 of the middle period, then MacLeish put Philadelphia ahead with a long shot past goalie Ed Giacomin, with Gary Dornhoefer effectively screening Giacomin.

The Flyers' Dave Schultz broke a record in the first period when he amassed 17 penalty minutes to boost his total for nine playoff games to 96. The old NHL mark was 80 minutes served by John Ferguson of Montreal in 1969 during 14 games against New York, Boston and St. Louis.

Nets edge Utah Stars

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Larry Kenon sat on the New York Nets bench for about eight agonizing minutes and watched his team fritter away a three-point lead and fall behind by six points.

He noticed that the Utah Stars were taking advantage of the Nets under the boards, grabbing rebounds and scoring on easy shots, and he vowed that when he reentered the game he would correct the situation.

He did.

The lanky, soft-spoken rookie from Memphis State came back in with about 8:30 remaining and New York trailing 75-69 in the opening game of their American Basketball Association championship series Tuesday night.

He quickly asserted himself, pulling down a rebound and dropping in a layup, then hauled in three rebounds in the closing four minutes and hit New York's last three field goals, carrying the Nets to a tense 89-85 victory.

Reid testifies for Bengals

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mike Reid, all-pro defensive tackle for the Cincinnati Bengals, said Tuesday the future World Football League contracts signed by two of his teammates "would cut the heart out of the team whether they go this year or two years from now."

He testified during a U.S. District Court hearing on the Bengals' bid for a preliminary injunction against the WFL. The hearing entered its third day today. Cincinnati coach and general manager Paul Brown was expected to take the stand.

Reid's remarks supported testimony by Bengals' assistant coach Charles "Chuck" Studley who maintained the lucrative half-million dollar contract signed by Bergey reduces "our chances of winning a championship this year to nil."

Reid's stand differed from a number of teammates who doubted the signing of Bergey and reserve defensive tackle Steve Chomyszak would dull any competitive desires.

Reid said players with future contracts would have a demoralizing effect on a team.

"When you go on the field on Sunday anything that upsets the emotion to play can destroy a team," Reid said.

When WFL attorney George Moscarino attempted to challenge Reid's statement, the former Penn State All-American reiterated his belief.

"I repeat what I said before ... such a situation would wreck a football team," he said.

Attorneys for the WFL and Bergey have hit hard at the effect the signings would have on a team, with most of the players testifying that they would play all-out for whichever team they were under contract to.

Bengals center Bob Johnson, the first player drafted by the Cincinnati franchise, was among six players who said the WFL had approached them with offers.

Johnson said he hoped the Bengals would match the offer from Hawaii because he wanted to stay in Cincinnati.

Pitching problems in Cincinnati camp

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, their pitching still a combination of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, may be eyeing an experiment with some minor league talent to correct a sluggish start.

The Reds, 10-9 for the season, were rained out at Pittsburgh Monday night. The rainout cost Roger Nelson his first start in a week.

Don Gullett, who has won 11 of his last 12 decisions since July, will take the mount tonight against Dock Ellis.

Sheldon "Chief" Bender, Reds director of player personnel, spent the weekend with the club in St. Louis then departed for Indianapolis.

The duo may be in line to replace a member of the slowstarting hill staff.

The pitching staff's earned run average has been battered for a 4.25 mark, with only one route-going effort in the first 19 games.

The Cardinals won two of three from the Reds in Cincinnati's last series, scoring 15 runs including a 9-2 rout in the finale.

Loser Clay Kirby, now 1-3, said a week's layoff hampered him. "You can't stay sharp pitching once a week," he said.

Manager George "Sparky" Anderson has said he'll stay with a five-man rotation until the arms start rounding into form.

Tuesday's rain forced Anderson to skip Nelson's turn in favor of Gullett, 2-1, who was the winning pitcher in the opener against St. Louis.

The bright spot of recent days was the shutout stint by rookie reliever Pat Osburn. He worked three and a third innings against the Cards Sunday and drew praise from catcher Johnny Bench.

"Osburn's stuff is as good as anyone on our staff," said Bench.

"I think he has the stuff to become another Tommy John," he added. John is a starter for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

3 state issues on Fayette ballots

Three proposed amendments to the Ohio constitution will face Fayette County voters when they go to the polls next Tuesday.

All three state issues have been proposed by the resolutions of the Ohio General Assembly, and a majority affirmative vote is necessary for passage for all three.

ISSUE NO. 1, if approved, "would amend sections 20 and 31 of Article II of the Ohio Constitution to equalize the compensation of public officers and members of the Ohio General Assembly."

The proposed change in Section 20 would mean that all officers holding the same office in the same district, such as county commissioners or township trustees, would always receive the same compensation as all other persons holding the same office in the same district.

The proposed change in Section 31 would make any increase applicable to all members of the Ohio General Assembly at the same time, regardless of when their terms end. Thus, those state senators who are less than half way through their four-year terms at the time an increase is enacted could receive the increase after the end of the legislative biennium (a two-year period) in which the increase was enacted, rather than waiting until after the expiration of their current term.

ISSUE NO. 2, if approved by Ohio's voters, "would permit increases in the compensation of public officers with more than two years remaining in their terms."

This amendment would make increases payable immediately in the case of officers who have more than two years remaining in their terms at the time the increase is enacted.

The current prohibition against increases during term would continue to apply to those officeholders having less than two years remaining in their terms at the time the increase is enacted.

ISSUE NO. 3, if approved on May 7, "would provide for preparation of ballot language on constitutional amendments proposed by the general assembly and provide procedures for timely challenges to such language, to provide information to voters about such amendments."

In other words, the amendment would permit constitutional amendment ballot questions to be presented in simplified language which identifies the substance of the proposal, rather than legalistic language containing a full or condensed text. Strict limits would be placed on the timing of court challenges to the ballot language. All such challenges would have to be initiated in the Ohio Supreme Court, which could not remove a scheduled issue from the ballot unless the language tends to mislead or deceive the voters.

A provision would also be made for the publication of arguments and explanations and other dissemination of information concerning such ballot issues.

1 PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

TO EQUALIZE THE COMPENSATION OF PUBLIC OFFICERS AND MEMBERS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

(Proposed by Resolution of the General Assembly)

The proposal would amend sections 20 and 31 of Article II of the Ohio constitution to require that:

1. No change in the compensation of a public officer shall take effect during his existing term, except that
   a. All officers holding the same office in the same district shall receive the same compensation, and
   b. An officer appointed to fill a vacancy in an elective office shall not receive more compensation than elected holders of the same office in the same district receive at the time the appointed officer takes office.
2. No change in the compensation of members and officers of the General Assembly shall take effect during the legislative biennium within which it was made.

2 PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

TO PERMIT INCREASES IN THE COMPENSATION OF PUBLIC OFFICERS WITH MORE THAN TWO YEARS REMAINING IN THEIR TERMS.

(Proposed by Resolution of the General Assembly)

A majority affirmative vote is necessary for passage.

The proposed section 20a of Article II of the Ohio constitution would make an exception to the constitutional prohibition against increases in the compensation of public officers during term in the case of office holders who have more than two years remaining in their terms at the time the increase is enacted. Increases in such cases would be effective and payable on and after the effective date of the legislation providing the increase.

3 PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

TO PROVIDE FOR PREPARATION OF BALLOT LANGUAGE ON CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS PROPOSED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY, TO PROVIDE PROCEDURES FOR TIMELY CHALLENGES TO SUCH LANGUAGE, AND TO PROVIDE INFORMATION TO VOTERS ABOUT SUCH AMENDMENTS.

(Proposed by Resolution of the General Assembly)

The proposal would amend section 1 of Article XVI of the Ohio constitution to:

1. Require that constitutional amendments proposed by the General Assembly be filed with the Secretary of State at least 90 days before the election.
2. Provide for a five member Ballot Board to prescribe the ballot for such amendments. The ballot language would have to properly identify the substance of the proposal, but would not need to contain the full or condensed text.
3. Require the Board to prepare an explanation of each proposal and to certify the ballot language and explanation to the Secretary of State not later than 75 days before the election.
4. Give the Ohio Supreme Court exclusive, original jurisdiction in all cases challenging the validity of ballot language. No case could be filed later than 64 days before the election, and the ballot language could not be held invalid unless it would mislead, deceive, or defraud the voters.
5. Permit the Board to prepare arguments for and against a proposed amendment unless the General Assembly provides by law for the preparation of such arguments.
6. Require the proposed amendments, the ballot language, the explanations, and the arguments, if any, to be published once a week for three consecutive weeks.
7. Require the General Assembly to provide for other dissemination of information concerning proposed amendments.
8. Prevent the court from enjoining or invalidating an election on such amendments solely because of defects in the explanation, arguments, or other information.

No recompense for extra weight

LONDON (AP) — Harold Lever, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Socialist cabinet, is doing the job for nothing.

Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster is a catch-all office whose holder can be used in any sector of government where extra weight is needed. Lever was appointed as economic adviser to Wilson.

But there is a statutory limit of 19 to the number of cabinet ministers, who are paid 13,000 pounds — around $30,000 — a year. And there were already 19.

Wilson was so keen to have Lever in his cabinet, however, that Lever volunteered to do the job with no ministerial salary. All he'll get will be the 4,500 pounds — $10,350 — a year paid to ordinary members of Parliament.

Space age talk links explorers, populated areas

Three oil companies are using a transportable satellite communications earth station equipped with a 10-foot dish antenna at this exploration site above the Arctic Circle to send and receive voice, data and teletype communications via the Anik Satellites. Both Anik and the portable station were developed and built by Hughes Aircraft Co., El Segundo, Calif.

Instead of depending on shortwave to attempt calls back and forth to the populated areas of southern Canada, some 2,000 miles away, the oil exploration teams communicate through the station, up 22,300 miles to the satellite, back down to an earth terminal near Toronto, then via landline to their home offices in Calgary.

By reversing the procedure the home officers can contact the men working in the isolated outposts.

Land conquered with ski poles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lost Sierra is an isolated corner of northeastern California that the '49ers penetrated for gold. In the beginning, most of them abandoned their diggings with the first heavy snowfall and retreated to the protection of the lowlands and valleys.

The Scandinavians jumping ship in San Francisco to join the gold rush taught them to make skis, and miners conquered a region that was snowbound for seven months of the year, with drifts as high as 40 feet.

The girls stood in lines side by side and each took a turn batting her balloon in the air across the room to fill paper bags. The same teams again raced across the room to the opposite wall and back, balancing a paper cup and plastic spoon which they held between their teeth.

This relay was performed with eyes open and closed. At the end, the girls had a contest by sitting on the balloons and breaking them. Any one not breaking her balloons were the 'old hens' for a week.

Refreshments of lemonade and cookies were served by Tammy Wilson and Tonya Burnett. Next week's hostesses will be Tonda Smith and Lisa Clemans.

The largest and heaviest animal in the world, and probably the biggest creature which has ever existed, is the blue or sulphur-bottom whale, also called Sibbald's rorqual. The largest accurately measured specimen on record was a female taken near Scotland, in March 1926, which measured 109 feet 4½ inches in length. A pregnant female could weigh as much as 200 or more tons.

Opening lead — ten of hearts.

Very few people ever forgot their first encounter with Sylvia. It wasn't that she played so badly, but that she played so differently. Her conception of the game was, to say the least, unique, and you simply couldn't help becoming aware of it.

The first time I played against her, I held the South hand and got to six spades. West led a heart and I saw that the slam hinged on losing only one diamond trick.

It was obvious that if East (Sylvia) held the A-Q I would surely make the hand, and that if West had the A-Q I would surely not make it.

The only cases that could matter were those where West had the ace and East the queen, or West had the queen and East the ace. In either of these cases I would have to judge the right way to play the diamonds.

In order to improve my chances, I won the heart, drew trumps, and led the king of clubs. I was sure that this play would locate the ace of clubs, and I would then assume that the other player had the ace of diamonds.

Unfortunately, when I led the king of clubs, Sylvia, despite her magnificent clubs, played the deuce! As my readers may know, Sylvia had a stubborn streak, and she held firmly to the view that if I wanted her to play the ace on the king, she would not oblige me by doing so.

I ruffed, of course, making a mental note that West had the ace. This also thoroughly convinced me that West could not have the ace of diamonds, for with two aces he would surely have led one of them.

So I entered dummy with a heart, led a diamond, and confidently played the king. Much to my chagrin, West took the ace, returned a diamond, and I went down one!

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Avoid a Heart Attack

A heart attack can be a shattering emotional experience. No social, economic or intellectual group is free from the sudden impact of such a medical catastrophe.

A sudden, precipitous change occurs in a single moment when one is stricken. A forceful, dynamic personality is immediately converted into an invalid.

The tireless worker who cannot possibly spare an hour or a weekend for relaxation finds himself in a hospital with six weeks of strict bedrest. The firm rules laid down by the doctor call for a strict diet, no smoking, no telephones, no visitors.

For one in any occupation it comes as an astonishing surprise that his office functions miraculously well without his indispensable presence.

How much wiser it is to recognize that emotional tension, smoking, fatigue, excess weight, untreated high blood pressure and immoderate diets lay the groundwork for possible trouble.

Sane, sensible re-evaluation of patterns of living can often avoid the cataclysmic experience of a heart attack.

People in all industries indulge themselves in the belief that only their occupation is filled with special tension. They almost enjoy the strange distinction that their business is the only "ulcer-producing" business.

Men in executive positions who live in a world of self-imposed deadlines learn that waiters, garbage collectors, taxi drivers, and others in less prestigious occupations also create their own "deadlines."

For years physicians have recognized the relationship between emotional tension and the symptoms their patients present.

The unremitting pressure of work coupled with the overtones of psychological stress play havoc with the productivity and serviceability of thousands of people in every area of family and community life.

Emotional inventories should be taken at regular intervals. Only in this way can the stockpile of emotional reserve be calculated for maximum benefit to the individual.

HOW MANY, PLEASE? — At the head of a long line at the 25th annual Nurses Breakfast, a young hospital staffer did her best to find seats in the crowded building for the patrons. In all, just under 2,000 persons were served Wednesday morning, topping the previous high by almost 300. A staff of approximately 125 did a fine job, allowing the continuous line to move smoothly and pleasantly. Over 600 persons purchased tickets at the door and the remainder had obtained tickets in advance.

The President offered to let the two senior members of the Judiciary Committee, chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., and Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., listen to the tapes to verify that the transcripts contained all relevant Watergate material.

But the President gave the committee no role in saying which matters were of primary concern to it. However, after party caucuses Tuesday, committee members appeared determined to avoid a partisan split over what many considered a futile effort to force the President to comply with the subpoena.

Instead, the Democrats, who hold a 21-17 majority, appeared ready to propose a statement that Nixon had failed to comply with the subpoena, which might be put forth in the future as part of a bill of impeachment.

In his speech Monday night, the President had said the transcripts would "provide grist for many sensational stories in the press. Parts will seem contradictory with one another, and parts will be in conflict with some of the testimony given in the Senate Watergate committee hearings."

He also noted that parts "will embarrass me and those whom I talked with."

The transcripts proved him accurate in all those predictions.

There were frequent parenthetical notes that portions were "unintelligible" or "inaudible" and many places were marked "expletive deleted."

On occasion, the President's anger and contempt flashes out from the transcripts. At other times, he displays compassion and loyalty toward beleaguered staff members and such former close friends as John Mitchell.

DEAN CONFLICTS

Dean told the Watergate committee that on Sept. 15, Nixon congratulated him on doing a good job, "and the President was pleased that the case had stopped with (G. Gordon) Liddy."

The transcript shows Nixon telling Dean, "The way you have handled all this seems to me has been very skillful, putting your fingers in the leaks that have sprung here and sprung there."

Nixon's lawyers said the congratulations were offered "in the context not of a criminal plot to obstruct justice as Dean alleges," but rather "in the context of the politics of the matter, such as civil suits, countersuits, Democratic efforts to exploit Watergate as a political issue and the like."

MITCHELL'S INVOLVEMENT

A close friend and adviser to the President throughout his first administration, Mitchell had early been linked to Watergate. On April 14, 1973, Nixon, Haldeman and Ehrlichman discussed the scandal.

Ehrlichman suggested somebody ought to go to New York to tell Mitchell "the jig is up. And the President strongly feels that the only way that this thing can end up even a little plus for the administration and for the presidency and preserve some thread is for you to go in and voluntarily make a statement."

Ehrlichman wanted Mitchell to admit being "both morally and legally responsible."

But moving against his old friend bothered the President and he acknowledged he was putting it off.

"We're still not doing anything," he said.

Ehrlichman: "Right."

Nixon: "That's exactly right. The law and order. That's the way I am. You know it's a pain for me to do it—the Mitchell thing is damn painful."

ELLSBERG BREAK-IN

On March 17, Dean told the President that Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy had been working for Ehrlichman.

Dean: "They—these fellows had to be some idiots as we've learned after the fact. They went out and went into Dr. Ellsberg's doctor's office ..."

Nixon: "What in the world— what in the name of God was Ehrlichman having something (unintelligible) in the Ellsberg (unintelligible)?"

Dean: "They were trying to— this was part of an operation that—in connection with the Pentagon Papers. They were —the whole thing—they wanted to get Ellsberg's psychiatric records for some reason. I don't know."

Nixon: "This is the first I ever heard of this."

HALDEMAN-EHRLICHMAN RESIGNATIONS

In a series of conversations with the President in mid-April, assistant Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, head of the Justice Department Criminal Division, told the President he thought Haldeman and Ehrlichman should resign.

On April 16, the President told Petersen, "Let me tell you they should resign in my view if they get splashed with this. Now the point is, is the timing. I think that it's, I want to get your advice on it, I think it would be really hanging the guy before something goes in if I say look you guys resign ..."

He also told Petersen that he had asked Dean that morning to submit his resignation.

Eleven days later, Petersen and Nixon again discussed the investigation and the President said "if your prosecutors believe that they have got to give Dean immunity, in whole or in part, in order to get the damned case, do it."

Then later ...

Nixon: "All right. We have got the immunity problem resolved. Do it. Dean if you need to, but boy, I am telling you— there ain't going to be any blackmail."

Protecting friends . . . destroying enemies

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and his closest advisers were flustered, confused, tormented, sometimes angry and sometimes bemused by the growth and persistence of the Watergate scandals.

They spent hours agonizing over their troubles, trying to decide on a course of action that would neutralize the Watergate mess. Considerations ranged from getting the whole truth out to paying hush money to cover up the truth.

They talked of protecting their friends and destroying their enemies. Their conversations were informal, free-wheeling, wide-ranging and frequently profane.

On several occasions Nixon expressed exasperation that his administration was under fire for political activities he considered common occurrences in political life and ordered that federal muscle be used to hurt anyone who tried to hurt him. Nixon also believed that the scandal wouldn't last long.

"This is a war," Nixon said in a Sept. 15, 1972, conversation with his chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman and his counsel, John W. Dean III. "We take a few shots and it will be over. We will give them a few shots and it will be over.

"I want the most comprehensive notes on all those who tried to do us in. They didn't have to do it .... They were doing this quite deliberately and they are asking for it and they are going to get it ....

"We have not used the Bureau (FBI) and we have not used the Justice Department but things are going to change now."

The most intense discussions occurred in two meetings March 21, 1973, during which Nixon, Dean and Haldeman debated whether to cover up high administration involvement in the Watergate scandal or "let it all hang out."

Nixon: How much money do you need?

Dean: I would say these people are going to cost a million dollars over the next two years.

Nixon: We could get that. On the money, if you need the money you could get that. You could get a million dollars. You could get it in cash. I know where it could be gotten. It is not easy, but it could be done. But the question is who the hell would handle it. Any ideas on that?

Nixon: I would think so too.

At another point, Dean told Nixon he wasn't at all confident of being able to maintain silence among the people involved at the various stages of the scandal. And Nixon proposed that full disclosure might be the only solution.

Zebra case arrests made

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Six black men were arrested today in the Zebra street shootings in which 12 whites have been murdered and six others wounded in random attacks over a six-month period, police said.

Chief of Inspectors Charles Barca identified the men as J.C. Simon, 29; Larry Green, 22; Dwight Stallings, Thomas Manney, Manuel Moore and Edgar Burton, all of San Francisco.

He said Simon and Green were arrested first, in a 5 a.m. raid at an apartment. They were booked on charges of murder, conspiracy to commit murder and charges of assault with a deadly weapon, Barca said.

He gave no details on the other arrests, all made here, but said the other four men would be booked on conspiracy to commit murder.

Police said a kidnaping charge also was involved but did not explain.

Police did not indicate whether they anticipated further arrests in the case.

Wilmington officer indicted for murder

WILMINGTON — A special Clinton County grand jury summoned to consider evidence surrounding the April 22 ambush slaying of a Martinsville man returned an indictment Tuesday afternoon charging Wilmington police officer Dale A. Powell, 26, with aggravated murder.

The five-woman, four-man special grand jury finished its second day of deliberations in the shooting case shortly after lunch and reported the indictment against Powell to Common Pleas Court Judge Howard D. Barns just before 2 p.m.

Powell, a two-year veteran of the Wilmington Police Department, is charged with the shotgun slaying of Randall B. Goldie, 22, of Martinsville, who was found shot to death in his car about 11 p.m. in the parking lot of a Wilmington restaurant.

Assistant Prosecutor William McCracken, who presented the case because of the illness of Prosecutor Ronald Carey, said there would be an arraignment Wednesday, but was unable to schedule a specific time before conferring with Charles Kirk, who is Powell's attorney.

POWELL has been suspended from the police department pending final disposition of the murder charge. Two other city police officers, seven-year veteran Ursell Webb, 37, and three-year veteran Paul Dischner, 32, also have been suspended from the force by Police Chief Thomas E. White for allegedly withholding information about the shooting.

Chief White said Tuesday that additional announcements concerning administrative actions against Webb and Dischner could come late Wednesday or Thursday.

The special grand jury examined a total of 19 witnesses Monday and Tuesday, including a 17-year-old Wilmington girl who has been held in protective custody at an undisclosed location since the slaying. The girl, identified only as a Wilmington High School student, was believed to be a key witness in the case.

McCracken said there were no cases ignored by the special grand jury, the Powell case being the only one under consideration. He refused to comment, however, on rumors that there had been efforts to obtain more indictments, possibly against area drug pushers.

There has been widespread speculation that Goldie's shooting was linked to related illegal drug activities in the area, but no one close to the investigation, including Chief White, would confirm it.

GOLDIE was the owner of a novelty import shop in Wilmington. He was found shot several times in the head and shoulders at close range with a .12-gauge shotgun as he sat in his late model sports car behind Scottie's Restaurant, 1032 Wayne Rd. Police found four empty shotgun shells at the scene.

Powell was charged last Wednesday with aggravated murder in connection

Coffee Break . .

RUMORS can be annoying — and sometimes frightening. . .

Edgy residents of neighboring Xenia, lashed by a killer tornado April 3, deluged the Xenia Daily Gazette office with phone calls after a report was circulated that Jeane Dixon, psychic-clairvoyant of national prominence, had predicted the Xenia twister earlier in the month and that she was forecasting another series of tornadoes on May 3 which would result in heavy damage in South Central Ohio. . . Some of the Xenia calls came from Washington C.H. where the rumor gained some currency among those who fail to realize that Mrs. Dixon neither is, nor pretends to be, a weather prophet. . .

The Record-Herald received a call or two but did not mention the rumor because it felt there was no validity to it. . .yet the story pops up again, and Coffee Break feels that the matter should be put at rest. . .

As the Daily Gazette points out, Jeane Dixon DID NOT predict the April 3 tornado, NOR has she made any tornado forecasts whatsoever either for this month or for the remainder of the year. . . Joe Havley, of Washington, D.C., Mrs. Dixon's personal assistant, made this perfectly clear, as did the syndicate which distributes her columns. . .

This has been one of many rumors following the Xenia tragedy. . . There are other stories about the number of unidentified dead in morgues (the actual toll was 33 with no unclaimed bodies), the number still missing (there is no one unaccounted for) and fantastic accounts of people being carried for miles by the wind, or locomotives blown off tracks and never found. . . It's all balderdash. . .

The Xenia Gazette, in an editorial, put it this way:

"As the bumper stickers proclaim, 'Xenia Lives!' But the spirit of a living, vibrant city can only be tarnished by ever-spreading grandiose (and often gruesome) tales. Let's stick to the truth.

"And while we're at it, how about banishing from our listening range as well, those reports from so-called psychics who allegedly predicted the Xenia tornado and talk of more to come.

"People in Kansas and other mid-western states have occupied the "tornado belt" for many years and have learned to live with the threat. The blow Xenia took was wider and stronger than any of those, but can't we, too, convince ourselves that it was a once-in-a-lifetime tragedy."

Fairfield fire fatal to 4

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP) — Fire swept through a home in rural Fairfield County early today, killing a father and three children.

Firemen from Berne Township, who battled the blaze for more than four hours, identified the victims as Hilbert Robertson, 38, daughter Carrie Sue, 13, and sons Andy, 11, and Martin, 1.

Robertson's widow, Flora, 32, was in fair condition at a hospital here with first and second degree burns, officials said.

Firemen said the blaze broke out as the woman started a fire in a kitchen stove shortly after midnight to heat the home. Flames ignited nearby curtains, they said, and the stove exploded as the woman tried to pull them from the house.

Firemen said Robertson, the daughter and the youngest child apparently died of smoke inhalation and intense heat.

Demo committees can sue Brown

COLUMBUS, Ohio(AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court today said two county Democratic executive committees have a cause of action against Secretary of State Ted W. Brown for refusing to reappoint two boards of election members— but the persons themselves do not.

It allowed the Lucas County Executive Committee to proceed with its case on behalf of William F. Boyle and the Columbiana County Executive Committee to continue with its arguments for Don R. Gosney.

But the court dismissed individual suits brought against Brown by both Boyle and Gosney.

Brown said Boyle, the Lucas County Democratic chairman was a disruptive influence on the Lucas County Board of Elections and that it would be a conflict of interest for Gosney an aide to U.S. Rep. Wayne Hays, R-Ohio, to serve on the board.

Big wage, price increases battled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will demand new price controls if the country's high inflation rate isn't held in check, President Nixon has warned business leaders.

He said the ending of his widely discredited controls program Tuesday creates a "great responsibility" for both business and labor leaders to use restraint in setting future wages and prices.

"If the fires of inflation continue burning too strongly, the demand for controls will come up again," Nixon told 3,200 businessmen and their wives at a U.S. Chamber of Commerce banquet Tuesday night.

The White House was scheduled to release a new statement on the economy today.

The President, who did not mention Watergate in his 25-minute speech, was applauded warmly and enthusiastically. His wife, Pat, was by his side.

Nixon revealed he will announce next week new measures intended to help the slumping housing industry, which he said is one of the few areas of the economy where "the government can play a significant role."

But he said he preferred that government policies to control inflation be confined to responsible fiscal and monetary policies.

"The major answer to inflation is more production," he added.

But even as the President was urging restraint in future price increases, the nation's largest steel company, U.S. Steel Corp., said it will have to increase prices despite an 80 per cent increase in profits in the first quarter of 1974.

Edgar B. Speer, U.S. Steel chairman, said the increases will be necessary to finance future expansion. He cited pressures from rising costs of raw materials and the cost of the new wage agreement.

Wage and price controls expired at midnight Tuesday for all except the oil industry.

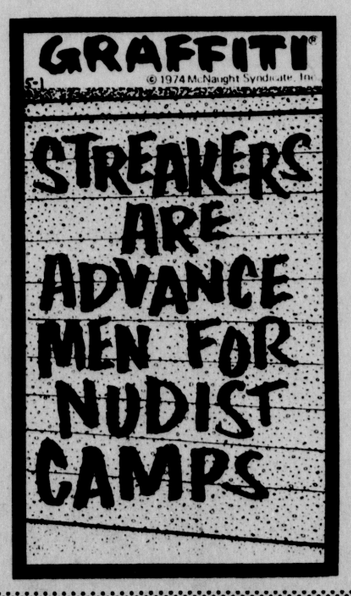
Meanwhile, about 4.2 million workers are due for immediate pay hikes of up to $16 a week under the new minimum wage law that takes effect today, moving the hourly rate to $2.30 over the next two years.

Glenn joins impeachment backers

By The Associated Press

Democratic U.S. Senate candidate John Glenn Tuesday for the first time called for impeachment of President Nixon. He said Nixon's refual to comply with a congressional subpoena was sufficient grounds for such action.

Glenn told newsmen in Cincinnati that if he were a member of the House Judiciary Committee he would "vote impeachment on this basis" because of Nixon's "sheer arrogance" in providing partial transcripts instead of the subpoenaed tapes.



Accompanied by former professional football star Rosey Grier during his campaign stop in the Queen City, the former astronaut suggested the committee give Nixon 10 days to "produce the evidence or be impeached."

Glenn previously had said he would not take a stand on impeachment until all the evidence was in on the matter.

Glenn said Tuesday he did not agree with suggestions by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, his opponent for the Senate nomination, that Nixon resign.

"I'm afraid that with resignation much surrounding Watergate would continue to be covered up," Glenn said. "Resignation might be used as a cover-up itself."

Metzenbaum, campaigning in Columbus Tuesday night, repeated the suggestion, saying "Nixon should resign and get it over with."

Metzenbaum attended a rally in a predominantly black section of the city and told the gathering, "You were with me when things weren't going so well. They've been picking up lately."

He referred to a statewide poll conducted by a newspaper that indicated he was leading Glenn by 44 per cent to 38 per cent.

Metzenbaum also repeated his charge that the former Marine Corps colonel didn't vote until he was 37 years old.

Asked later by a newsman about the charge, Metzenbaum cited news reports in the past about Glenn's voting record, but admitted there was no evidence to prove or disprove the claim.

Glenn's campaign people have denied the charge and pointed out that there was no voter registration in Muskingum County, where Glenn maintained a voting residence, until 1958.

Also asked about his position on the abortion issue, Metzenbaum said, "If the matter comes up before the legislature I will decide on it."

Pressed for his personal views on the controversial issue, Metzenbaum told the reporter, "You can ask me anything you want, but it doesn't mean you'll get an answer.

He said his heavy activity in black areas of Akron, Cleveland, Columbus and Dayton was basic in his push to get out what he believes is the critical black vote.

Agnes Moorehead dies

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Agnes Moorehead, 67, a character actress for half a century, died Tuesday. Miss Moorehead, who won five Oscar nominations, is best remembered by many Americans for her role as Endora in the television series "Bewitched."

Impeachment probers to chart next move

Frustration, confusion show in tape transcripts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is looking to the American people for vindication in Watergate, while House impeachment investigators meet tonight to decide their next move in the quest for White House evidence.

A majority of the House Judiciary Committee evidently was dissatisfied with the edited White House transcripts the President delivered Tuesday in lieu of tapes of 42 presidential conversations the committee had subpoenaed.

The panel's Democratic majority planned to stop short of a demand for enforcement of the subpoena in favor of seeking bipartisan support for a statement declaring Nixon had failed to comply with it.

It was clear from the time Nixon disclosed his transcript plan Monday night that the support he sought was beyond the Capitol; that his goal was to persuade the American public that he had no advance knowledge of the Watergate break-in or the cover-up and that he was providing investigators with the full story of his role.

But, even as the transcripts were delivered to the committee, the President's lawyers were making plans to go to court Thursday to seek to quash a subpoena issued at the request of special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Jaworski is seeking tapes and documents relating to 64 presidential conversations he says are needed as evidence for prosecution and defense in the forthcoming Watergate coverup trial.

In addition, the Judiciary Committee has requested, by letter, still other tapes covering the Watergate cover-up, the ITT antitrust settlement and Nixon campaign contributions from the dairy industry.

For all the 1,308 blue-bound pages of presidential transcripts, uncertainties remained about what the President knew, and when, and what he intended to be done. It was, as Nixon's lawyers and the President himself had said, a document marked by ambiguities.

The words that were spoken created a picture of a President feeling increasingly embattled and frustrated by a scandal, the disclosure of which he considered inevitable but which he hoped to control.

But the critical meetings were these:

—Sept. 15, 1972, the day indictments were returned in the Watergate break-in case. Nixon met with White House counsel John W. Dean III, later to become the President's chief accuser before the Senate Watergate committee.

—March 17, 1973, the day the President learned that members of the White House plumbers unit, set up to trace leaks of classified information, had engineered the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

—March 21, 1973, the day the President said Dean first told him about the Watergate coverup. Numerous alternatives including meeting demands for hush money were considered by the President, Dean and White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

—April 14, 1973, the day of a rambling discussion of Watergate by the President, Haldeman and Ehrlichman during which they talked about the need to fire Dean and to convince former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell to appear before the prosecutor and a grand jury.

So far as is known only Nixon and Haldeman, among those quoted in the transcripts, knew that the con-is getting their own counsel. More counsel are getting involved. How do I protect my ass?

Muscle-flexing

Nixon: They are scared.

Dean: That is bad. We were able to hold it for a long time ....

Nixon: Your cover is broken?

Dean: That's right and it's ....

Nixon: ... Complete disclosure, isn't that the best way to do it? .... That would be my view.

But shortly thereafter they are back to discussing a coverup.

Dean: Well, I have been a conduit for information on taking care of people out there who are guilty of crimes.

Dean: The blackmailers. Right.

Nixon: Well, I wonder if that part of it can't be—I wonder if that doesn't—let me put it frankly: I wonder if that doesn't have to be continued? Let me put it this way: Let us suppose that you get the million bucks, and you get the proper way to handle it. You could hold that side?

Dean: Un, huh.

Nixon: It would seem to me that would be worthwhile.

At a later point, with Haldeman in on the conversation, Nixon appeared ready to smooth over the reasons for the break-in at the Los Angeles office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Nixon: National security. We had to get information for national security grounds.

Dean: Then the question is, why didn't the CIA do it or why didn't the FBI do it?

Nixon: Because we had to do it on a confidential basis.

Haldeman: Because we were checking them.

Nixon: Neither could be trusted.

The text of the tape recordings is littered with secretarial notations of deleted expletives and character descriptions, apparently in an effort to clean up some White House language for public consumption. Most of the deletions are from Nixon's dialogue, but his aides apparently were casual about using profanity in his presence.

Informality appeared to be the norm in conversations among Nixon and his close aides. Rarely did anyone address him as "Sir" or "Mr. President."

Early in the history of the scandal, Nixon and his aides appear confused by the enormity of the outcry over the bugging of the Democratic National Committee. From the Sept. 15, 1972 tape:

Haldeman: Isn't that ridiculous—this silly thing.

Nixon: Yes (Expletive deleted). (Sen. Barry) Goldwater put it in context when he said "(expletive deleted) everybody bugs everybody else. You know that."

Dean: That was priceless.

Nixon: It happens to be totally true.

On the other hand, Nixon was dismayed at some of the political dirty tricks played by Donald Segretti on Democratic presidential candidates. Segretti later was convicted in connection with those dirty tricks.

Library Association seeks impounded cash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Library Association called today on Gov. John J. Gilligan to release impounded federal funds for libraries in the state.

The $3.9 million intended by Congress for library development must be approved by the Governor's Office of Budget and Management before use by libraries, the association said.

Outlook uncertain in Syrian talks on disengagement

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's negotiations to separate Israeli and Syrian troops are likely to take longer than his successful Egyptian-Israeli shuttle diplomacy and the outlook is "very uncertain," says a senior aide.

There will be no disengagement agreement for the Golan Heights unless both Syria and Israel make concessions, the American official said. He said Israel will have to make the first compromise move because it is Israel's army that is on the other country's territory and must withdraw.

But he added that Syria will have to modify its initial proposals submitted to Kissinger in Washington on April 13.

Kissinger arrived in Alexandria Tuesday night to discuss the situation with his most enthusiastic supporter in the Arab world, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt. He gets down to the hard bargaining on Thursday, when he flies to Israel and Syria.

The secretary's hopes "were slightly raised" by his talks Monday and Tuesday in Algiers with President Houari Boumedienne and with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Geneva, the senior American source reported. But Kissinger will not begin to be able to gauge his chances of success until he reaches Israel, the aide added.

The source said an Israeli withdrawal on the Syrian front would be "riskier" for Israel than was its withdrawal from the Suez Canal. But a deadlock would be even riskier, he asserted.

Unofficial reports have said that Israel is prepared to return the 300-square-mile bulge of Syrian territory which it captured in the October war. But the Israelis have said repeatedly that they would never give back the bulk of the Golan Heights territory captured in the 1967 war because from there Syrian artillery repeatedly shelled Israeli fishermen on the Sea of Galilee and Israeli settlements in Northern Galilee.

Syria has been reported prepared to accept Israeli withdrawal from the bulge as an initial disengagement. But unofficial reports say the Syrians also are insisting that Israel pledge to give up all the Golan Heights and also return the city of Kuneitra, a mile west of the 1967 cease-fire line, as part of the initial withdrawal.

3 nations hold May Day rites

By The Associated Press

May Day demonstrations planned in Lisbon and Buenos Aires today overshadowed Moscow's annual Red Square parade on the international holiday honoring the working man.

Portugal's new military junta, in a move to contain and channel burgeoning leftism, approved the country's first legal May Day observance in half a century "as a tribute to the Portuguese workers."

Lisbon braced for wild demonstrations by unionists, Socialists and Communists celebrating the overthrow of dictator Antonio de Oliveira Salazar's heirs last week and the promise of political freedom.

The new Portuguese strongman, Gen. Antonio de Spinola, actively encouraged the leftist demonstrations—which the old regime had banned.

Ultra-leftists organized a "Red May Day." Legal labor unions set up a separate rally at which Spinola was expected to appear. It had the blessing of the Democratic Movement, the ineffectual legal opposition movement under the old regime.

In Buenos Aires, President Juan D. Peron and right-wing labor leaders who are the chief bulwark of his government sought to use the holiday to rally support against young leftist in the Peronist movement.

The General Confederation of Workers, or CGT, scheduled a four-hour rally in the palmlined Plaza de Mayo, in front of the presidential palace, and called on the nation's 9 million workers to unite in a "Fiesta of Work and National Unity."

With the 78-year-old president scheduled to address the crowd from a balcony of the palace, the heaviest security precautions in memory were in effect to prevent violence from the Peronist Youth and their guerrilla wing, the Montoneros.

Elsewhere:

French unions called off their usual march through the streets of Paris to keep things cool and not endanger Socialist Francois Mitterrand's chances in the first round of the presidential election Sunday. An outdoor meeting and festival in a Paris suburb was planned instead.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat interrupted talks on Israeli-Syrian troop disengagement with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to make a May Day speech at an industrial center south of Cairo. Kissinger and his wife were to go sightseeing in Alexandria, then take a Mediterranean boat ride.

In Uruguay, a powerful bomb exploded in front of a newspaper office on the eve of the first May Day in many years without an official labor celebration. The newspaper sides with military-backed President Juan M. Bordaberry, who outlawed labor union activities.

Trio plans journey West on horseback to Colorado

NORTHVILLE, Mich. (AP) — "Looking for anyone interested in going out west on horseback," read Tom Larsen's newspaper ad. "My freaky unorthodox friends are not up to it."

The three plan to begin their journey from Hannibal, Mo., and head for Colorado. From there, they say they'll play it by ear.

"We're going to be free spirits," the 23-year-old Larsen said Tuesday, sitting atop his quarterhorse at a riding stable in this Detroit suburb. "And we're looking for a new life style."

A self-employed mover from Livonia, Mich., Larsen said he decided to make the trek after taking a critical look at his life a few months ago.

"I felt it was slipping away and I was getting nowhere," he said. "I had thought about riding west before, but it seemed like an impossible dream. Then I just decided to do it."

The Perlmans already have sold their house, furniture, car and motorcycle—and Friday they will quit their jobs, he as an upholsterer and she as a kennel helper.

Mrs. Perlman, 19, said her parents thought she was "nuts."

Larsen said he hadn't even told his. The group plans to pack its few remaining belongings into saddlebags Friday, load into a horse transporter with their three horses, a cat and a pregnant dog and head for Hannibal.

"We picked that place because it was Mark Twain's old stomping ground and it seemed like a good place to start," Larsen said.

They expect to leave Hannibal next Wednesday to begin their journey across northern Missouri, northern Kansas and into Colorado.

"We'll be taking an isolated route," Larsen said. "We want to take the back trails and stay away from all urban centers. That's what it's all about."

They said they would buy food along the way, cooking over campfires.

"I'll be taking my fishing rod and shotgun so we can scare up some food along the way," said Perlman, 21.

The three said they have enough money to stay on the go for about a year.

However, Mrs. Perlman said, "We may stay out there and work on farms or even buy some land."

with the shooting case. He was released from custody in Greene County jail in Xenia after posting $25,000 bond.

Police have not disclosed what led them to suspect Powell in the slaying, nor have they indicated a motive for the killing.

Officials said Powell was not on duty the night of the murder and was not on duty when arrested in City Hall two days after Goldie was shot.

Chief White said after the special grand jury session that he was grateful the two officers accused of covering up information were not indicted. He has maintained that Webb and Dischner had nothing to do with the shooting.

Right of arrest upheld by court

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A township police officer or a private citizen have authority to file affidavits charging an offense, the Ohio Supreme Court held today.

The court affirmed two traffic violations against William Holbert of Alliance, stopped in that city and cited by a police officer from a nearby township.

Holbert claimed the township officer had no authority on the state highway in Alliance, where he was cited for speeding and passing in a no-passing zone.

Holbert did not have any arrest power within Alliance, the court said, but like any other citizen he had the right to file charges, which he did.

Traffic deaths decline again from last year

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council says lower speed limits figured significantly in a continuing decline in traffic deaths on the nation's highways during March.

Traffic deaths dropped 25 per cent in March, as they did in January and February after highway speed limits were lowered to 55 miles per hour to conserve gasoline because of the energy crisis, Council President Vincent Tofany said Tuesday.

About 3,200 persons died in March, compared with 4,320 in March 1973, he said. In the first three months of 1974 there were 8,920 fatalities, down from 11,880 last year, he added.

"We think that lower driving speeds have been an important factor in this reduction," Tofany said. "We hope that government authorities will examine these factors carefully before any moves are made to raise the speed limits."

Tofany said that if the trend keeps up for the rest of the year, traffic deaths would be reduced by 14,000 persons from last year's toll of 55,600. Such a reduction would place the fatality toll at the 1963 level.

Disabling injuries and traffic accident costs also declined sharply during the first three months of 1974, he said.

Tofany said there were about 320,000 disabling injuries in the first three months of 1974, compared with 420,000 in the same period last year. The cost of traffic deaths and injuries declined from $3.3 billion to $2.9 billion, he added.

Tofany said he fears that as the gasoline shortage eases, public pressure might bring back higher speed limits.

"Your chances of dying in a crash increase dramatically over 50 miles per hour," he said, adding that the chance of survival is four times as great at 50 as at 70.

Heavy rain hits wide area of U.S.

By The Associated Press

Heavy thunderstorms pelted areas from Texas to West Virginia today, dumping up to 7 inches of rain during the night at one spot in Texas and prompting flash-flood watches in that state.

The watches were in effect for most of northeast Texas and parts of the southwestern and northwestern portions of the state.

The thunderstorm activity extended into New Mexico and through Louisiana and West Virginia. Scattered showers and thundershowers spread into Ohio and parts of Pennsylvania, New York and New England.

Scattered showers also sprinkled the Rockies, Colorado, Minnesota and Oregon.

Skies were clear over the south Atlantic Coast states, the mid-Mississippi Valley, the Central Plains and the desert Southwest, but clouded elsewhere.

Ohio Power Co. raps standards

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Officers of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. Tuesday joined other state utilities in complaining they cannot meet approaching antipollution law compliance deadlines.

The company, as have most of Ohio's major utilities during the past six weeks, told examiners of the state Environmental Protection Agency that they cannot meet sulfur emission standards by July 1, 1975.

The federal EPA has given business and industrial polluters until 1977 to meet antipollution requirements, but have held steadfast in the cases of power generating firms.

The EPA has been holding adjudication hearings for the utilities since March 18 when it issued tough, new, sulfur emission limits for plant stacks.

Included on the upcoming agenda are Ohio Edison Co. of Akron and the Ohio Valley Electric Corp.

EPA spokeswoman Barbara Kaufmann said the hearings should be completed within the month. Examiners then will write a report and submit it for final consideration by state EPA Director Dr. Ira Whitman.

Ohio Power Co., one of the largest utilities in the state, brought in officers of its parent company this week to speak in its behalf.

Ohio Power is seeking a two-year extention of the deadline.

Paul D. Marinka, vice president of the American Electric Power Co., has claimed Ohio's strict sulfur emission regulations has caused his firm to cancel plans for at least six underground mines in southeastern counties.

At the same time, however, AEP attorney Joseph Dowd acknowledged the company still is going ahead with an $80 million rail and barge project to import about 600 million tons of low-sulfur Western coal into the Midwest.

Six per cent of all housing in Ohio is overcrowded, according to the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

Stock prices hold steady

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices held steady today in the face of rising interest rates and the end of price controls.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down fractionally in early trading, stood at 838.70 up 1.95 at noon, and advances held a small lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said investors were encouraged that a price bulge had not materialized immediately after the end of price controls—only copper prices seemed to rise substantially.

But trading remained light as most investors decided to sit out another period of change rather than commit themselves.

Tennis session reset Thursday

Washington C.H. weather struck again, this time cancelling the first session of the community education tennis program.

The first evening of classes was to be conducted Tuesday, but rain forced a postponement, disappointing nearly 100 tennis enthusiasts.

Hank Shaffer, community education director, has announced that the initial session for the adult group which was scheduled for 7 p.m. will meet at the same time Thursday at Eyman Park.

The two youth groups and the adult class scheduled for 6 p.m. will meet next Tuesday. A time to make up the missed session for these groups will be announced at that time.

The five-session program in the fundamentals of tennis is being offered under the direction of Maurice Pfeifer and Lewis Elliott.

A thousand dead in Ulster

The continuing agony of Northern Ireland is dramatized by the passing of the 1,000 mark in the province's official toll of violent death since the present wave of killing began. There is little cause for hope that the murderous and pointless violence will soon end.

The Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army laid claim to the dubious honor of having brought the number of dead to 1,000. It said its operatives were the ones who took 20-year-old James Corbett from his Belfast home, shot him twice in the back of the head, and dumped his body near a reform school.

By the time this appears in print, retaliation from the other side may very well have occurred. As in the Middle East, one act of violence leads to another; many see no way to interrupt the grim cycle.

There is a way. The Archbishop of Canterbury is the latest, and one of the most influential, to bespeak it in public. The primate of the Anglican Church, Dr. Michael Ramsey, spoke out in a sermon at St. Anne's Cathedral in Belfast. For a time he was shouted down by demonstrators from supporters of the militant Rev. Ian Paisley of the Free Presbyterian church of Ulster, but in the end he did speak. What the archbishop had to say is well worth repeating.

"There are in this province," he told the congregation, "thousands of Christians - Roman Catholics and Protestants - who are ready to pray together to seek reconciliation. The future lies with those who have such thoughts in their hearts."

On might go further and say that unless such thoughts come to the fore and bear the fruit of reconciliation, the killing will go on and on.

With more than a thousand in their graves now, victims of senseless violence which achieves nothing, surely the time has come for all men and women of good will in Northern Ireland to cry in Christian conscience: Enough!

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Toward the Wheelchair Society

If I remember my history, the Presbyterian church was the lengthened shadow of John Calvin of Geneva. Calvin believed in the doctrine of the elect. People who were up and doing were considered by Calvin to be the chosen of God.

Other Protestant churches subscribed to the Calvinist ideal. The "elect" crossed the sea to America, spreading the idea of "justification by works" from one coast to the other. John D. Rockefeller, for one example, made a mint and subsidized the University of Chicago ("praise John from whom oil blessings flow").

Other great movers and shakers gave us libraries, medical establishments, and foundations for the promotion of international peace.

Well, that was yesterday. We now have a new order in the United Presbyterian Church, and that heavy buzzing sound you hear does not come from any collective failure of our automobile drivers to fasten their compulsory seat belts; it comes from John Calvin turning at breakneck pace in his grave.

In an "Energy Ethics" issue of "Trends," a publication of the United Presbyterians that is billed as a resource for study by older youths and adults, the church has apparently declared unlimited war not only on technology but on the very concept of up-and-doing Western man.

THE NEW CALVINISTS no longer seem to believe in the elect or in justification by works. "Ought we," so they ask, "to employ the ingenuity and power of our technology to ensure the survival of our wasteful and privileged way of life?. . .when the church looks at transportation and energy, it should be willing to explore the wider philosophical, theological and ethical issues . . . it should be willing to investigate the ethic of mobility itself."

The new Calvinist have a particular scunner against the automobile. "A transportation system," they write, "should equalize the access to mobility for all. Automobiles, however, discriminate between the poor, the young and the elderly who have little access to them."

What the "energy ethic" of the latter-day Calvinists amounts to is an endorsement of all those Oriental cults that praise Nirvana, exalt a regimen of navel-gazing, and preach the anti-Promethean way of life. The new Calvinists want no part of any elect, either individual or national. We must all be ground down to a poorhouse level.

Asking a leading question, "Is there a technical fix?", the new Calvinists lash out at those who hold that our energy crisis can be mastered by will-managed technology. Technology by itself, they say, cannot solve the crisis — "a purely technical solution ought not to be tried."

IF IT CAN'T EVEN be tried, then we are in for trouble. No use for General Electric to continue research into the Lungi process, a system for coal gasification and gas cleanup. No use for General Motors to go on building nonpolluting foundries. No use for testing ways of turning coal into a clean gas in the ground.

No use of trying to make a vegetation-derived substitute for gasoline. No use in developing "skimming" or boom containment techniques for controlling oil spills.

Just go home and sit under that tree. But, come to think of it, we are not all wealthy enough to have a tree to sit under.The ethic of immobility can be just as discriminatory as its opposite.

If I were to make a case against the automobile, it would be on precisely opposite grounds from anything the new Calvinists have mentioned. The trouble with the automobile is that it is used by practically everybody with no discrimination whatsoever.

The use of the back seat by the young — many of them poor — is what caused the sexual revolution in American. Drag racing is one penalty of automotive nondiscrimination.

The elderly don't use cars when their reflexes go back on them. But by the same token the elderly wouldn't be able to use horses or bicycles. Must we all use wheelchairs just to eliminate the difference between youth and old age?

Maybe that's it. There is another name for the Utopia of the new Calvinists. It is the Wheelchair Society.

Excellent Neptune influences. An encouraging period! Bolster your self-confidence, your powers of concentration, and be patient for results that WILL come.

YOU BORN TODAY have been endowed with unusual creative ability, an all-encompassing love of beauty and a warm and outgoing manner which attracts others at first sight. You have a gift for words and a sense of rhythm that practically guarantees success should you turn to writing or music as a career. However, should you take up business instead, you may well turn to either of the aforementioned arts as an avocation. Either would be a splendid outlet for your emotions and for the idealism which is basic in your nature. Your love and sympathy for your fellowman makes you a "natural" for medicine or nursing, and your affinity for the outdoors may lead you to horticulture, agriculture or botany with great success. On the minus side, your innate stubbornness and tendency to be dogmatic with associates can lead to enmity. So-o-o. . . Curb!

State solons seek more space

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio lawmakers anticipate the day they can spread out a bit in the Capitol, making use of the space left behind by agencies moving into the new State Office Tower.

The Legislative Service Commission, made up of senators and representatives who oversee the General Assembly's research staff, is in no great hurry.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus, suggested at a recent meeting that a committee should be named to study available facilities and recommend new space assignments. The commission agreed.

Biggest problem — or, at least, the one complained about the most — is lack of private office space for the 99 members of the House and the 33 senators.

Leaders generally have adequate quarters, but most members have only a desk in a small hole of a room, more often than not shared with another member or two.

"We shouldn't just start adding on rooms," Gray told the commission. "There should be adequate planning to make sure the space is used efficiently and to the best advantage."

Every non-legislative office except the offices of the governor and lieutenant governor leaves the Capitol. These include the secretary of state, who occupies four large rooms on the first floor and some basement space; the treasurer and the auditor, both with suites on the first floor and a series of scattered rooms in the basement.

Plans call for demolition of the Statehouse Annex, which currently houses the Attorney General and the Ohio Supreme Court. Both are moving into the $60 million, 41-floor tower.

The huge limestone blocks of the annex are being saved for repairs on the Capitol, built of matching blocks of Franklin County stone back in the Civil War era.

Members of the legislature are hopeful that each can have a private office and more secretarial help. They complain of the large volume of mail received at the Capitol instead of at home. Each House member has more than 100,000 constituents, each senator has three times that many.

The legislators say they need facilities to answer mail, receive telephone calls and meet with constituents—as well as a place to study legislation away from the confusion of public chambers where they often feel overly accessible to perennially talkative lobbyists and other favor seekers.

David Johnston, commission director, indicated he would name a committee of eight members to study Statehouse space utilization and facilities, Gray said.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Two divorces catch her in the middle

DEAR ABBY: My brother left his wife and five children and got a divorce. My close friend subsequently divorced her husband. It soon came out that my brother and my friend had been seeing each other for a few years before their divorces. They are presently living together and plan to be married soon. I hope they will find the happiness together they lacked in their former marriages, but there is a problem:

I have always been very close to my brother's wife, and I adore the children. My brother says that his ex-wife is no longer a part of the family, and that if I want to see the children I should do so when he has them for visitation. Brother says that if his ex-wife is invited to any family gatherings, he and his wife-to-be will not come.

I don't want to have to choose whom to invite to my home for a family affair, but I am told that since my brother is closer to me than his ex-wife, he should not have to stay away. During the holidays, I invited everyone and left the decision up to those who wanted to come, but there was side-choosing and ill feelings so I cancelled the party. My own children are being denied associating with their cousins, and remaining neutral is not easy. Please help.

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Your brother divorced his wife, you didn't, so don't let him dictate who you shall have in your home. Ask everyone you want, and if Brother doesn't want to come, let him stay away.

DEAR ABBY: Several of us have a question to ask to which we have been unable to find an answer.

When a married man is invited to be a guest speaker for a women's club (business or social), what about his wife?

The affair is usually held in the evening at a motel or hotel beginning with a dinner. What is the speaker's wife supposed to do while her husband is being fussed over by a bunch of women?

I feel that if a club can't afford two meals, they should get speakers from their membership.

Also, what if the meeting is out of town over a weekend? Don't you think the speaker's wife should be invited too? Please straighten us out on this. A

CLUB DIVIDED

DEAR CLUB: It is customary when inviting a speaker to let him know that his wife is welcome, too. If this courtesy is omitted and the speaker wants his wife to be included, he should say so. Weekends? Absolutely -if the budget permits.

DEAR ABBY: To the lady who was 30 and recently divorced and wanted to know where to go to meet men. Here's what I did at age 36 and newly divorced:

I called around to all the churches (all denominations) and got information on all the religious and social gatherings in churches sponsored for singles in my age group. Then I made a list and took turns visiting all the churches. It took alot of courage to go to so many strange groups alone, but it paid off because at the Unitarian church I met just the man for me. We have been happily married for 15 years.

HAPPY IN HOUSTON

DEAR HAPPY: Some people go to church to pray. Others go to pray they meet someone. To each his own.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's rare for a major company to invite viewer comments on a show it sponsors. It's even rarer for the company's board chairman to go on TV to help out with the corporate invitations.

But in the case of E.M. deWindt and his firm, the Eaton Corp., it's resulted in what the company says is more than 10,000 viewer letters on just two hour-long programs.

The shows were the opening salvos in CBS' "The American Parade," a 13-part series of historical programs the network will air through 1976 to help celebrate the American bicentennial.

The first show, "We, the Women," narrated by Mary Tyler Moore, aired March 17. The second, "Power and the Presidency," narrated by George C. Scott, was broadcast last Wednesday.

At the end of each, deWindt appeared on camera, made a brief speech about the show and asked viewers to share their thoughts about the show with the series' sponsor, Eaton Corp.

Then an off-camera announcer gave the address of the Cleveland-based company, which manufactures truck, auto and industrial vehicle components.

The mail response to "We, the Women" was nearly 10,000 letters, according to an Eaton spokesman who said the second show drew more than 500 letters over the weekend "and the mail is still coming in."

DeWindt, who estimated that 50 per cent of the mail was addressed to him personally, said the idea of going on camera initially surprised him when it was brought up.

"I don't think I'd thought very much about it because this whole package was really tied to the bicentennial celebration," he said.

He got in the act, he added, because "I think we were trying to personalize it and get people involved in the spirit of the bicentennial. And I think we were particularly anxious to find out if we were hitting the mark."

Does he feel more top business executives should appear on television as spokesmen for shows their companies are sponsoring?

"Well, I don't advocate it but I'm not against it," deWindt said. "It depends on what the company may be trying to accomplish."

Mysterious 'red box' mentioned

"Have they found the box yet?" the President asked, according to his Watergate tapes transcripts.

Dean: "(Then Acting FBI Director L. Patrick) Gray has never had access to the box. He is now going to pursue the box ....

Haldeman: "The latest public story was that she handed it over to Edward Bennett Williams."

Dean: "That is right."

Haldeman: "The Bureau ought to go into Edward Bennett Williams and start questioning him and have him tied up for a couple of days."

Nixon: "Yeah, I hope they do. The Bureau better get over pretty quick and get that little red box. We want it cleared up. We want to get to the bottom of it. If anybody is guilty over here we want to know."

Haldeman: "It will probably be in the news."

Edward Bennett Williams is the well-known attorney, but there is no hint to the identity of the woman involved—or as to what the "little red box" was all about.

Quality of loans worrisome

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As consumers find themselves caught in the pincers of rising prices and shrinking buying power, credit officers are growing a bit apprehensive about the quality of their loans.

Similar conditions in the past almost always have caused the number of "slow pay" accounts to rise automatically, and almost nobody expects this year to be an exception. Evidence of deterioration already is clear.

What makes this year's situation potentially critical is the likelihood that inflation will continue unabated or at a high level for many months more, possibly accompanied by a deteriorating economy.

The worst situation seems to exist in mobile home loans, where delinquencies for the January-February period rose sharply to 4.34 per cent, and repossessions averaged 7.21 per 1,000 loans.

The American Bankers Association, which made the report, considers a loan delinquent when a payment is more than 30 days overdue. However, some merchants and lenders also report deterioration of nondelinquent accounts.

William Ford, ABA chief economist, said the delinquency ratio for all installment loans rose to a record high of 2.69 per cent, breaking the previous high of 2.53 per cent set in the final two months of 1973.

The situation in the home mortgage area is less clear. While the Mortgage Bankers Association reported delinquencies for the final quarter of 1973 at a 20-year high, savings and loan associations found little or no increase.

The mortgage bankers said 4.7 per cent of its loans were a month or more past due in the final three months of the year, topping the previous high of 4.65 per cent in the comparable period of 1972.

The U.S. League of Savings Associations reported, however, that "The recent runaway inflation appears to have had no appreciable effect on the regularity with which the American family pays its mortgage payments."

It reported that loan delinquency for the first quarter of 1974 was only .82 per cent, or less than 1 per cent of all its loans outstanding. A year ago the rate was almost identical.

The savings associations use a much more liberal measure of what constitutes a delinquency, at least from the borrower's point of view. In its compilations a loan isn't delinquent until it is 60 days overdue.

These are the delinquency ratios compiled by the ABA for various types of installment loans:

Personal, 3.24 per cent of outstanding loans, up 6 per cent from the previous two-month period; mobile homes, 4.34 per cent, up 23 per cent; property improvement, 2.20 per cent, up 20 per cent; direct automobile loans, 1.66 per cent, no change; indirect auto loans (through auto dealer), 2.55 per cent, up 8 per cent.

During the past two decades, deaths from accidents among preschool children in the United States decreased only half as rapidly as deaths from disease.

Mrs. Parsley attends AAUW meet

Mrs. Edith Parsley, president of the local American Association of University Women, attended many of the sessions of the 23rd biennial conference of the northeast central region Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Indianapolis, Ind. The conference took place in the Indianapolis Hilton Hotel.

The region is composed of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. The keynote address was given by Mrs. Mary S. Coleman, the first women to be a Supreme Court Justice in Michigan. A former Miss Maryland, she spoke to over 400 women on "Are You a Sleeping Beauty?" She challenged all to influence the difficult choices facing a changing world in 'Shaping Tomorrow-Today.' She stressed the need for study of current problems in the areas of environment, consumer needs, family life, the court system (especially juvenile courts), education, and the rules and rights of men and women. She quoted Justice Holmes "It is not enough to know where you stand, you must know where you are going."

The northeast central region of AAUW has been very interested in the Great Lakes Basin Commission since 1972, and represents the only organized public view point. At the conference, it was voted to continue this pilot project - the Great Lakes Task Force.

Strawberry Shortcakes

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES—They're served the old-time way, with "pour" cream.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Nowadays cooks are likely to make individual biscuits for strawberry shortcake rather than to bake the biscuit dough the old-fashioned way, in one large round pan. This new custom evolved because only the number of biscuits to be served at a particular meal need be filled and topped with the berries whereas the big strawberry-doused shortcake doesn't hold over. Because in the following recipe the biscuits are made with solid white vegetable shortening, we've added grated orange rind for flavor; they're medium-rich with soft thick insides. In some families the traditional New England way of serving strawberry shortcake with "pour" cream still prevails, as called for in this rule.

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES

2 pints strawberries
Honey
1¾ cups unsifted flour, stir to aerate before measuring
3 teaspoons baking powder
¾ to 1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
Grated rind of medium orange, about 2 teaspoons
1-3rd cup shortening
¾ cup (about) milk
Butter, soft
8-ounce container heavy cream

Rinse strawberries in cold water; drain, hull and slice; mix in ¼ cup honey; let stand at room temperature or refrigerate. In a large mixing bowl thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, salt, sugar and orange rind; with a pastry blender cut in shortening until particles are tiny. With a fork, stir in enough of the milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on a floured pastry cloth and knead 6 times. Roll or pat dough to ½-inch thickness; using a 3-inch round cookie cutter, cut into 8 biscuits. Place well apart on ungreased cookie sheet; bake in a preheated 450-degree oven until golden brown —12 to 15 minutes. At once split hot biscuits; spread inner surfaces with soft butter and honey; place cut sides up on dessert plates; fill with some of the sliced strawberries and replace biscuit tops. Spoon remaining berries over top of shortcakes. Spoon 2 tablespoons cream around each biscuit. Serve at once. Makes 8 servings.

Celery pleases dieters

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Over the past half-dozen years increasing numbers of calorie-watchers have been made aware that celery is a low-calorie vegetable worth having in the refrigerator. The raw vegetable, nibbled out of hand, can stave off an appetite for richer food. But celery is also excellent cooked, and recently we came upon an interesting new recipe for doing just that.

In this preparation the French seasoning combination called mirepoix is used with wedges of celery and ovenbraised. Mirepoix is a mixture of carrot, onion and celery (and sometimes ham) seasoned with thyme and bay leaf and cookied until tender in a little butter. Its classic use is in meat, poultry, fish and shellfish dishes, as well as in certain sauces, to enhance flavor. When we tried it with the braised celery wedges, we thought it made a pleasing partner.

CELERY MIREPOIX

1 stalk celery
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup diced pared carrots
¾ cup minced onion
1 chicken bouillon cube
½ cup boiling water
½ teaspoon dried thyme
1 bay leaf

Trim tops from celery so that stalk is about 6 inches long. Run a swivel-blade vegetable peeler down the outside ribs to remove any coarse strings; pare the root end. Cut stalk into 6 lengthwise wedges. Rinse the wedges under cold running water, gently holding the ribs apart to wash but not detach them from the root end.

Remove leaves from tops; dice enough of the tops to make 1 cup. Refrigerate leaves and any remaining tops and use in some other dish.

In an 8-inch skillet over low heat melt the butter. Add diced celery, carrot and onion; cover and simmer, stirring often, until tender. Spread over bottom of an 11¾ by 7½ by 1¾ inch glass baking dish or similar utensil; top with celery wedges.

Dissolve the bouillon cube in the boiling water; add thyme and bay leaf; pour over celery wedges. Cover tightly with foil and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until celery wedges are soft — about 55 minutes. Serve hot.

Makes 6 servings.

Hearty and nutritious breakfast food: oatmeal pancakes (made from scratch) with sliced ripe bananas added to the batter. Serve with butter or margarine and maple syrup.

While in Texas, Mrs. Wilburn and her family traveled to southern Texas and on to Mexico. They visited the Market Place in Nuevo Laredo, Mex., the Mission of San Jose, Alamo, Lone Star Brewery, and the River Walk in San Antonio. On the return trip, they saw the LBJ Library in Austin. In San Antonio they met and talked with famed country singer and western guitarist Chet Atkins.

Recipes sometimes call for "greasing and flouring" a pan. To do this, use a piece of paper toweling and rub solid white shortening over the entire inside surface of the pan; then sprinkle the greased surface with flour, shaking the pan back and forth to coat evenly. Finally, invert the pan and gently knock the bottom to remove excess flour.

A pound of apples (three to four medium) will yield about 1½ cups of applesauce.

Rotarians hear review of district conference

A report on the Rotary District No. 667 conference, held last weekend, was heard by members of the Washington Rotary Club during their regular weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Country Club.

More than 450 Rotarians, their wives and foreign exchange students attended the conference, hosted by the Washington C.H. club Saturday and Sunday at Kings Island Inn, north of Cincinnati.

Phil Grover, club president, said the event was one of the most outstanding district conferences held in a number of years.

District Gov. Robert Haigler, of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club who presided over the conference, said he wasn't at all surprised with the success since the club here is the best one in the district.

DISTRICT 667 includes 46 clubs and more than 3,000 members in the southwestern quarter of Ohio. The district includes clubs in Cincinnati, Dayton and Springfield, stretching as far north as Piqua.

Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, who served as the conference chairman, singled out various committee chairmen during the meeting who assisted in making the conference such a success.

It was announced during the business meeting that Bruce Galloway, who was recently elected as a new member of the club's board of directors, has resigned from the position. The board announced that it has appointed James Hanawalt to fill the vacancy created by Galloway's resignation. Hanawalt will become the club's sergeant-at-arms in July.

KEITH M. BREWSTER, administrator of the Ohio Masonic Home in Springfield, was the guest speaker for Tuesday's meeting.

Brewster said there are 40 Masonic homes in the country, and the facility at Springfield has about 500 Masons as patients.

He noted that the average length of stay is five years and that 82 is the average age of the patients. Residents of the facility pay what they can afford, and care is provided by the home's staff.

The guest spaker also spoke about the drastic change in medical care over the last 20 years. He said nothing has been able to fill the need, although there are bills presently before Congress proposing a National Health Care program.

Glenn Hemsworth arranged the program.

Student guests were Don Wheat, of WSHS, and Steve Tarbutton, of MTHS. Visiting Rotarians were Merrill Kaufman, of Delaware, Darrell French, of Wilmington, and Jerry Ardrey, of London. Guests were Bill Mathison with Bill Williams, Richard Kern with Don Pierce and David Six with Hemsworth.

Nixon was against Ervin panel probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate hearings brought full public attention to the scandal, but only a month before they began, President Nixon told aides privately: "I don't think the committee hearings will ever go forward."

Later the same day, April 17, 1973, he said: "I don't want the damn Ervin committee to go forward."

Nixon believed Agnew liked Presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frustrated by the Watergate affair and angry over press reports concerning it, President Nixon once said "I sometimes feel like resigning" and letting Vice President Spiro T. Agnew "be president for a while."

"He'd love it," Nixon said.

According to transcripts of taped conversations released by the White House, the remarks were made on April 27, 1973, in Nixon's Oval Office, with Deputy Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen and White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler present.

Agnew had not yet been implicated publicly in the Maryland graft investigation that eventually would lead to his own resignation 5½ months later.

Cincy vice mayor quits in vice probe

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Vice Mayor Gerald Springer, whose sudden resignation sent shock waves through local political circles, said Tuesday he was stepping down because "the public has a right to expect very high standards of its officials and I feel I have violated that standard."

Springer was to become the youngest mayor in Cincinnati history in December. He is a Democrat.

The 30-year-old attorney has been linked to a vice investigation involving his visits to a northern Kentucky health club which allegedly fronted as a prostitution operation.

Springer admitted at a Tuesday news conference that he had made two visits to a Ft. Wright, Ky., motel where the health club was located.

Both visits were paid by check, he said.

He said he engaged in activities "which, at least to me, are questionable."

Springer said the actions "weighed heavily on my conscience" and prompted him to contact the FBI. He said he "voluntarily answered all inquiries of what I had done and of what I had knowledge."

He said he will be better able to confront "this situation as a private citizen."

The prostitution trial is under way in Covington, Ky., federal court.

He said he went to the FBI when he heard of the investigation into the health club.

Springer, a New York native who entered politics four years ago, was one of the top vote getters in the past two city council campaigns.

Cincinnati council selects the mayor from its ranks. The city also has a city manager and the mayor's position is largely ceremonial.

Springer rose rapidly after an unsuccessful but surprisingly strong showing against U.S. Rep. Donald Clancy in 1970. Springer was in his second two-year term.

He said he had visited several health clubs in Cincinnati "on a number of occasions. These were solely for legitimate purposes. To the best of my knowledge, no club in Cincinnati which I visited was engaged in any improper or illegal activities."

"I believe the interest of the public is best served by my resignation until such times as the air has been cleared," he said.

He added that he hoped to someday "return to public life."

Negotiations slated in Ohio U walkout

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Negotiations are scheduled to resume Thursday between student employes and administrators at Ohio University on selection of bargaining agents for student workers.

School officials prefer one union organization to represent the estimated 2,000 student workers, while Student Workers Union leaders wanted to divide employes into five bargaining units.

About 250 members of the SWU struck last week. When they ended the strike, OU President Claude Sowle agreed to an immediate five cent salary hike, a similar hike next year, and an election to determine a contract bargaining agent.

In a case reported in 1888, a 15-year-old female patient yawned continuously for a period of five weeks.

Paint Creek Lake manager selected

GREENFIELD — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has named a new manager for Paint Creek Lake, just south of Greenfield. He is John W. Lovell, who comes here from the John W. Hannagan Dam at Haysi, Va.

Lovell's actual title is resource manager, since the job covers not only flood control operations for which the lake was built, but also management of the lake, the acreage around it, wildlife management and other chores.

He will operate the recreation part of the management area until the state of Ohio takes over and then will continue to supervise the recreation since the Corps will still own the lake and land area.

The manager, a 20-year veteran, was formerly at Derven Lake, Ky., Greenup (Ky.) Lock and Dam on the Ohio River and Lock No. 30 on the Ohio River. He is residing in Greenfield.

IT NOW APPEARS that Paint Creek Lake will be stocked with fish next year following a meeting held in Greenfield with State Sen. Harry Armstrong, of Logan, and three representatives of the Ohio Division of Wildlife.

It was explained that stocking programs in Ohio in past years have not been successful, and the no-stocking plan at paint Creek Lake is an experiment to assist in reaching decisions on stocking other Ohio lakes.

Paint Creek Lake will be allowed to stock itself with fish which presently are in feeder streams. According to a recent survey, there are a number of breeder bass in the waters and because of the fertility of the creeks and lake the fish should stock the lake rapidly.

After the lake is stabilized, a decision will be made about whether to stock the lake, and if so, with what type of fish.

Certain bugging remains mystery

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon feared in April 1973 that his counsel, John W. Dean III, might reveal a certain bugging.

Nixon said "I feel uneasy" that Dean might "go popping off about everything else that is done in the government, you know, the bugging of the ...."

But the transcript of a meeting among Nixon, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman doesn't identify the site of the eavesdropping effort.

Town meeting set Thursday

The first in a possible series of old-fashioned town meetings will be held for residents of the city's Third Ward at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Belle Aire Elementary School.

The town meeting session has been planned by the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce's public relations task force in an attempt to better inform area residents of items of local interest and also to provide an opportunity for business and related groups to show their respect of the populous.

City Manager Dan Wolford, representatives of the Washington C.H. police and fire departments, Darrell Clark, owner of Clark's Cardinal Store, Paul Johnson, of Armco Steel Corp.'s Metal Products Division plant in Washington C.H., Edwin M. Nestor, superintendent of Washington C.H. city schools, and Robert S. Rochester, editor of The Record-Herald will serve as panelists.

Chamber President Fred Domenico will serve as the panel moderator and will field questions from the audience. An opportunity for those in attendance to submit written questions also will be provided.

New minimum wage bill effective today

For all employes covered prior to 1966 (present rate $1.60), May 1, $2; Jan. 1, 1975, $2.10 and Jan. 1, 1976, $2.30.

For employes first covered in 1966 or 1974 (present rate $1.60), May 1, $1.90; Jan. 1, 1975, $2; Jan. 1, 1976, $2.10 and Jan. 1, 1977, $2.30.

For agricultural employes (present rate $1.30), May 1, $1.60; Jan. 1, 1975, $1.80; Jan. 1, 1976, $2; Jan. 1, 1977, $2.20 and Jan. 1, 1978, $2.30.

There will be a phaseout of the minimum wage and overtime exemption for small retail and service establishments (those with annual sales of under $250,000) which are part of a larger enterprise, such as a chain, which grosses in excess of $250,000 annually. The test for coverage of such a small retail or service establishment will drop to $225,000 on Jan. 1, 1975, to $200,000 on Jan. 1, 1976 and will be eliminated on Jan. 1, 1977.

Mitchell study brought quote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Observing that a trial of John N. Mitchell would take a long time but that the former attorney general would never plead guilty in the Watergate affair, President Nixon asked on April 17, 1973, "What would you do if you were Mitchell?"

"I think I would probably go to Saudi Arabia to tell you the truth," replied Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen.

"Poison," mused Nixon.

Cash for rail service study eyed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— State Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese says his special rail transit committee will probably request funds from the Ohio General Assembly in a couple of weeks for detailed studies of a proposed rail passenger link between Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati.

Calabrese said Tuesday that although the energy crisis appears to have lessened, "it is still crucial that we establish mass transit programs."

The committee heard several rough cost estimates on the proposed three-city rail link from Amtrak and Penn Central Transportation Co. officials during a hearing here Tuesday.

Bruce Miller, a Penn Central engineering executive, said it would cost $22 million to upgrade present tracks on the Cleveland-Cincinnati route to handle 60-mile-per-hour traffic.

He said to make the track usable at 79 m.p.h. would cost $37 million, and to boost the speed to 100 m.p.h. would cost $60 million.

Amtrak officials appearing at the hearing concurred with Miller's estimates and said purchases of rolling stock and maintenance would boost costs much higher.

David Watts, director of state and local affairs for Amtrak, said that for rehabilitation of passenger lines and equipment in the "northeast corridor" from Boston to Washington, "they're talking about an overall total of $500 million, and they think that may not be enough.

"So you see you're looking at big money," Watts added.

He said that before Amtrak would take over operation of the Ohio run the national rail passenger service would require a contract from the state guaranteeing a subsidy to cover operating losses.

Calabrese, D-Cleveland, questioned the figures and said that if other committee members agree he will ask the Legislature for $100,000 to hire a "qualified consultant."

"We'll have to go it ourselves," he said. "You can't get the answers from these people."

He said he hopes a solid proposal can be developed for state and federal funding to reestablish passenger rail service between the cities.

Questioned about a timetable for getting high-speed passenger service in operation, Watts said "if they started work immediately, operations might begin by the end of 1976 or the end of '77."

Miller said it would be possible "to start passenger service tomorrow, if you don't mind taking eight or nine hours to get to Cincinnati."

He said there are many stretches on the line at present where speed limits are 10, 20 or 30 miles per hour because of the track conditions.

Bad news bared for U.S. farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) —The government had mixed news for the consumer on Tuesday as it documented some bad news many farmers already realized.

The Agriculture Department's monthly report on prices farmers receive for their raw products showed a decline of 6 per cent by April 15. It came on the heels of a 4 per cent fall from mid-February to mid-March after three months of winter recovery.

The mid-April price index's decline was the worst since last autumn. The highest food prices since the end of World War II were recorded in August, but in the next three months farm prices fell 8 per cent, 4 per cent and 1.5 per cent.

But the expenses farmers incur for operations, living expenses and taxes have risen 16 per cent in the same period, the report showed, eating up any improvement in their financial status to the point where another index showed they are at the same income-versus-costs point as they were this time a year ago.

For consumers — including farmers who purchase groceries, clothing, and feed — the report's significance was not so immediately clear.

On the one hand, a drop in the price of raw farm products should bring a drop in both wholesale and retail food prices. But those decisions are up to the middlemen who buy the goods at the farm level, process, package, deliver and sell them on the grocery shelves. Price changes have a traditional lead time of about three weeks.

Although the Tuesday reports show a five-tenths of one per cent decline in the prices farm families paid for food in mid-April, the latest USDA statistics show a continuing upward swing since October in the margins middlemen are taking from the retail prices of food.

The report showed price increases among the major crops for only potatoes and cotton, which went up 5 per cent from mid-March to record level 116 per cent above a year ago.

Oil pipeline closing down

OIL CITY, Pa. (AP)—An oil pipeline company here, once part of John D. Rockefeller's mighty Standard Oil Trust, is permanently closing its main lines. The firm blames an expensive state antipollution order.

The shutdown of National Transit Company's two main lines will take six weeks, said Thomas L. O'Shea, a one-time company ditch digger who worked his way up to vice president for operations.

The two lines, which have carried crude oil from Ohio and West Virginia to northwestern Pennsylvania, have been polluting state waterways, according to state charges.

National Transit, owned by Pennzoil Co., will remain in business, operating about 2,000 small lines transporting oil from private wells to truck tanks; and an oil distribution center in Bradford.

Both O'Shea, in a telephone interview, and the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources agree the pipelines leak. In 1971, the department ordered the company to pay $2,500 annually for five years to cover prospective damages from leaks. This eliminated the need for assessments after each new leak.

Man fined, jailed following ruckus

A Bloomingburg man who had been arrested by city police was found guilty of disorderly conduct in Municipal Court Tuesday. He had pleaded no contest.

Acting Judge John P. Case sentenced Dewey T. Keaton, 29, to 10 days in jail and fined him $100.

According to the police report, Keaton was involved in a domestic quarrel when officers arrived. Persisting after the officers' arrival, he was placed under arrest and fled. He then struggled with the officers as they attempted to handcuff him and had to be forced into the patrol car.

Governor's Conference on Aging May 22-23

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Statewide nutrition programs and other senior citizens programs will be discussed at the 1974 Governor's Conference on Aging May 22-23, Gov. John J. Gilligan announced Tuesday.

The governor also proclaimed May Older Americans Month in Ohio during a visit to the Linton Gardens Senior Center.

Traffic Court

Acting Municipal Court Judge John P. Case ordered that a Lancaster man's operator's license be suspended for six months Tuesday after the defendant was found guilty of driving while intoxicated.

Donald W. Morris, 34, also was fined $200 and sentenced to 30 days in jail, 27 of which were suspended. He had been arrested by city police for driving while intoxicated and then refused to take a breathalyzer test to determine his blood alcohol level.

Under the law, Morris is subject to a six-month suspension of his license for refusing the test, even if he is not found guilty of the charge.

Ninteen other persons were scheduled to appear on traffic charges.

ALBERS FOOD STORES

The food industry, in response to requests from the government and consumer groups, has adopted a standard program of meat identification. Albers supermarkets are among the first in this area to institute the program.

By reducing the number of cuts and eliminating many confusing and fanciful names, food shoppers will be able to make more valid comparisons . . . to select meats more wisely . . . to be sure of getting their money's worth . . . to prepare meats in the most economical and most appetizing manner

By referring to the Primal cut, homemakers can easily determine the best way of cooking any particular portion. Most standard cookbooks recommend preparation methods according to the primary cut.

Of course, meat grades are not changed. Albers continues to sell USDA Choice Beef and USDA Inspected Pork, Lamb and Poultry.

Words on the labels have changed but you can still be confident that Albers meats are second to none.

THE KIND OF MEAT (beef, veal, pork or lamb) IS LISTED FIRST.

THE PRIMARY CUT, or primal cut, such as loin, rib, chuck or round--indicating what part of the animal it comes from.

THE SPECIFIC PORTION ...roast, steak, chops for instance. Sometimes referred to as retail cut.

PAPER SMASHER — The upstroke baler at Cartwright Salvage can eat a truckload of paper before coughing up a 800 to 1,500-pound bale. Don Queen is shown here feeding the machine's giant jaws with cardboard cartons. The bales of waste paper are then shipped to mills in Southern Ohio to be reprocessed for commercial use.

WCH scrap paper helps feed mills

By GEORGE MALEK

Recycling of waste material has blossomed as a major aspect, especially in industrial areas, of the current movement to conserve national resources.

Yet, Washington C.H. has had a recycling operation since 1962 — before the trend became popular nationwide.

Cartwright Salvage, the Robinson Road trash collection center managed by Loren Cartwright, sends three truckloads of discarded paper products to mills throughout Southern Ohio each week.

Mills located in Lancaster, Circleville, Portsmouth, Cincinnati and Baltimore regularly receive bales of waste paper from Washington C.H.

"Most of what we are able to recycle comes from the downtown area, from paper drives and from newspaper collection points," Cartwright said.

HE EXPLAINED that the paper must be separated by grades. It is divided into such groups of newspapers, corrugated boxes and gloss finish paper, including magazines, cartoons and waxed papers. Paper sacks from feed, minerals and fertilizer also can be recycled.

It would be almost impossible, and certainly unprofitable, to shuffle through the coffee grounds, garbage, bottles and cans discarded by the average homeowner just to retrieve a few scraps of paper, he points out.

Downtown business places, however, discard almost entirely paper products. It is worthwhile to salvage and sort what is collected from them.

"Profitable", he observed, is a misleading word. Although paper is in brisk demand right now, most of the time he loses money on the recycling operation but not as much as in disposing of it by other means.

Cartwright explained that while the money received for the paper does not usually cover the cost of sorting, baling and shipping the material, the loss is not as great as the expense of hauling it 16 miles to the county landfill and paying the dumping fees. Thus, while not generating a profit, it is a means of reducing disposal costs.

THE PAPER is compressed into bales which range in weight from 800 to 1,500 pounds each. The finished bale is approximately six by three by four feet, or 72 cubic feet of paper. An average of 10 bales are turned out each day by the local firm.

Because the paper must be sorted it is never collected by the hopper-type trucks. These trucks crush their contents, making it very difficult to sort. The trash for recycling is collected in covered flatbed trucks.

Each bale contains approximately a fully loaded truck of waste paper. The bales are then sold through a broker to respective mills. The type of paper product processed by the mill determines which types of scrap it can accept.

Corrugated boxes can be remade into more boxes, and newspapers, can be recycled, but magazines and waxed cartoons usually are used in only the lowest grades of paper. Most of this type is sent to a Cincinnati mill which manufactures roofing materials. Only recently has this type of waste paper been useable at all.

ASKED about the function of the broker, Cartwright explained that it is actually the broker who sells the paper to the mill. "He consigns the paper from us and then delivers it to the mill in his own trucks", he stated.

"If I, or some other citizen, sent a truckload of paper to the mill, it wouldn't be accepted. They buy only from the brokers," he said. "You just can't get around the middle man". Metal has been recycled almost everywhere for years, Cartwright said, mainly because it has enough value to make it worthwhile. Even glass is now being recycled in some isolated instances.

However, since glass is difficult to retrieve and the quantity available in Washington C.H. is so small, recycling of the material in this area is not likely in the foreseeable future, he said.

As increasingly sophisticated techniques are developed more and more materials will become subject to recycling, and the chances to conserve resources as well as alleviate the burden on landfill operations will increase proportionately.

Judge Marchant approved discipline imposed by her mother and no further disposition was made. The youth was arrested April 16 by city police for operating a vehicle with an unsafe bumper height.

John W. Anders, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Anders, 1123 S. Main St., was adjudged to be a juvenile traffic offender by Judge Marchant. The youth was arrested April 16 by city police for operating a vehicle with an unsafe bumper height and the court approved disclipline imposed by the youth's parents.

Robin C. Henize, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henize, Post Rd., was adjudged to be a juvenile traffic offender and Judge Marchant suspended the youth's operator's license for a period of 30 days. The youth was arrested April 12 by city police on a charge of speeding.

6 Demos vie for secretary of state's job

By HENRY HEILBRUNN
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Six Democrats, all but one of whom has worked in government before, seek the nomination for secretary of state in the May 7 primary.

On the Republican side, 67-year-old Ted W. Brown, the incumbent for the past 23 years, is unopposed.

William K. Brown is the sixth candidate. He is virtually unknown and is not campaigning actively, apparently relying on his "Brown" name for votes. The 53-year-old self-employed businessman claims he is a "conservative Democrat."

Kennedy, 36, won the nomination in 1970 with almost 60 per cent of the vote, but lost in the general election by 300,000 votes.

"We ought to do a better job trying to stimulate voting turnout through educational means," Kennedy said, who gave up his state liquor auditing job to run. "We have to put some kind of program together through voter education."

He has campaigned hard in Cleveland where he repeats his 1970 issues: mobile registration, door-to-door registration, reduction of residency requirement, mandatory voter registration and extention of polling hours.

Kennedy, who acknowledges he has a popular name, fought hard for a state party endorsement. Instead, Hall received the backing of the Democratic party, and substantial financial and strategic support.

But Hall, 32, is fighting an uphill battle for name recognition.

He never has run in a statewide campaign and until recently was unknown outside Montgomery County, where he was elected twice to the Ohio House and once to the Senate. His father was a former Dayton mayor.

"The current secretary of state has done nothing to bring Ohio election procedures into the 20th century," Hall tells voters.

"While other states have been modernizing election processes. . . Ohio has continued to plod along with outdated practices which have been perpetuated by the state's chief election officer," he said.

Hall campaigns to make uniform election laws throughout Ohio's 88 counties and standardize voting procedures.

"The corruption of Watergate has already infected the office of Ohio's secretary of state," said R. Kent Bell, 25, another candidate. "Ted Brown is a partisan Republican and should be defeated for the office."

Bell is chief deputy auditor for his father, Columbiana County Auditor Kenneth Bell. He is the youngest statewide candidate and is making his first try for elective office.

He said registration should remain in effect despite housing moves, biographical information should be distributed about all statewide candidates by the state and the legislature should review the secretary's decisions more carefully.

Miss Bingle, a former research director for the governor's office, tries to campaign in two counties a day on a $3,000 budget.

She pledged a comprehensive list of election reforms, including permanent registration and door-to-door registration. Miss Bingle, 30, packages her recommendations as a "right to vote" proposal.

"Ohio citizens lose their right to vote under the present haphazard administration and the lack of uniform and rational procedures from county to county and within counties," she said.

Thompson, 39, has held jobs with the Democratic administrations in both Columbus city government and state government.

A former examiner in the state auditor's office, Thompson was a candidate for treasurer in 1970. He placed third in a field of three.

"As secretary of state, I believe one of the most important functions should be to encourage people to vote and take a personal interest as well as his duty to head registration drives in our state," Thompson said.

If elected, he said he would extend voting until 9 p.m. "for all working people to have an opportunity to vote."

Polls now close at 6:30 p.m.

Youngsters salute May Day

With the help of an elementary art instructor and some young city students, the community education program has generated some interest in May Day.

Under Miss Shirley Carmichael, students in kindergarten through the third grade have been making cards to take or send to senior citizens and shut-ins in Washington C.H.

A list of more 400 names of senior citizens was compiled with the help of nursing home officials and seniors organizations.

More than 700 students have participated in making the cards during their art periods in school. Although it was not mandatory that the students mail the cards to the senior citizen whose name was given to them, many expressed a desire to do so.

"If just a little happiness can be brought into the lives of citizens who receive a card or a letter on May Day, the program will have been a success," said Hank Shaffer, program coordinator.

Twins upset scheduling

ELKHART, Ind. (AP) — Kindergarten teacher Mrs. Janice Horan received school board approval for maternity leave beginning Dec. 21. Then the doctor changed his mind and Mrs. Horan got the board to approve leave beginning Jan. 25.

The identical twins Jennifer and Colleen changed their minds and emergency board approval was given for maternity leave effective Dec. 29, the day the two girls arrived.

Gilligan aims campaign at November election

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John G. Gilligan, by his own admission, is "campaigning around the fringes" for a second term as Ohio's chief executive. The approach is deceptive.

For one, Gilligan is throwing his weight around in other races. And, for another, the calculated politics of office, he contends will pay off.

"My own campaigning has been minimal," Gilligan said "what time I've spent I've spent trying to help the rest of the ticket — Celeste, Hall, Metzenbaum."

Gilligan, in fact, arranged to stump the north the week before the with state Rep. Richard Celeste, D-5 Cleveland, the Democratic party's chosen candidate for lieutenant governor, and state Sen. Tony Hall, D-6 Dayton, its pick for secretary of state.

"According to the polls, I have a 98 per cent recognition factor in Ohio," Gilligan said. "Obviously, Celeste and Hall don't have anything approaching that.

"It's for them, though I don't know how much I could do," he added.

Then there's the sheer power of an incumbent. "He does enjoy access to the media," the governor acknowledged. "He has the ability to keep people aware he's around."

Take the report from the Governor's Task Force on Health Care in Ohio. It's on Gilligan's desk now, for public release just before the election.

"It was timed to come just before the election," Gilligan said.

Gilligan, 53, had by many standards a full political career behind him when he was swept into office in 1970. He won the 1969 election by about 350,000 votes.

The Cincinnati native taught literature at Xavier University for five years before being elected to the City Council in 1953. He served seven two-year terms.

In 1964, Gilligan was elected to Congress from Ohio's 1st District, but was defeated in a bid for re-election the next term.

He lost a race for the U.S. Senate in 1968 to William B. Saxbe, President Nixon's attorney general.

Gilligan acknowledges he's looking past the May 7 primary to the general election campaign, where he'll probably face either former Gov. James A. Rhodes or state Rep. Charles Fry, R-75 Springfield, candidates for Republican nomination.

"I think Rhodes is the most formidable candidate the Republicans could put up," Gilligan observed. "I think he's the one I'd like to run against."

In that case — and to a lesser extent against Fry—political records would be the important issue, Gilligan said.

"It's fairly easy to compare the performance of various programs," he said. "We'd look to his approaches to such things as mental health, environmental protection, education, taxation, ethics..."

And about Fry? "He was in office when Rhodes was governor, and he didn't say much then," said Gilligan.

Either way, said the governor, "it will be a contrast with the old and the new, a real chance for the people of Ohio to make a meaningful decision, to look at factual material not buried under campaign rhetoric."

Money, obviously, will be of little concern. Gilligan's campaign chairman, Peter O'Grady, told reporters weeks ago the governor would spend $1.5 million to get re-elected.

O'Grady last month reported receipts of $267,785 and expenditures of $148,420 for the period Oct. 1, 1973-April 8, 1974.

"I've long been a firm believer in the value of citizen involvement in political activities and campaigns," Gilligan said. "It's my conviction that given Watergate and given the now legal and self-imposed limits on campaign financing, the use of citizen volunteers will be even more important than ever.

"I'm spending the time I have to campaign attracting and activating and energizing volunteers."

Gilligan came in for some sharp criticism for his support of the Democratic party's candidate endorsement program — the same one that gave Hall, Celeste and U.S. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, party backing.

One of the key complainants was John Glenn, former astronaut and Metzenbaum's opponent May 7.

"I think that any party worth its salt should endorse candidates in a political campaign. Given the wide open primaries in Ohio, if a party does not get in and sift and recommend the most highly qualified, then we get into this silly name game."

A Glenn victory in May wouldn't mean that much to the process, Gilligan said. "But I think if both Celeste and Hall are beaten, or either one of them lose, it would seriously weaken the attraction of the endorsement procedure," he said.

"Of course, if both win, I think we've opened a new era of politics in Ohio," he added.

Nolan struggles against Gilligan

By CHARLES R. HORNICK
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — James D. Nolan is a politician who uses phrases that a mechanic might employ in expressing himself.

He isn't bothered by the fact that most people feel he has little chance of defeating incumbent John J. Gilligan in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor in the May 7 primary.

"I understand the nuts and bolts of government and how to make the gears mesh," said Nolan, a Cleveland nursing home operator.

He said his biggest problem is "getting people to realize that I'm running, that Gilligan has an opponent. But I think I'm starting to overcome that."

Another of his problems is that Gilligan has ignored him in the campaign, although the governor's aides occasionally have denied Nolan's charges.

"I'd like to debate Gilligan, but he won't debate," Nolan said. "It's tough to debate an empty chair."

He said his first priority if elected governor would be to reduce government spending.

"The present administration has gone off on adventurous frolics in spending that has proved very unsuccessful," he said. "It has not concerned itself with the serious problems of Ohio education, medical care for the aged and housing.

"We have to get back to what I call the bare bones of government. We have to redirect our priorities so there will be enough money for education and the other essential programs."

Nolan, the self-styled "poor man's candidate," celebrated his 52nd birthday April 18 at a 99-cent corned beef and cabbage dinner in Cleveland for Democratic senatorial candidate John Glenn. He brought along a busload of friends for the affair.

His chief weapon in the campaign is his mimeograph machine. For $300 a week he has bombarded Ohio newspapers and wire services with daily releases attacking the Gilligan administration on a variety of subjects, including government waste and high taxes. He also accused the administration of maintaining its own propaganda machine to enhance Gilligan's image.

"You can't buy the kind of publicity I've been getting for $300 a week," Nolan said. "How much would it cost to run advertisements in papers all over the state? Thousands of dollars."

Nolan, who is bald and short of stature, always wears a bow tie, explaining "I tie them myself."

He was born in Cleveland but grew up in Lorain and was once a steelworker. He served in the European Theater during World War II. He and his wife, Lillian, have three children.

Nolan was the Democratic party's nominee for secretary of state in 1966 but lost to Ted Brown, a long-time holder of the office. He ran unsuccessfully for lieutenant governor in 1970.

However, he probably is best known for his lawsuit that knocked out the Hanna Amendment which guaranteed every county in Ohio one seat in the General Assembly regardless of population.

The suit led to the "one man, one vote" ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, which required reapportionment of state legislatures on a population basis.

"The guy's wasting his time," a man said at a Parma Heights meeting where Nolan spoke in his campaign.

But Nolan is convinced he will beat the odds and win the gubernatorial nomination.

"Everywhere I go there is disenchantment with Gilligan," Nolan said.

See phase-out of LSH operations

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Dr. Kenneth D. Gaver, Ohio's outgoing director of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, believes there will be a phase-out of many of Lima State Hospital's operation in the next two years.

"I think that is quite clearly in the picture . . . ," he said. "It's clearly in the cards," he said, noting he didn't expect much of a change in the institution's role immediately.

Lima State Hospital is the holding facility for those judged criminally insane or mentally incompetent to stand trial at the time. Gaver would like to see the later go to other institutions.

Gaver is leaving his $35,000 post sometime in August to become commissioner of the Texas Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Sept. 1.

Although it is not a cabinet position as he had in Ohio, the post will pay around $50,000 a year in salary and other benefits, including a house, maid and utilities.

Gaver, at a news conference Monday, said Ohio had turned around its mental care operations since Gov. John J. Gilligan was elected three years ago.

The system, he said, has become oriented toward care of the mentally ill. He said most mental hospitals in Ohio were "a disaster" when he took over.

"While Ohio has come a long way, it still has a long way to go," he said. He said he will put his concept of smaller, community-oriented facilities into practice in Texas.

He said although Texas was ahead of Ohio in having fully accredited hospital type facilities, it was behind in the small hospital concept.

In the past three years, he said Ohio has improved not only patient care and overcrowding but has provided for an attendant on duty at all hospital wards at all times.

At Lima, he said, the population was down from 1,200 in 1971 to 750. He said the ideal population should be around 350 to 400.

Two charged by police in city crash

Three accidents were investigated by city police in the past 24 hours one of which involved two people who were both charged with traffic offenses.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported two accidents Tuesday.

A collision at 3:55 p.m. Tuesday in front of the Dairy Queen, 902 Columbus Ave., involved cars driven by Hershel S. Snyder Jr., 18, New Holland, and Dorothy Jean Foster, 52, of 528 Campbell St.

Snyder was charged with driving while under license restriction and Ms. Foster was charged by police with backing without safety.

Damage was minor.

Ernest M. Wilson, 33, of 3249 Ford Rd., the man charged, was involved in an accident at the intersection of Market and North streets involving a car driven by Roger E. Kirkpatrick, 25, of 554 Washington Ave.

Police reported both Wilson's truck and Kirkpatrick's car severely damaged. Kirkpatrick claimed injury from the mishap but was not treated.

A PARKED CAR owned by Dorothy P. Schnell, 641 S. Fayette St., was moderately damaged when struck by an automobile driven by Pearl P. Melvin, 74, of 639 S. Fayette St.

Ms. Melvin explained to police she had dodged an oncoming auto while traveling on Oak Street, near the Fayette Street intersection, and collided with the Schnell car.

A rear-end collision at 4:50 p.m. Tuesday, involved a car driven by John W. Marcum, 27, Greenfield, and a truck driven by Lester L. Seymour, 42, Greenfield, on Ohio Rt. 753, near the Miami Trace Road intersection.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported minor damage to both vehicles.

Sheriff's deputies are investigating.

Public to judge campaign ethics

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The Fair Campaign Practices Committee is leaving judgement to the voters on the charges of unethical conduct being traded by U.S. Senator Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and his primary opponent, John H. Glenn Jr.

"As far as the committee is concerned, the case is closed," said Samuel J. Archibald, executive director of the committee. "I'm going to turn over the complaints with full details to the press and let the voters make up their minds as to who is right."

April stormy but still dry, records show

It was a stormy April but still a dry one, according to the monthly report prepared by Coyt A. Stookey, official weather observer for Washington C.H.

The precipitation total for the 30-day period at Stookey's recording station, 134 E. Ohio Ave., was only 2.91 inches — 1.08 inch below the over-the-years April average of 3.99 inches. (rainfall Tuesday afternoon and night will be reflected in the May figure.)

April rainfall brought the total precipitation for the first third of the year to 11.15 inches, a 1974 deficiency of 2.65 inches when compared with an average of 13.80 inches for the first four months of the year.

Minimum daily temperatures for the past month ranged from a low of 30 on the 10th to a high of 62 on the 29th. Maximum daily temperatures ranged from a low of 42 on the 9th to a high of 83 on the 29th.

There was precipitation on 12 of April's 30 days, ranging from a trace on the 13th and 24th to .87 inch on the 2nd. Damaging winds were reported on both the first and 14th days of the month.

Here are the actual Washington C.H. precipitation figures for the year to date as compared with the established averages:

Local issues face many Ohio voters

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Along with three statewide constitutional amendments, a host of local issues will face Ohioans in Tuesday's election.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown's office said 60 bond issues, 71 miscelleanous questions and 366 tax levies would be on ballots somewhere in the state.

Local issues include 197 levy and bond issue requests from about one-fifth of the state's school districts. Last November there were 312 such issues on the ballot.

The Ohio Education Association said 119 of next week's requests are for additional operating millage.

The OEA said this was somewhat above average for a May primary and reflected the runaway inflation that has hit school districts.

The OEA also listed 28 renewal levies, nine permanent improvement levies and 41 school construction bond issues. Six of the bond issues are for new joint vocational school facilities.

Fifty-one of the additional money issues are for five mills or more, the OEA said. Eight are for eight mills or more.

Detention Center contracts OKd

CHILLICOTHE — Contracts have been awarded for the six-county South Central Ohio Juvenile Detention Center after receipt of an additional $65,000 in state and federal funds.

The six counties have agreed to make additional appropriations totaling $15,000 to complete funding for the $672,000 facility to be constructed northwest of Chillicothe.

Bids opened earlier this month were $80,000 greater than the construction money available for the project. These bids totaled $470,514.

The six counties will pay a total of $49,000 of the cost. The individual payments, based on tax valuation of each county, are Ross, $15,925; Pickaway, $14,259; Highland, $16,811; Jackson, $5,978; Pike, $3,871 and Vinton, $2,156.

In addition to the construction cost, the juvenile center district faces expenditures of $25,000 for equipment, $32,935 for architectural fees and $6,385 for contingencies.

Gas price boosts set

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Motorists througout Ohio will find gasoline prices six-cents-a-gallon higher at Sohio stations this morning, some dealers said Tuesday.

A Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) spokesman maintained that a price increase still was in the study stage, but some dealers said they had been told that gasoline delivered today would cost six cents a gallon more.

"It's likely that we'll make an announcment Wednesday, but I can't give you an exact figure," the Sohio spokesman said. But he conceded that the six-cents-a-gallon figure was "in the ballpark based on what I know about crude oil costs."

Marathon Oil Co. in Findlay said it was studying a price hike, but would wait to see what Sohio did.

"We've been a few cents under our major competitor (Sohio), and we'd like to stay under," a Marathon spokesman said.

Ashland Oil Inc. announced a five cents a gallon drop in gasoline prices. The company said the reduction was due to the end of the Mideast oil embargo and a lowering of foreign prices for crude oil.

Shell Oil Co. has announced a 4.8 cents a gallon increase.

AMC shines brightly on birthday

DETROIT (AP) — The candles on American Motors 20th birthday cake will be glowing doubly strong Wednesday as the auto midget celebrates with the only bright sales picture in the industry this year.

Auto industry sales are down more than 25 per cent and profits are way off — General Motors has reported an 85 per cent drop in first-quarter profits, Chrysler earnings are off 98 per cent, and Ford is down 66 per cent.

Meanwhile, AMC's sales are up five per cent, and the firm sees further improvement down the road. The company plans to release its first-quarter earnings report Wednesday.

With AMC's recent sales gains — largely because of its ability to meet the shift to smaller cars — the firm has increased its market share to 5.6 per cent on an annual sales rate of more than 400,000.

That's a big change since AMC was formed May 1, 1954, in a merger of Nash-Kelvinator Corp. and Hudson Motor Car Co.

"I think it's a matter of our being in the right place and the right time with the right product," says Roy D. Chapin, AMC chairman.

"One thing we've learned, we should specialize in the area where we do best," he adds. "It's being a company that really has a mission in life."

That mission is giving the public all the small-and intermediate-size cars it wants. As Chapin sees it, that means more happy brithdays for the company in the near future.

"I think we obviously will have a lot of competition, but I see no reason why we won't continue to move up, although not as dramatically as this year," he says. "The trend to smaller vehicles was tremendously accelerated by the energy crisis. That is not going to recur."

Chapin also attributes AMC's recent success to a "culmination of preparatory work during the preceding years" and its strongest dealership organization ever.

The little firm sold 118,000 autos for a 2 per cent share of the market in its first year two decades ago. AMC lost $11 million that year on sales of $416 million.

The firm's reliance on small cars goes back to its origins. In 1954 it was the compact Rambler, and now it's the hot-selling Hornet and subcompact Gremlin.

Company spokesmen say 93 per cent of the 6.7 million cars built by AMC in two decades have been small autos. And the firm announced Monday that it had acquired a million-squarefoot plant in South Charleston, W.Va. to increase small-car production.

AMC acquired the Jeep Corp. from Kaiser Industries in 1970 and formed AM General Corp. in 1971 to build buses and governmental vehicles. In the process its employment roles have swelled to 32,000 people in Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Ontario.

Even with its recent expansion into other vehicle lines, the small car clearly will remain the firm's forte.

"We think we do better with small cars than our competitors," Chapin says. "That's where we will continue to concentrate. It's our entire philosophy."

Automakers see better sales ahead

DETROIT (AP) — The Big Three auto makers, coming off sharp first-quarter profit declines, are forecasting an improved market for the remainder of 1974. But sales apparently won't bounce back to 1973 levels.

Ford became the industry's third loser Tuesday when it reported January-March earnings fell 66 per cent to $123.6 million from a record $361 million for the first quarter of 1973.

Worldwide sales of $5.5 billion were off 11 per cent from the same period in 1973, Ford said.

However, Ford's top officers predicted the second quarter would mark an improvement in the industry's sales picture.

Without citing specific sales figures, Ford Chairman Henry Ford II and President Lee Iacocca said, "We are encouraged by indications the U.S. auto market is beginning to turn upward."

Their forecast echoed predictions made by General Motors and Chrysler executives after those firms reported steep profit drops of 85 and 98 per cent, respectively.

Ford's earnings decline was less severe than its competitors' because of its penetration of the small car market, recently boosted by a sagging economy and consumer fears of gasoline shortages.

The most recent auto sales figures indicate the market is leveling off at sales about 26 per cent below 1973 figures, a slight improvement over the January-March period.

As of Oct. 31, 1972, there were 20,828 officers and 1,984 civilians in the police roster in New York. Chicago was next with 13,125 officers and 1,286 civilians.

Family grocery bills dip

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The family grocery bill dropped slightly during April, the second straight month of decline, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The pattern was the same as the one in March: Sales on meat and eggs offset steadily rising prices on items like sugar and milk.

The AP checked the price of 15 food and nonfood items in 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked at the beginning of each succeeding month, using standard brands and sizes or their nearest equivalents. Items not available on one of the check dates were not included in the marketbasket total.

The latest check showed the marketbasket total declined in eight cities during April, down an average of 3 per cent. It went up in the remaining five cities, generally about 1 per cent. The marketbasket total went down in nine cities during March.

Even with the decreases, grocery bills remained well above the levels of March 1973. The marketbasket bill was higher in every one of the cities on May 1, 1974, than it was 14 months earlier. The average increase was 13 per cent.

Sugar, which has been rising since late last year because of increased world demand and lower supplies, went up again. The price jumped in nine cities, was unchanged in three and down in one.

The average price of a fivepound sack of sugar at the start of May was $1.23, up 5 per cent from the $1.17 price last month and up 81 per cent from the 68-cent price on March 1, 1973.

Eggs were down and in seven cities a dozen medium eggs cost less than they did on March 1, 1973. The price declined during April in every city but Philadelphia, with an average drop of 18 per cent. Pork chops also declined in seven cities, down an average of 17 per cent.

Car fire smothered

A car fire in front of 1151 Columbus Ave. at 7:10 p.m. Tuesday brought Washington C.H. firemen who found the blaze had been extinguished by Horace Jacobs who threw a carpet mat over the motor.

Investigation disclosed that the fire had started from a backfire in the carburetor which had no air cleaner. There was no loss. The car, owned by Marsha Eggleton, was being driven by Kathy Gardner at the time of the incident.

What's new on the market?

Manufacturers claim — That the material is a piece of fiberglass cloth impregnated with polyester resin that hardens into a waterproof, rigid, reinforced repair when explosed to sunlight or a sunlamp . . . that the damaged surface is first cleaned, after which a green liner is peeled from the 4 by 6-inch repair material . . . that the patch is then pressed against the wood, metal or fiber-glass surface, adhering on contact . . . that, once the patch has hardened, a clear top liner is peeled away, after which the patch can be sanded and painted to match the color and finish of the repaired surface . . . and that the patch may be used on many types of damage, including cracked fiber-glass shower stalls, gutters, downspouts and screens or any metal, wood or fiber-glass surface.

Manufacturer's claim — That the 16-inch by 10-foot plank is one-quarter-inch thick so that it can be installed over old walls or new framing . . . that, although it is two feet longer than most paneling, it is only one-third the width, making it possible for a home handyman to handle it without a helper . . . that tongue-and-groove edges simplify fitting . . . that concealed metal clips and wall-board adhesive assure a strong bond . . . and that the only maintenance required is an occasional damp wiping.

Manufacturer's claim — That the unit, with attachments, is designed to cultivate and pulverize soil, edge along sidewalks and gardens, rough sand metal and wood, scrape paint and rust, and wirebrush especially difficult projects . . . that the tool weighs only 4½ pounds, has a 2.4 amp motor and reciprocates attachments at 1,750 strokes per minute . . . that is double insulated, has a plastic housing with forward and rear handles for easy and safe control and features a new detachable cord concept which provides direct secure connection of the extension cord to the unit.

Manufacturer's claim — That the unit is for installation in standard, residential circuit breaker panels . . . that it is designed to provide protection against overload and short circuits . . . that it conforms to the recent updating on Jan. 1 of the National Electrical Code which says that all new 15-amp and 20-amp outdoor residential receptacles must have circuit interrupters, as well as those located near swimming pools and equipment used with storable pools.

Q. — The paint on the outside of our wooden house is chalking in spots. Is it all right to apply latex paint over it?

A. — Generally, latex paint does not always bond well to chalking surfaces. When repainting with exterior latex, remove the chalk by scrubbing, sanding or steel wooling.

However, latex paint formulations have been improved so much recently, it is as well to read the label to see what it says about chalking. Or, if you wish, you can apply an oil-base paint over the old paint.

Q. — Why is heavy building paper put over a subfloor before the finish floor is installed?

A. — It prevents dust from working up through the finish floor, reduces air filtration from crawl spaces in basementless houses, retards moisture from rising through the floor from damp basements or from the soil in basementless houses.

Sound engineers say it also has some value as a sound deadener.

Q. — I'd like to apply a water stain to a wood floor to darken the color, but have been told that nothing with water in it should be put on a wood floor. Is that correct?

A. — Generally, yes. What you should use is an oil stain or a nongrain-raising stain.

Q. — I recently replaced the washer in the cold water faucet in our bathroom sink. It stopped the leak from the mouth of the faucet all right but now, every time the faucet is turned on, a few drops of water comes out from under the big nut on the stem under the handle. How can I stop this leak?

A. — Shut off the water at the valve under the sink or, if there isn't one, at the main shutoff valve. Remove the faucet handle. Loosen the nut by turning counterclockwise, If you put adhesive tape on the jaws of the wrench, there is less chance of damaginz the fixture's finish.

After the nut is loose, slide it up the stem and remove it. Inside it you will find packing (a stringlike material), which should be removed with an awl or other pointed tool. Put in new packing, then replace the nut and faucet handle. Turn on the water.

Q. — Aside from the fact that ball pein hammers have no claws on them to withdraw nails, how do they differ from ordinary hammers?

A. — A ball pein hammer is used principally for hitting cold chisels and for shaping metal. It has a slightly curved face with bevelled edges to facilitate its uses.

Dayco sues big firms

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Contending the two big firms drove it out of the tire business, the Dayco Corp. of Dayton filed antitrust actions Tuesday against the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. and the Firestone Rubber Co.

The complaint in U.S. District Court here seeks $30 million in damages from each company.

Dayco's allegations are similar to those made by the U.S. Department of Justice in antitrust actions filed last August against Goodyear and Firestone.

Dayco accused the companies of attempting to monopolize the manufacture and sale of replacement tires in violation of the Sherman Act. It contended those actions forced Dayco to sell its tire division in 1961.

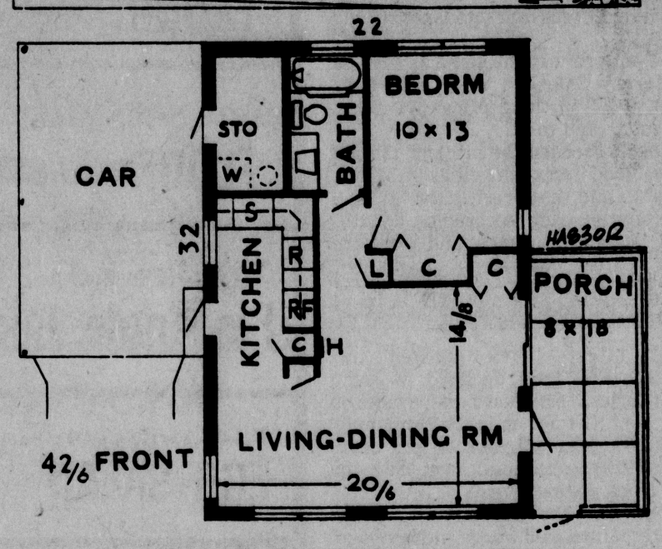
LONDON (AP) — A reporter on the Daily Telegraph says that, when he moved recently, he received a letter from the North Thames gas board, with his name and address spelled correctly, asking for his name so that the board could send him money he is owed.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS



A ONE-WAY SLOPE roof allows for a 10-foot-high ceiling along the street side of plan HA830R and a regular eight-foot-high ceiling along the garden side for the bedroom. The cross-ventilated living-dining area is entered through the 8 by 18 foot screened porch which acts as an extension of the living area as well as entrance. The L-shape kitchen counter is hidden from view in the living area. It has direct access to the carport. A separate storage area also is accessible from the carport. There are 704 square feet in the home, which was designed by Jan Reiner, 1000 52nd Street North, St. Petersburg, Fla. 33710. Anyone wishing to learn the cost of the blueprint can write to the architect, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Toll-free bridge set

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A ribbon-cutting ceremony was scheduled this afternoon at the Grant Bridge on the Ohio River — marking the removal of tolls on the span connecting South Portsmouth, Ky. and Portsmouth, Ohio.

Kentucky Gov. Wendell Ford and Transportation Secretary James Gray were to join in the ceremonies.

Ford and Ohio Gov. John Gilligan arranged the agreement, in response to recommendations from citizen groups and leaders in the two states who stressed that a free bridge would establish stronger ties between Portsmouth and nearby Kentucky communities.

Under the original bond payment schedule, the debt would have been paid off and the bridge made toll free late in 1975.

The ceremony was to take place in late afternoon after a parade from Kentucky to the Ohio side of the river.

Ohio gas allocation 452,364,780 gallons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio reported Tuesday that Ohio has been allocated 452,364,780 gallons of gasoline for May, or 91 per cent of the expected demand for the month.

An additional 14,237,580 gallons have been set aside for emergency use, the PUCO said.

Indictment returned against Circleville man

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— John W. King, 31, of Circleville, has been indicted by the Franklin County Grand Jury on six counts of larceny by trick in connection with an alleged beef investment fraud.

Franklin County Prosecutor George C. Smith said King is accused of getting $88,475 from six county residents for an investment program in which feeder cattle were to be bought, fattened and resold. Investigators determined the cattle were never purchased.

Stamps In The News

By SYD KRONISH

The accent is on youth as the Federal Republic of Germany and Berlin issue matching sets of four stamps each in tribute to the young people in front of the Iron Curtain.

The youth stamps have a theme based on "Youth Getting Together," according to the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The West German designs feature the following: Youth Building — 25-pfennig plus 10 brown, Youth Folklore — 30-pf plus 15 green, Youth Learns — 40-pf plus 20 red, Youth Explores — 70-pf plus 35 blue. The West Berlin adhesives portray: Youth and Photography — 20-pf plus 10 brown,

Youth and Sports — 30-pf plus 15 green, Youth and Music — 40-pf plus 20 red, Youth Helps — 70-pf plus 35 blue.

Also issued by West Germany is a single stamp honoring the 250th anniversary of the birth of philosopher Immanuel Kant as well as a pair hailing Europa.

All these stamps are available at your local dealer or stamp department.

THE U.S. Postal Service in conjunction with the U.S. Air Force Academy has issued a special postal cachet marking the 20th anniversary of the academy.

Those wishing to purchase the 20th anniversary cachet should send 35 cents in money order with their request on a piece of paper containing their name and address to: Postmaster, USAF Academy, Colorado 80840. All the cachets will be specially cancelled at the Academy Post Office.

The stamp to be used on the envelope is the 10-cent Crossed United States Flags.

FROM Western pop music to primitive African dances, the second Hong Kong Arts Festival will explore the world of music, art and theater. To honor this occasion, Hong Kong has issued three few stamps depicting Chinese masks. The values are 10 cents, $1 (HK) and $2.

Heading the impressive list of leading musicians is Andre Previn and the London Symphony Orchestra. East meets West as the Sydney (Australia) Symphony Orchestra performs under the batons of Japanese conductor John Hopkins and Israeli conductor Sergiu Commissiona. In addition to music there are dance groups, drama presentations and an art exhibit.

SPEAKING of art and culture highlighted on stamps, Italy will produce two beautiful stamp sets with an art theme later this year.

One set of five stamps will reproduce portraits of Italian painters Botticelli, Piranesi, Tiepolo, Veronese and Verrochio taken from self-portraits or paintings in Italian galleries.

Another set of three will show Italian fountains. They will be Immocalatella in Naples, Piazza Pretoria in Palermo and the Trevi in Rome.

It's the fourth annual "Guessing Contest" sponsored by the American First Day Cover Society and you are asked to guess on the number of first day covers issued by the U.S. Postal Service for the block of four Continental Congress bicentennial stamps on July 4.

The prize, donated by the USPS, will be an official presentation album identical to those given to participants in the first-day ceremony in Philadelphia that day.

To enter, send your estimate, name and address on a postal card to: AFDCS Contest, 12 School St., Plymouth, N.H. 03264. Entries must be postmarked no later than July 4, 1974.

The person with the closest estimate to the official figures of the Postal Service will be the winner.

The Weeders Guide

There is no such thing as instant grass but there is a quick grass and that is what thousands will walk on when they attend Expo '74 at Spokane, Wash. The grass selected for the expected heavy tramp of feet starting May 4 when the fair opens is Fylking Kentucky bluegrass (Brand 0217).

While trucks, graders, cranes and workers are virtually crawling on the World's Fair site, the bluegrass is awakening where it was planted last summer in giant turf plots away from the construction.

As projects are completed on the 100-acre site, turf specialists move in and lay the Fylking turf and plant trees and flowers.

The architects, in evaluating turfgrasses for the fair, said they selected Fylking because "it is one of the most energetic oxygen producers available, requiring little care and having a greater disease and drought resistance. It flourishes with little or no weed disease control chemicals, and this adds up to the ideal grass seed to fit in with the basic theme of the fair, 'Celebrating Tomorrow's Fresh New Environment.' "

Expo '74 is on two islands and the north and south banks of the Spokane River. The architects want the site to reflect man's concern with the environment and to set an example to visitors from all over the world.

Heavy Maple Seeding

If your maple trees produce a large crop of seeds it may be a sign of weakness. Silver maples drop their seeds in spring and Norway maples near midsummer.

A tree expends great energy when it produces excessive seeds. This saps a tree's vitality. Feeding then becomes very important to pep up the tree's vigor.

Iron Deficiency

If your trees look pale and anemic, they may suffer from iron deficiency chlorosis, also known as trace element deficiency. Hold a leaf up to the light. If it is quite yellow yet has green veins, it is likely the tree has iron deficiency. The presence of an alkaline soil is another indication.

For plant growth, iron in small amounts is a necessary element, particularly in the properfunctioning of chlorophyll (the green coloring).

Absence of green coloring is called chlorosis. Iron chelate, a preparation of iron sulphate, has helped correct chlorosis. Be careful, however, because improper use may harm trees, shrubs and plants.

Tree Color Check

Foliage that doesn't look right is a tree warning. One trouble you can spot yourself is wetwood, or slime flux. An unsightly ooze is caused by gases from sap fermentation that builds up pressure in trees. A drain tube installation will usually relieve the pressure. The entire crown may die back if you ignore wetwood.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Photogenic Puppy

Irene was so captivated by her new puppy that she took him to a neighborhood photographer for a sitting. The pictures were knockouts. In fact, the photographer decided to sell copies to an advertising agency.

Learning of his intentions, Irene hastened into court for a stop order. And the court granted her request. The judge said that when a customer hires a photographer to take pictures, the pictures become the exclusive property of the customer.

This is the usual rule. While the photographer may retain possession of the negatives, he ordinarily has no right to sell copies without the customer's consent.

It is a different story, however, if the photographer, instead of being hired for the job, takes the picture on his own initiative. Consider this case:

A free lance photographer, putting together an exhibit of his work, took pictures of a prominent businessman. The pictures were his own idea, and he charged nothing for taking them.

Under these circumstances, a court held that the businessman — even though he bought several prints for himself — had no right to pass them along for use in a magazine.

A borderline case arose when a photographer was asked to take pictures of a high school graduating class. Was he entitled to the copyright?

Admittedly, the initiative for the picture had come from the students. Still, they had not promised him any payment at all. He could cash in only if the students should decide, afterwards, to order prints.

A court ruled that in all fairness, the copyright did belong to the photographer. Since he was taking that much risk, reasoned the court, he was entitled to that much reward.

Tiger hurler now 1-4

Lolich wins first against Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The hard-hitting Kansas City Royals normally would look forward to facing a pitcher who's winless in four decisions and has allowed 5½ runs a game. But not when his name is Mickey Lolich.

"I hate to catch a guy who is 0-4 like Lolich was," said Kansas City Manager Jack McKeon. "You know that a good pitcher's going to win sooner or later. You just know it ...."

If McKeon was worried before the game, he was convinced afterwards. Lolich, working mostly with off-speed pitches, scattered eight hits as Detroit dumped the Royals 7-2. Aurelio Rodriguez keyed the Tiger attack with two singles, a double and two runs batted in.

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels blasted the Boston Red Sox 16-6; the Cleveland Indians downed the Minnesota Twins 8-3; the Texas Rangers outlasted the Milwaukee Brewers 12-10; the New York Yankees edged the Oakland Athletics 4-3, and the Chicago White Sox shaded the Baltimore Orioles 2-1.

Lolich, a portly left-hander, has lost a little something off his fastball of late and has changed his style of pitching.

"I'm 33 so I throw a lot of sliders and a lot of knuckleballs. I had a good curve ball tonight but the velocity wasn't good," he said.

Angels 16, Red Sox 6

Indians 8, Twins 3

Charlie Spikes stroked a two-run single to extend his hitting streak to 19 games as Cleveland won its fifth straight. Fritz Peterson and Fred Beene, both acquired from the Yankees last week, combined on an eight-hitter. Bobby Darwin homered twice for Minnesota.

Rangers 12, Brewers 10

Jeff Burroughs, Jim Spencer and Cesar Tovar hit home runs for Texas. Burroughs and Spencer hit theirs consecutively in the eighth inning to put the Rangers ahead for good. Johnny Briggs drove in three runs for Milwaukee.

Yankees 4, Athletics 3

White Sox 2, Orioles 1

Ron Santo's first American League homer, a two-run shot, accounted for Chicago's victory. Stan Bahnsen tossed a seven-hitter for the White Sox, besting Jim Palmer. Bobby Grich singled home the lone Baltimore run.

Panthers fall to Chillicothe in sectional tourney opener

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

In the midst of a torrential downpour at Chillicothe's Yoctangee Park, the Miami Trace Panthers were sent home wet and empty-handed, as their opponents, the Cavaliers of Chillicothe, set them down on five hits and won the game 6-1. The loss opened Class AAA play in the sectional tournament.

Cavalier hurler Jon Foster stymied the Panther hitters on just five widely scattered hits, six strikeouts and only three walks. Foster worked all of his seven innings with ease and made just one mistake, a home run ball to opposing pitcher Tom Riley.

Riley, who also went the distance, gave up nine hits, six runs of which just four were earned, struck out four and walked only two. Aside from one inning, Riley and Foster threw almost the same type of game.

The Cavaliers got out of the blocks early in the first inning when leadoff batter Rex Blake reached first on an error. Center fielder Kirk Hitchens then proceeded to smash a long blast into left-center for a triple, scoring Blake. Cleanup hitter Mike Ratzlaff then hit a sacrifice fly to drive in Hitchens for the early 2-0 lead.

The third inning brought cloudbursts of two varieties; from the weather and from the bats of the Cavaliers. Right fielder Mark Shoemaker led off with a triple and Ratzlaff reached on a walk. After a groundout found Ratzlaff and Shoemaker on second and third respectively, shortstop Jeff Hall singled in both runners. Hall then tried to steal second and the ball was thrown into center field, enabling Hall to coast into third where he was driven home on a single by catcher John Street.

The rains came along with the fourth inning. It started in a light mist but changed to a steady downpour. By the time the game was over, the field had become a sloppy mess.

Chillicothe scored its sixth and final run of the game in the fourth when Blake singled, advanced to second on Hitchens' fly out and scored on Ratzlaff's double, giving him two runs batted in for the day.

The absence of run scoring beyond the fourth inning was due strictly to the rain, as it made the bats and balls slippery as well as the infield and outfield.

Chillicothe was also benefited by the doubleplay ball. The Panthers hit into three doubleplays, including one with two runners on base in the sixth inning, during the game.

Toledo press box damaged by squatters

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—University of Toledo maintenance men found they had some unanticipated repair work to do in the Glass Bowl press box when they opened it for spring cleaning.

They discovered a family of raccoons had taken up residence during the winter and had destroyed just about everything their teeth could chew.

Maintenance foreman Ron Beczynski said the mother and father raccoons had made a cozy nest for themselves and their five kits from cotton stuffing of folding leather chairs.

Aaron homers in Braves' loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vic Raschi and Lynn McGlothen are from two different baseball eras, but Hank Aaron bridged their generation gap Tuesday night.

Babe Ruth was a seemingly unreachable 713 homers away on April 23, 1954, when Aaron started his homer brigade in St. Louis, belting No. 1 off Raschi.

Twenty years, 719 home runs and 1,399 extra base hits later, St. Louis was the site of another Aaron home run, this one served up by McGlothen.

"Why should I worry about his 720th," said McGlothen, who helped pitch the Cardinals to a 7-2 victory over the Braves. "He'd hit 719 of them before."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Houston Astros downed the Chicago Cubs 4-2; the San Diego Padres shaded the Montreal Expos 2-1; the New York Mets edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-7; the Philadelphia Phillies nipped the San Francisco Giants 6-5, and the Cincinnati Reds-Pittsburgh Pirates game was rained out.

Red Schoendienst has had to play and manage against Aaron. He has seen many of the 45 homers Aaron has hit off St. Louis pitching.

Astros 4, Cubs 2

The Astros scored 14 less runs than they did Monday night but still had enough to win the game.

Johnny Edwards' single knocked in Lee May with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning, sending the Cubs to their seventh loss in eight games.

Mets 8, Dodgers 7

The Mets frittered away a 6-0 lead, then held on to snap the Dodgers' seven-game winning streak.

John Milner cracked a tiebreaking, two-run double in the top of the ninth to snap a 6-6 tie.

Phils 6, Giants 5

Mike Schmidt doubled home one run and scored another on Bill Robinson's single to give Philadelphia the victory over San Francisco.

Padres 2, Expos 1

Derrel Thomas doubled home the tiebreaking run in the sixth and Bill Greif teamed with Vincente Romo on an eight-hitter, pacing San Diego the victory.

Greif, 2-4, pitched into the ninth and Romo got the final two outs with the bases loaded, striking out Jim Lyttle and inducing Ron Hunt to ground out.

Warner's heroics give Bucks overtime win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Boston Celtics' pressure defense was all but impregnable for almost 52 minutes Tuesday night, but when a crack finally appeared Cornell Warner was ready.

Warner drove the lane for a pair of dunk shots, adding a free throw after the first one, in the last 34 seconds of overtime. His second basket gave the Milwaukee Bucks a 103-96 lead en route to a 105-96 victory, squaring their National Basketball Association championship playoff series at 1-1.

The Celtics battled from a 16-point deficit early in the third quarter to tie at 90-90 on two free throws by John Havlicek with 58 seconds left in regulation, the final points until the five minute extra period.

The Celtics had two more chances to win in regulation and thus take a 2-0 lead in the best of seven series back to Boston. However, Milwaukee's 7-foot-2 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar blocked a shot by Dave Cowens with 10 seconds left, and a jump shot by Havlicek rolled off the rim as regulation time expired.

The next two games will be in Boston, starting with game three Friday night.

The Bucks, leading 98-96, called time with 39 seconds left in overtime. Oscar Robertson passed inbounds to Warner near midcourt when play resumed. Warner wheeled past Paul Silas, drove the lane and stuffed in the game's biggest basket. Cowens, who scored 17 points and grabbed 11 rebounds, fouled out on the play and Warner converted the free throw.

"It was the biggest dunk of the year. Baby, what a play," Bucks' Coach Larry Costello shouted.

"It was a beautiful move, a move a player should react to instinctively," Costello said. "He's supposed to forget the play we called when that happens and take the basket. He had the basket."

The 6-foot-9 Warner, who scored only 11 points but contributed 13 rebounds—eight more than in the Bucks' 98-83 defeat Sunday—said he knew he could beat Silas as soon as he took Robertson's pass.

"I was supposed to give it back to Oscar, but he was covered," Warner said. "I saw the layup and just decided to take it."

Coach Tom Heinsohn said he was proud of his Celtics.

"We didn't play our best game and it still took an overtime to beat us," Heinsohn said. "In two games, we won one big and lost the second in an overtime."

Nets edge Utah Stars

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Larry Kenon sat on the New York Nets bench for about eight agonizing minutes and watched his team fritter away a three-point lead and fall behind by six points.

He noticed that the Utah Stars were taking advantage of the Nets under the boards, grabbing rebounds and scoring on easy shots, and he vowed that when he reentered the game he would correct the situation.

He did.

The lanky, soft-spoken rookie from Memphis State came back in with about 8:30 remaining and New York trailing 75-69 in the opening game of their American Basketball Association championship series Tuesday night.

He quickly asserted himself, pulling down a rebound and dropping in a layup, then hauled in three rebounds in the closing four minutes and hit New York's last three field goals, carrying the Nets to a tense 89-85 victory.

Pitching problems in Cincinnati camp

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, their pitching still a combination of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, may be eyeing an experiment with some minor league talent to correct a sluggish start.

Reports are circulating that the Reds are considering elevating two pitchers from their Class AAA farm team in Indianapolis.

The Reds, 10-9 for the season, were rained out at Pittsburgh Monday night. The rainout cost Roger Nelson his first start in a week.

Don Gullett, who has won 11 of his last 12 decisions since July, will take the mount tonight against Dock Ellis.

Sheldon "Chief" Bender, Reds director of player personnel, spent the weekend with the club in St. Louis then departed for Indianapolis.

The duo may be in line to replace a member of the slowstarting hill staff.

The pitching staff's earned run average has been battered for a 4.25 mark, with only one route-going effort in the first 19 games.

The Cardinals won two of three from the Reds in Cincinnati's last series, scoring 15 runs including a 9-2 rout in the finale.

Loser Clay Kirby, now 1-3, said a week's layoff hampered him. "You can't stay sharp pitching once a week," he said.

Manager George "Sparky" Anderson has said he'll stay with a five-man rotation until the arms start rounding into form.

Tuesday's rain forced Anderson to skip Nelson's turn in favor of Gullett, 2-1, who was the winning pitcher in the opener against St. Louis.

The bright spot of recent days was the shutout stint by rookie reliever Pat Osburn. He worked three and a third innings against the Cards Sunday and drew praise from catcher Johnny Bench.

"Osburn's stuff is as good as anyone on our staff," said Bench.

"I think he has the stuff to become another Tommy John," he added. John is a starter for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Reid testifies for Bengals

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mike Reid, all-pro defensive tackle for the Cincinnati Bengals, said Tuesday the future World Football League contracts signed by two of his teammates "would cut the heart out of the team whether they go this year or two years from now."

He testified during a U.S. District Court hearing on the Bengals' bid for a preliminary injunction against the WFL. The hearing entered its third day today. Cincinnati coach and general manager Paul Brown was expected to take the stand.

Reid's remarks supported testimony by Bengals' assistant coach Charles "Chuck" Studley who maintained the lucrative half-million dollar contract signed by Bergey reduces "our chances of winning a championship this year to nil."

Reid's stand differed from a number of teammates who doubted the signing of Bergey and reserve defensive tackle Steve Chomyszak would dull any competitive desires.

Reid said players with future contracts would have a demoralizing effect on a team.

"When you go on the field on Sunday anything that upsets the emotion to play can destroy a team," Reid said.

When WFL attorney George Moscarino attempted to challenge Reid's statement, the former Penn State All-American reiterated his belief.

"I repeat what I said before ... such a situation would wreck a football team," he said.

Attorneys for the WFL and Bergey have hit hard at the effect the signings would have on a team, with most of the players testifying that they would play all-out for whichever team they were under contract to.

Bengals center Bob Johnson, the first player drafted by the Cincinnati franchise, was among six players who said the WFL had approached them with offers.

Johnson said he hoped the Bengals would match the offer from Hawaii because he wanted to stay in Cincinnati.

Babe Ruth League holds annual draft

Forty-two youngsters were drafted by the four city teams, as the Lions' Babe Ruth program prepares to open its 1974 season. Practices until the season opens will be on Tuesdays for Girtons, Wednesday for the Medics, Thursday for Craigs and Friday for Willis Insurance.

Players selected for each team were as follows:

MEDICS (Ron Helmick and David Grimm, managers) — Joe Smith, Tom Bath, Rod Tyree, Carl Baker, Dewey Ackley, Happy Lee, David Everhart, Ruffin Haithcock, Bret Smith, Mike Hughes and Casey Boylan.

GIRTONS (Gene Stillings, manager) — Larry Brickles, Brent Knisley, John Moore, Ronnie West, John Starer, David Ginn, Ricky Bennett, Bill Smith, Jim Tubbs and John Fields.

By The Associated Press

And then there were three.

The Boston Bruins, behind a tie-breaking, third-period goal by young Gregg Sheppard in the final two minutes, defeated the Chicago Black Hawks 4-2 Tuesday night, won their Stanley Cup semifinal series four games to two and advanced to the National Hockey League championships.

Meanwhile, the Philadelphia Flyers moved a giant step closer to filling the other berth in the championship set by beating the New York Rangers 4-1 and taking a 3-2 lead in their semifinal.

Bruins Coach Bep Guidolin says he has no preference who makes the finals against Boston.

"I don't care who we go up against," said Guidolin. "Whoever you are going to meet is going to be good."

Sheppard broke a 2-2 tie with just 1:49 left in the game with his ninth playoff goal, taking a pass from Dallas Smith and beating Hawks goalie Tony Esposito. Phil Esposito wrapped it up with an empty net tally 33 seconds later.

The Rangers dominated the first period and the start of the second, but then Philadelphia took charge.

Flyers Coach Fred Shero said Terry Crisp, the Flyers' hustling center, was screaming on the bench during the second period about going all out.

Shero sent Crisp into the game, and the Flyers dominated the remainder of the action with their finest display of skating since the opening game of the series.

New York Coach Emile Francis said his team let the game slip away when it had a chance to break it open in the first period.

Pete Stemkowski scored the only goal of the first period at 6:16 to give New York a 1-0 lead. Bladon tied it at 6:39 of the middle period, then MacLeish put Philadelphia ahead with a long shot past goalie Ed Giacomin, with Gary Dornhoefer effectively screening Giacomin.

The Flyers' Dave Schultz broke a record in the first period when he amassed 17 penalty minutes to boost his total for nine playoff games to 96. The old NHL mark was 80 minutes served by John Ferguson of Montreal in 1969 during 14 games against New York, Boston and St. Louis.

3 state issues on Fayette ballots

Three proposed amendments to the Ohio constitution will face Fayette County voters when they go to the polls next Tuesday.

All three state issues have been proposed by the resolutions of the Ohio General Assembly, and a majority affirmative vote is necessary for passage for all three.

ISSUE NO. 1, if approved, "would amend sections 20 and 31 of Article II of the Ohio Constitution to equalize the compensation of public officers and members of the Ohio General Assembly."

The proposed change in Section 20 would mean that all officers holding the same office in the same district, such as county commissioners or township trustees, would always receive the same compensation as all other persons holding the same office in the same district.

The proposed change in Section 31 would make any increase applicable to all members of the Ohio General Assembly at the same time, regardless of when their terms end. Thus, those state senators who are less than half way through their four-year terms at the time an increase is enacted could receive the increase after the end of the legislative biennium (a two-year period) in which the increase was enacted, rather than waiting until after the expiration of their current term.

ISSUE NO. 2, if approved by Ohio's voters, "would permit increases in the compensation of public officers with more than two years remaining in their terms."

This amendment would make increases payable immediately in the case of officers who have more than two years remaining in their terms at the time the increase is enacted.

The current prohibition against increases during term would continue to apply to those officeholders having less than two years remaining in their terms at the time the increase is enacted.

ISSUE NO. 3, if approved on May 7, "would provide for preparation of ballot language on constitutional amendments proposed by the general assembly and provide procedures for timely challenges to such language, to provide information to voters about such amendments."

In other words, the amendment would permit constitutional amendment ballot questions to be presented in simplified language which identifies the substance of the proposal, rather than legalistic language containing a full or condensed text. Strict limits would be placed on the timing of court challenges to the ballot language. All such challenges would have to be initiated in the Ohio Supreme Court, which could not remove a scheduled issue from the ballot unless the language tends to mislead or deceive the voters.

A provision would also be made for the publication of arguments and explanations and other dissemination of information concerning such ballot issues.

1 PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

TO EQUALIZE THE COMPENSATION OF PUBLIC OFFICERS AND MEMBERS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

(Proposed by Resolution of the General Assembly)

The proposal would amend sections 20 and 31 of Article II of the Ohio constitution to require that:

1. No change in the compensation of a public officer shall take effect during his existing term, except that
   a. All officers holding the same office in the same district shall receive the same compensation, and
   b. An officer appointed to fill a vacancy in an elective office shall not receive more compensation than elected holders of the same office in the same district receive at the time the appointed officer takes office.
2. No change in the compensation of members and officers of the General Assembly shall take effect during the legislative biennium within which it was made.

2 PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

TO PERMIT INCREASES IN THE COMPENSATION OF PUBLIC OFFICERS WITH MORE THAN TWO YEARS REMAINING IN THEIR TERMS.

(Proposed by Resolution of the General Assembly)

A majority affirmative vote is necessary for passage.

The proposed section 20a of Article II of the Ohio constitution would make an exception to the constitutional prohibition against increases in the compensation of public officers during term in the case of office holders who have more than two years remaining in their terms at the time the increase is enacted. Increases in such cases would be effective and payable on and after the effective date of the legislation providing the increase.

3 PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

TO PROVIDE FOR PREPARATION OF BALLOT LANGUAGE ON CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS PROPOSED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY. TO PROVIDE PROCEDURES FOR TIMELY CHALLENGES TO SUCH LANGUAGE, AND TO PROVIDE INFORMATION TO VOTERS ABOUT SUCH AMENDMENTS.

(Proposed by Resolution of the General Assembly)

The proposal would amend section 1 of Article XVI of the Ohio constitution to:

1. Require that constitutional amendments proposed by the General Assembly be filed with the Secretary of State at least 90 days before the election.
2. Provide for a five member Ballot Board to prescribe the ballot for such amendments. The ballot language would have to properly identify the substance of the proposal, but would not need to contain the full or condensed text.
3. Require the Board to prepare an explanation of each proposal and to certify the ballot language and explanation to the Secretary of State not later than 75 days before the election.
4. Give the Ohio Supreme Court exclusive, original jurisdiction in all cases challenging the validity of ballot language. No case could be filed later than 64 days before the election, and the ballot language could not be held invalid unless it would mislead, deceive, or defraud the voters.
5. Permit the Board to prepare arguments for and against a proposed amendment unless the General Assembly provides by law for the preparation of such arguments.
6. Require the proposed amendments, the ballot language, the explanations, and the arguments, if any, to be published once a week for three consecutive weeks.
7. Require the General Assembly to provide for other dissemination of information concerning proposed amendments.
8. Prevent the court from enjoining or invalidating an election on such amendments solely because of defects in the explanation, arguments, or other information.

No recompense for extra weight

LONDON (AP) — Harold Lever, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Socialist cabinet, is doing the job for nothing.

Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster is a catch-all office whose holder can be used in any sector of government where extra weight is needed. Lever was appointed as economic adviser to Wilson.

But there is a statutory limit of 19 to the number of cabinet ministers, who are paid 13,000 pounds — around $30,000 — a year. And there were already 19.

Wilson was so keen to have Lever in his cabinet, however, that Lever volunteered to do the job with no ministerial salary. All he'll get will be the 4,500 pounds — $10,350 — a year paid to ordinary members of Parliament.

Three oil companies are using a transportable satellite communications earth station equipped with a 10-foot dish antenna at this exploration site above the Arctic Circle to send and receive voice, data and teletype communications via the Anik Satellites. Both Anik and the portable station were developed and built by Hughes Aircraft Co., El Segundo, Calif.

Instead of depending on shortwave to attempt calls back and forth to the populated areas of southern Canada, some 2,000 miles away, the oil exploration teams communicate through the station, up 22,300 miles to the satellite, back down to an earth terminal near Toronto, then via landline to their home offices in Calgary.

By reversing the procedure the home officers can contact the men working in the isolated outposts.

Land conquered with ski poles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lost Sierra is an isolated corner of northeastern California that the '49ers penetrated for gold. In the beginning, most of them abandoned their diggings with the first heavy snowfall and retreated to the protection of the lowlands and valleys.

The Scandinavians jumping ship in San Francisco to join the gold rush taught them to make skis, and miners conquered a region that was snowbound for seven months of the year, with drifts as high as 40 feet.

Lisa Clemans, president of the To-Lo-Ho- Re- Ca- Camp Fire Group, called the meeting to order and Marilyn Langley, vice president, led the Pledge of Allegiance. Sherry Dowler, called the roll and collected dues. Tonda Smith read minutes of last week's meeting.

Registration money and skating ticket money was turned in to Mrs. Ralph Tate. There will be 10 members registering.

At entertainment time, relay races were enjoyed by the girls. Two teams were formed and each team member had a balloon. The girls stood in lines side by side and each took a turn batting her balloon in the air across the room to fill paper bags. The same teams again raced across the room to the opposite wall and back, balancing a paper cup and plastic spoon which they held between their teeth.

This relay was performed with eyes open and closed. At the end, the girls had a contest by sitting on the balloons and breaking them. Any one not breaking her balloons were the 'old hens' for a week.

Refreshments of lemonade and cookies were served by Tammy Wilson and Tonya Burnett. Next week's hostesses will be Tonda Smith and Lisa Clemans.

The largest and heaviest animal in the world, and probably the biggest creature which has ever existed, is the blue or sulphur-bottom whale, also called Sibbald's rorqual. The largest accurately measured specimen on record was a female taken near Scotland, in March 1926, which measured 109 feet 4½ inches in length. A pregnant female could weigh as much as 200 or more tons.

Opening lead — ten of hearts.

Very few people ever forgot their first encounter with Sylvia. It wasn't that she played so badly, but that she played so differently. Her conception of the game was, to say the least, unique, and you simply couldn't help becoming aware of it.

The first time I played against her, I held the South hand and got to six spades. West led a heart and I saw that the slam hinged on losing only one diamond trick.

It was obvious that if East (Sylvia) held the A-Q I would surely make the hand, and that if West had the A-Q I would surely not make it.

The only cases that could matter were those where West had the ace and East the queen, or West had the queen and East the ace. In either of these cases I would have to judge the right way to play the diamonds.

In order to improve my chances, I won the heart, drew trumps, and led the king of clubs. I was sure that this play would locate the ace of clubs, and I would then assume that the other player had the ace of diamonds.

Unfortunately, when I led the king of clubs, Sylvia, despite her magnificent clubs, played the deuce! As my readers may know, Sylvia had a stubborn streak, and she held firmly to the view that if I wanted her to play the ace on the king, she would not oblige me by doing so.

I ruffed, of course, making a mental note that West had the ace. This also thoroughly convinced me that West could not have the ace of diamonds, for with two aces he would surely have led one of them.

So I entered dummy with a heart, led a diamond, and confidently played the king. Much to my chagrin, West took the ace, returned a diamond, and I went down one!

Avoid a Heart Attack

A heart attack can be a shattering emotional experience. No social, economic or intellectual group is free from the sudden impact of such a medical catastrophe.

A sudden, precipitous change occurs in a single moment when one is stricken. A forceful, dynamic personality is immediately converted into an invalid.

The tireless worker who cannot possibly spare an hour or a weekend for relaxation finds himself in a hospital with six weeks of strict bedrest. The firm rules laid down by the doctor call for a strict diet, no smoking, no telephones, no visitors.

For one in any occupation it comes as an astonishing surprise that his office functions miraculously well without his indispensable presence.

How much wiser it is to recognize that emotional tension, smoking, fatigue, excess weight, untreated high blood pressure and immoderate diets lay the groundwork for possible trouble.

Sane, sensible re-evaluation of patterns of living can often avoid the cataclysmic experience of a heart attack.

People in all industries indulge themselves in the belief that only their occupation is filled with special tension. They almost enjoy the strange distinction that their business is the only "ulcer-producing" business.

Men in executive positions who live in a world of self-imposed deadlines learn that waiters, garbage collectors, taxi drivers, and others in less prestigious occupations also create their own "deadlines."

For years physicians have recognized the relationship between emotional tension and the symptoms their patients present.

The unremitting pressure of work coupled with the overtones of psychological stress play havoc with the productivity and serviceability of thousands of people in every area of family and community life.

Emotional inventories should be taken at regular intervals. Only in this way can the stockpile of emotional reserve be calculated for maximum benefit to the individual.

HOW MANY, PLEASE? — At the head of a long line at the 25th annual Nurses Breakfast, a young hospital staffer did her best to find seats in the crowded building for the patrons. In all, just under 2,000 persons were served Wednesday morning, topping the previous high by almost 300. A staff of approximately 125 did a fine job, allowing the continuous line to move smoothly and pleasantly. Over 600 persons purchased tickets at the door and the remainder had obtained tickets in advance.

versations were being tape recorded.

The President offered to let the two senior members of the Judiciary Committee, chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., and Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., listen to the tapes to verify that the transcripts contained all relevant Watergate material.

But the President gave the committee no role in saying which matters were of primary concern to it. However, after party caucuses Tuesday, committee members appeared determined to avoid a partisan split over what many considered a futile effort to force the President to comply with the subpoena.

Instead, the Democrats, who hold a 21-17 majority, appeared ready to propose a statement that Nixon had failed to comply with the subpoena, which might be put forth in the future as part of a bill of impeachment.

In his speech Monday night, the President had said the transcripts would "provide grist for many sensational stories in the press. Parts will seem contradictory with one another, and parts will be in conflict with some of the testimony given in the Senate Watergate committee hearings."

He also noted that parts "will embarrass me and those whom I talked with."

The transcripts proved him accurate in all those predictions.

There were frequent parenthetical notes that portions were "unintelligible" or "inaudible" and many places were marked "expletive deleted."

On occasion, the President's anger and contempt flashes out from the transcripts. At other times, he displays compassion and loyalty toward beleaguered staff members and such former close friends as John Mitchell.

DEAN CONFLICTS

Dean told the Watergate committee that on Sept. 15, Nixon congratulated him on doing a good job, "and the President was pleased that the case had stopped with (G. Gordon) Liddy."

The transcript shows Nixon telling Dean, "The way you have handled all this seems to me has been very skillful, putting your fingers in the leaks that have sprung here and sprung there."

Nixon's lawyers said the congratulations were offered "in the context not of a criminal plot to obstruct justice as Dean alleges," but rather "in the context of the politics of the matter, such as civil suits, countersuits, Democratic efforts to exploit Watergate as a political issue and the like."

MITCHELL'S INVOLVEMENT

A close friend and adviser to the President throughout his first administration, Mitchell had early been linked to Watergate. On April 14, 1973, Nixon, Haldeman and Ehrlichman discussed the scandal.

Ehrlichman suggested somebody ought to go to New York to tell Mitchell "the jig is up. And the President strongly feels that the only way that this thing can end up even a little plus for the administration and for the presidency and preserve some thread is for you to go in and voluntarily make a statement."

Ehrlichman wanted Mitchell to admit being "both morally and legally responsible."

But moving against his old friend bothered the President and he acknowledged he was putting it off.

"We're still not doing anything," he said.

Ehrlichman: "Right."

Nixon: "That's exactly right. The law and order. That's the way I am. You know it's a pain for me to do it—the Mitchell thing is damn painful."

ELLSBERG BREAK-IN

On March 17, Dean told the President that Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy had been working for Ehrlichman.

Dean: "They—these fellows had to be some idiots as we've learned after the fact. They went out and went into Dr. Ellsberg's doctor's office ..."

Nixon: "What in the world— what in the name of God was Ehrlichman having something (unintelligible) in the Ellsberg (unintelligible)?"

Dean: "They were trying to— this was part of an operation that—in connection with the Pentagon Papers. They were —the whole thing—they wanted to get Ellsberg's psychiatric records for some reason. I don't know."

Nixon: "This is the first I ever heard of this."

HALDEMAN-EHRLICHMAN RESIGNATIONS

In a series of conversations with the President in mid-April, assistant Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, head of the Justice Department Criminal Division, told the President he thought Haldeman and Ehrlichman should resign.

On April 16, the President told Petersen, "Let me tell you they should resign in my view if they get splashed with this. Now the point is, is the timing. I think that it's, I want to get your advice on it, I think it would be really hanging the guy before something goes in if I say look you guys resign ..."

He also told Petersen that he had asked Dean that morning to submit his resignation.

Eleven days later, Petersen and Nixon again discussed the investigation and the President said "if your prosecutors believe that they have got to give Dean immunity, in whole or in part, in order to get the damned case, do it."

Then later ...

Nixon: "All right. We have got the immunity problem resolved. Do it. Dean if you need to, but boy, I am telling you— there ain't going to be any blackmail."
